PREFATORY NOTE —The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill —

'Owing to the issue of the proclamation cited in the preamble, adding certain territory, previously included in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, to the Province of Delhi, it has become necessary to take steps to declare the law in force in the territory so added

Save in respect of a few enactments which are referred to below, the law in force in the Province of Delhi is declared to be in force in the territory now added to that province

The enactments in force in the province of Delhi which are declared not to be in force in this territory are set forth in Schedule II

In place of them the enactments specified in Schedule III, which are already in force in this area are continued in force there It is clearly undesirable to make any change in these laws which mainly relate to land, if such a course can be avoided —Fort St George Gazette, Part III, 1st March, 1915

An Act to declare the law in force in certain territory added to the Province of Delhi

WHEREAS by Proclamation published in Notification No 984-C, dated 22nd day of February, 1915, the Governor General in Council, with the sanction and approbation of the Secretary of State for India, has been pleased to take under his immediate authority and management the territory mentioned in Schedule

I, which was formerly included within the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and to include the said territory in the Province of Delhi with effect from the 1st April, 1915;

And whereas it is expedient to declare the law in force in the said territory,

It is hereby enacted as follows —

Short title and commencement

I (1) This Act may be called THE DELHI LAWS ACT, 1915

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of April, 1915

2. All enactments (except the enactments specified in Schedule II) for the time being in force in the territory specified in Schedule A to the Delhi Laws Act, 1912, and all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by laws issued, made or prescribed under such enactments shall be deemed to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I in the same manner and subject to the same modifications as they are for the time being in the territory specified in the said Schedule to the said Act

Continuance in added area of certain laws now in force in the United Provinces

3 The enactments specified in Schedule III, and all notifications, orders, schemes, rules, forms and by-laws issued made or prescribed under those enactments shall continue to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I

Provided that in the enactments so continued and in all notifications, orders schemes rules, forms and by laws issued made or prescribed thereunder, reference to a Provincial Government, the Provincial Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh or the Board of Revenue for the United Provinces shall be read as referring to the ¹[Provincial Government] of Delhi, references to a High Court or the High Court of Judicature of the North-Western Provinces as referring to the ²[High Court of Judicature at Lahore] and references to the Official Gazette for the United Provinces as referring to the Official Gazette

Provision for facilitating application of certain enactments

4 For the purpose of facilitating the application to the territory mentioned in Schedule I of the enactments referred to in section 3, the powers conferred by sections 4 and 5 of the Delhi Laws Act, 1912, shall be exercisable in respect thereof

Exclusion of certain enactments from the added area

5 Save as provided in sections 2 and 3 no enactment which is in force in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh or any part thereof shall continue to be in force in the territory specified in Schedule I

6 Nothing in this Act shall affect any proceeding which at the commencement thereof is pending in respect of any of the territory mentioned in Schedule I or of anything arising in such territory and every such proceeding shall be continued as if this Act had not been passed

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette direct that any proceeding criminal, civil or revenue other than a proceeding pending before the High Court of Judicature for the North-

THE DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT (XII OF 1941).

[8th April, 1941.

An Act to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate in the Province of Delhi the use of land for purposes other than agricultural purposes,

It is hereby enacted as follows —

Short title, extent and commencement

1 (1) This Act may be called the DELHI RESTRICTION OF USES OF LAND ACT, 1941

(2) It extends to the Province of Delhi

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint

Definitions

2 In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

(1) 'agriculture' includes horticulture and the planting and upkeep of orchards,

(2) 'building' has the same meaning as in clause (2) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911,

(3) "Chief Commissioner" means the Chief Commissioner of Delhi,

(4) 'Deputy Commissioner' means the Deputy Commissioner of Delhi and includes any authority, not being an officer employed by the Delhi Improvement Trust, appointed by the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the official Gazette, to perform all or any of the functions of the Deputy Commissioner under this Act,

(5) 'place of worship' includes an imambara, dargah, karbala or takya,

(6) 'prescribed' means prescribed by rules made under this Act,

(7) 'road' means a metalled road maintained by the Central Government or by a local authority, and

(8) the expression "to erect or re erect" in relation to any building has the same meaning as in clause (5) of section 3 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911

3 (1) The Chief Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Declaration of controlled area

Central Government, by notification in the official Gazette, declare any land adjacent to and within a distance of four hundred and forty yards from the centre line of any road to be a controlled area for the purposes of this Act

(2) Not less than three months before making a declaration under sub section (1) the Chief Commissioner shall cause to be published in the official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English a notification stating that he proposes, with the previous sanction of the Central Government to make such a declaration and specifying therein the boundaries of the land in respect of which the declaration is proposed to be made and copies of every such notification or of the substance thereof shall be published by the Deputy Commissioner in such manner as he thinks fit at his office and in every revenue estate of which any part is included within the said boundaries

(3) Any person interested in any land included within the said boundaries may at any time before the expiration of thirty days from the last date on which a copy of such notification is published by the Deputy Commissioner, object to the making of the declaration or to the inclusion of his land or any part of it within the said boundaries

(4) Every objection under sub section (3) shall be made to the Deputy Commissioner in writing and the Deputy Commissioner shall give to every person so objecting an opportunity of being heard either in person or by pleader and shall after all such objections have been heard and after such further enquiry, if any, as he thinks necessary, forward to the Chief Commissioner the record of the proceedings held by him together with a report setting forth his recommendations on the objections

(5) If before the expiration of the time allowed by sub section (3) for the filing of objections no objection has been made, the Chief Commissioner may proceed at once to the making of a declaration under sub section (1) If any such objections have been made the Chief Commissioner shall consider the record and the report referred to in sub section (4) and shall hear any parties applying to be heard and may either—

(a) abandon the proposal to make a declaration under sub-section (1), or

(b) make such a declaration in respect of either the whole or a part or parts of the land included within the boundaries specified in the notification under sub section (2).

(6) For the purposes of sub-section (3) a person shall be deemed to be interested in land if he is a "person interested" as defined in clause (b) of section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, for the purposes of that Act or, where the land is land occupied by or for the purposes of a mosque, maimbara, dargah, karbala, takya or Muslim graveyard, if he is a Muslim

(7) A declaration made under sub-section (1) shall, unless and until it is withdrawn, be conclusive evidence of the fact that the area to which it relates is a controlled area

4 (1) The Deputy Commissioner shall deposit at his office and at the office of the Municipal Committee, New Delhi, and at such other places as he considers necessary, plans showing all lands declared to be controlled areas for the purposes of this Act, and setting forth the nature of the restrictions applicable to the land in any such controlled area

Plans of controlled areas to be deposited at certain offices

(2) The plans so deposited shall be available for inspection by the public free of charge at all reasonable times

5 No person shall erect or re-erect any building, or make or extend any excavation, or lay out any means of access to a road in a controlled area except with the previous permission of the Deputy Commissioner in writing

Restrictions on building etc., in a controlled area

6 (1) Every person desiring to obtain the permission referred to in section 5 shall make an application in writing to the Deputy Commissioner in such form and containing such information in respect of the building, excavation or means of access to which the application relates as may be prescribed

Application for permission to build etc and the grant or refusal of such permission

(2) On receipt of such application the Deputy Commissioner, after making such enquiry as he considers necessary, shall, by order in writing, either—

(a) grant the permission, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the order, or

(b) refuse to grant such permission

(3) When the Deputy Commissioner grants permission subject to conditions under clause (a) of sub section (2) or refuses to grant permission under clause (b) of sub-section (2), the conditions imposed or the grounds of refusal shall be such as are reasonable having regard to the circumstances of each case

(4) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re erection of a building, not being a dwelling house, if such building is required for purposes subservient to agriculture, nor shall the permission to erect or re-erect any such building be made subject to any conditions other than those which may be necessary to ensure that the building will be used solely for the purposes specified in the application for permission

(5) The Deputy Commissioner shall not refuse permission to the erection or re erection of a building which was in existence on the date on which the declaration under sub section (1) of section 3 was made, nor shall he impose any conditions in respect of such erection or re erection unless it involves the addition of one or more storeys to the building or the extension of the plinth area of the building by more than one eighth of the original plinth area, or there is a probability that the building will be used for the purpose other than that for which it was used on the date on which the said declaration was made

(6) If at the expiration of a period of three months after an application under sub section (1) has been made to the Deputy Commissioner no order in writing has been passed by the Deputy Commissioner permission shall be deemed to have been given without the imposition of any conditions

(7) The Deputy Commissioner shall maintain a register with sufficient particulars of all permissions given by him under this section and the register shall be available for inspection without charge by all persons interested and such persons shall be entitled to take extracts therefrom

7 (1) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Deputy Commissioner under sub section (2) of section 6 granting permission subject to conditions or refusing permission may within thirty days from the date of such order prefer an appeal to the Chief Commissioner

Right of appeal

(2) The order of the Chief Commissioner on appeal shall be final

8 (1) No person shall be entitled to claim compensation under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by an order—

Compensation

(a) refusing permission to make or extend an excavation or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant or

(b) refusing permission to lay out a means of access to a road or granting such permission but imposing conditions on the grant or

(c) granting permission to erect or re-erect a building but imposing conditions on the grant

(2) When an order has been made refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building any person who has exercised the right of appeal given by sub section (1) of section 7 may within three months of the date of the order of the Chief Commissioner make to the Chief Commissioner a claim for compensation on the ground that his interest in the land concerned is injuriously affected by the said order

Provided that no claim for compensation may be made under this sub section in respect of any land situated in a controlled area adjoining a road which has been constructed after the commencement of this Act or which was not at the commencement of this Act a road within the meaning of clause (4) of section 2

(3) On receipt of a claim under sub section (2) the Chief Commissioner shall either proceed to acquire the land concerned under the Land Acquisition Act 1894 or transfer the claim for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the said Act

Provided that in case the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land the claimant shall be entitled to be repaid by the acquiring authority the amount of expense which he may have properly incurred in connection with the preparation and submission of his claim for compensation under this section and in default of agreement such amount shall be determined by the authority deciding the value of the land in the proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act 1894

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the settlement of a claim by mutual agreement

9 If the Chief Commissioner decides to acquire the land under the Land Acquisition Act 1894 then notwithstanding anything contained in that Act—

Compulsory acquisition

(i) proceedings under section 5 A of that Act shall not be required

(ii) the notification under section 6 of that Act shall be published within six months from the date of institution of the claim failing which the claim shall be transferred for disposal to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under that Act

(iii) the market value of the land shall be assessed as though no declaration under section 3 (1) had been made in respect of the area in which it is situated and no restrictions upon its use and development had been imposed, any compensation already paid to the claimant or to any of his predecessors in interest for injurious affection being deducted from the market value as so assessed.

10. (1) When a claim is transferred for disposal under section 8 or section 9 to an officer exercising the powers of a Collector under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, such officer shall make an award determining the amount of compensation, if any, payable to the claimant.

(2) The amount of compensation awarded under sub-section (1) shall in no case exceed—

(a) the amount that would have been payable if the land had been acquired under section 9 or

(b) the difference between the market value of the land in its existing condition having regard to the restrictions actually imposed upon its use and development by the order refusing permission to erect or re-erect a building thereon, and its market value immediately before the publication under sub-section (2) of section 3 of the notification in pursuance of which the area in which it is situated was declared to be a controlled area, and no compensation shall be awarded under sub-section (1)—

(i) unless the claimant satisfies the officer making the award that proposals for the development of the land which at the date of the application under sub-section (1) of section 6 are immediately practicable, or would have been so, if this Act had not been passed, are prevented or injuriously affected by the restrictions imposed under this Act, or

(ii) if and in so far as the land is subject to substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment which were so in force at the date when the restrictions were imposed under this Act; or

(iii) if compensation in respect of the same restrictions in force under this Act or of substantially similar restrictions in force under some other enactment has already been paid in respect of the land to the claimant or to any predecessor in interest of the claimant.

(3) The provisions of Parts III, IV, V and VIII of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, shall so far as may be apply to an award made under sub-section (1) as though it were an award made under that Act.

11 Nothing in this Act shall affect the power of any authority to acquire land or to impose restrictions upon the use and development of land under any other enactment for the time being in force.

Saving for other enactments

12. (1) No land within a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a charcoal-kiln, pottery-kiln or lime-kiln and no land either within or outside a controlled area shall be used for the purposes of a brick-field or brick-kiln except under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a licence from the Chief Commissioner which shall be renewable annually.

Prohibition of use of any land as a brick field, etc., without a licence

(2) The Chief Commissioner may charge such fees for the grant and renewal of such licences and may impose such conditions in respect thereof as may be prescribed.

(3) No person shall be entitled to claim compensation under this or any other Act for any injury, damage or loss caused or alleged to have been caused by the refusal of a licence under sub-section (1).

Offences and penalties

13 (1) Any person who—

(a) erects or re erects any building or makes or extends any excavation or lays out any means of access to a road in contravention of the provisions of section 5 or in contravention of any conditions imposed by an order under section 6 or section 7, or

(b) uses any land in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 12, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees and, in the case of a continuing contravention, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day after the date of the first conviction during which he is proved to have persisted in the contravention

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1), the Deputy Commissioner may order any person who has committed a breach of the provisions of the said sub section to restore to its original state or to bring into conformity with the conditions which have been violated, as the case may be, any building or land in respect of which a contravention such as is described in the said sub section has been committed, and if such person fails to do so within three months of the order may himself take such measures as may appear to him to be necessary to give effect to the order, and the cost of such measures shall be recoverable from such person as an arrear of land revenue

Trial of offences

14 No Court inferior to that of a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under this Act.

Protection of persons acting under this Act

15 No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act

Savings

16 Nothing in this Act shall apply to—

(a) the erection or re erection of buildings upon land included in the inhabited site of any village as defined in the revenue records,

(b) the erection or re erection of a place of worship or a tomb or cenotaph or of a wall enclosing a graveyard, place of worship, cenotaph or samadh on land which is at the time a notification under sub section (2) of section 3 is published by the Chief Commissioner occupied by or for the purposes of such place of worship, tomb, samadh, cenotaph or graveyard,

(c) excavations (including wells) made in the ordinary course of agricultural operations,

(d) the construction of an unmetalled road intended to give access to land solely for agricultural purposes

Power to make rules

17 (1) The Chief Commissioner may make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters namely—

(a) the form in which applications under sub section (1) of section 6 shall be made and the information to be furnished in such applications,

(b) the regulation of the laying out of means of access to roads,

(c) the fees to be charged for the grant and renewal of licences under section 12 and the conditions governing such licences

(3) All rules made under this section shall be subject to the condition of previous publication, which publication shall be made in the official Gazette and in at least two newspapers printed in a language other than English, and the date to be specified under clause (3) of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, shall not be less than two months from the date on which the draft of the proposed rules was published.

THE DESTRUCTION OF RECORDS ACT (V OF 1917).

Year.	No	Short title	Amendment.
1917	V	The Destruction of Records Act, 1917	Repealed in part, XII of 1927.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill:—

"In present conditions documents are required to be placed in the custody of Government officers under a large number of enactments. In many of these Acts no provision exists for the destruction of such of them as have become valueless. For example, there is no provision for the destruction of documents lodged with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under the Registration of Societies Act (XXI of 1860), the Provident Insurance Societies Act (V of 1912) the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act (VI of 1912), and the Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913); nor could such papers be dealt with under the Destruction of Records Act (III of 1879), as it stands. It is accordingly proposed to repeal and re-enact the Act of 1879 so as to make it conform to modern requirements. The principal feature of the draft Bill is that it empowers certain authorities to frame rules for the disposal by destruction or otherwise of documents which they may consider not of sufficient public value to justify preservation, and provides for the delegation to subordinate officers of the rule-making powers vested in the Local Government. The rule-making powers already vested in the High Courts and the Chief Controlling Revenue authorities by Act III of 1879 will not be affected by this Bill. To avoid overlapping, it is proposed to repeal the provisions of the enactments mentioned in this Schedule."—(Fort St George Gazette, Part III, 20th February, 1917, p. 2.)

REPEAL OF ENACTMENTS ²

THE DISSOLUTION OF MUSLIM MARRIAGES ACT (VIII OF 1939).

[17th March, 1939.]

An Act to consolidate and clarify the provisions of Muslim law relating to suits for dissolution of marriage by women married under Muslim law and to remove doubts as to the effect of the renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman on her marriage tie.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and clarify the provisions of Muslim law relating to suits for dissolution of marriage by women married under Muslim law and to remove doubts as to the effect of the renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman on her marriage tie; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE DISSOLUTION OF MUSLIM MARRIAGES ACT, 1939.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

LEG. REF.

¹Substituted by the A.O., 1937.

²Repealed by the Repealing Act (XII of 1927).

2. A woman married under Muslim law shall be entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on any one or more of the following grounds, namely

(i) that the whereabouts of the husband have not been known for a period of four years,

(ii) that the husband has neglected or has failed to provide for her maintenance for a period of two years,

(iii) that the husband has been sentenced to imprisonment for a period of seven years or upwards,

(iv) that the husband has failed to perform, without reasonable cause his marital obligations for a period of three years,

(v) that the husband was impotent at the time of the marriage and continues to be so,

(vi) that the husband has been insane for a period of two years or is suffering from leprosy or a virulent venereal disease,

(vii) that she having been given in marriage by her father or other guardian before she attained the age of fifteen years repudiated the marriage before attaining the age of eighteen years

Provided that the marriage has not been consummated

(viii) that the husband treats her with cruelty, that is to say,—

(a) habitually assaults her or makes her life miserable by cruelty of conduct even if such conduct does not amount to physical ill treatment, or

(b) associates with women of evil repute or leads an infamous life, or

(c) attempts to force her to lead an immoral life or

(d) disposes of her property or prevents her exercising her legal rights over it, or

(e) obstructs her in the observance of her religious profession or practice or

(f) if he has more wives than one does not treat her equitably in accordance with the injunctions of the Qoran

(ix) on any other ground which is recognised as valid for the dissolution of marriages under Muslim law

Provided that—

(a) no decree shall be passed on ground (iii) until the sentence has become final

(b) a decree passed on ground (i) shall not take effect for a period of six months from the date of such decree and if the husband appears either in person or through an authorized agent within that period and satisfies the Court that he is prepared to perform his conjugal duties the Court shall set aside the said decree and

NOTES

Sec 2 (ii) RETROSPECTIVE EFFECT.—When an Act is intended to provide a remedy for what is considered to be an existing unsatisfactory state of affairs the intention is clearly that the remedy should be applied even though this may involve giving retrospective effect to some of its provisions. Consequently S 2 (ii) must be taken as intended to apply with retrospective effect 194 I C 567=1941 Lah 167

FAILURE TO MAINTAIN.—IF MUST BE WILFUL.—There is nothing in the wording of S 2 (ii) to suggest that the failure to maintain the wife must be wilful. Divorce can be granted on grounds which do not necessarily involve any deliberate default on the part of the husband. It is absolutely immaterial whether the failure to maintain is due to poverty failing health loss of work imprisonment or to any other cause whatever 194 I C 567=1941 Lah 167

(c) before passing a decree on ground (v) the Court shall, on application by the husband, make an order requiring the husband to satisfy the Court within a period of one year from the date of such order that he has ceased to be impotent, and if the husband so satisfies the Court within such period, no decree shall be passed on the said ground

Notice to be served on heirs of the husband when the husband's whereabouts are not known

3 In a suit to which clause (i) of section 2 applies—

(a) the names and addresses of the persons who would have been the heirs of the husband under Muslim law if he had died on the date of the filing of the plaint shall be stated in the plaint,

(b) notice of the suit shall be served on such persons, and

(c) such persons shall have the right to be heard in the suit

Provided that paternal uncle and brother of the husband, if any, shall be cited as party even if he or they are not heirs

Effect of conversion to another faith 4 The renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman or her conversion to a faith other than Islam shall not by itself operate to dissolve her marriage

Provided that after such renunciation, or conversion the woman shall be entitled to obtain a decree for the dissolution of her marriage on any of the grounds mentioned in section 2

Provided further that the provisions of this section shall not apply to a woman converted to Islam from some other faith who re-embraes her former faith

Rights to dower to be affected 5 Nothing contained in this Act shall affect any right which a married woman may have under Muslim law to her dower or any part thereof on the dissolution of her marriage

Repeal of section 5 of Act XXVI of 1937

Year	No	Short title	Amendment
1869	IV	The Indian Divorce Act 1869	Repealed in part, VII of 1870, XII of 1873, IV of 1901, S 8 Amended, VI of 1909, X of 1912, XVIII of 1919, XI of 1923, XXXII of 1925, XXV of 1926, XXXIV of 1926, XV of 1927, XXX of 1927, Act VIII of 1935, Supplement Temporarily in Sind Bom Act VIII of 1930

PREFATORY NOTE—This Act is framed on the corresponding English Statute Law

This Act extends to India the principal provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1857 (20 and 21 Vic C 85) as amended by the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1859 (22 and 23 Vic, C 61) and the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1860 (23 and 24 Vic, C 144) and the Matrimonial Causes Act 1866 (29 and 30 Vic, C 32). It also embodies many rulings of Sir Cresswell and Lord Penzance

(See Statement of Objects and Reasons.) Mr. Maine in moving that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend that law relating to Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in India be taken into consideration, said—"This measure is obviously one of great social importance, . . .

. . . It is substantially a consolidation measure. It puts together the English Statute Law on the subject in a more orderly form and in clearer language, and it incorporates the recent decisions of the Divorce Court. But, in the main, its principles are those of the statute regulating the jurisdiction of the English Court of Divorce and Matrimonial Causes"—[26th March, 1869—Fort St. George Gazette (Supplement), March, 1869 p. 44]

The object of the Act was to give effect to the policy embodied in the High Courts Act passed in 1861 (24 & 25 Vic., c. 104), and the Letters Patent issued by Her Majesty for constituting the High Courts. The object of the High Courts Act seemed to have been, not so much to create new branches of jurisdiction, as to constitute and redistribute the power which already existed. The 9th clause gave power to Her Majesty to confer on the High Court such matrimonial jurisdiction as she thought fit, but Her Majesty did not attempt to confer on the High Court such a jurisdiction as was exercised by the Divorce Court in England. The Secretary of State, therefore, requested the Governor General to introduce a measure, conferring a jurisdiction on the High Courts here similar to that exercised by the Divorce Court sitting in London. Hence the Act. (See the remarks of Mr. Maine in moving for leave to introduce that Bill.)

Thus it would be seen that the object of the Divorce Act was to place the Matrimonial Law administered by the High Courts, in the exercise of their original jurisdiction, on the same footing as the Matrimonial Law administered by the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England.

The 9th section of the Act of Parliament for establishment of High Courts of Judicature in India (24 & 25 Vic., c. 104) provided that the High Courts shall exercise such matrimonial jurisdiction as Her Majesty by Letters Patent shall grant and direct. Under the authority thus conferred by Parliament, the 35th section of the Letters Patent constituting the High Courts of Judicature provided as follows—

"And we do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall have jurisdiction in matters matrimonial between our subjects professing the Christian religion, and that such jurisdiction shall extend to the local limits within which the Supreme Court now has ecclesiastical jurisdiction provided always that nothing herein contained shall be held to interfere with the exercise of any jurisdiction in matters matrimonial by any Court not established by Royal Charter within the said Presidency lawfully possessed thereof."

In the Despatch of the Secretary of State transmitting the Letters Patent, 33rd and 34th paragraphs are to the following effect—

"Her Majesty's Government are desirous of placing the Christian subjects of the Crown, within the Presidency, in the same position under the High Court, as to matters matrimonial, in general as they now are under the Supreme Court, and thus they believe to be effected by clause 35 of the Charter. But they consider it expedient that the High Court should possess, in addition, the power of decreeing divorce which the Supreme Court does not possess, in other words, that the High Court should have the same jurisdiction as the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, established, in virtue of the Act 20 & 21 Vic., c. 83, and in regard to which further provisions were made by 22 & 23 Vic., c. 61 and 23 & 24 Vic., c. 144. The Act of Parliament for establishing the High Courts, however, does not purport to give to the Crown the power of importing into the Charter all the provisions of the Divorce Court Act, and some of them the Crown clearly could not so import, such, for instance, as those which prescribe the period of re-marriage and those which exempt from punishment clergymen refusing to re-marry adulterers. All these are, in truth, matters for Indian Legislation, and I request that you immediately take the subject into your consideration and introduce into your Council a bill for conferring upon the High Court, the jurisdiction and powers of the Divorce Court in England, one of the provisions of which should be to give an appeal to the Privy Council in those cases in which the Divorce Court Act gives an appeal to the House of Lords."

The object of the provision at the end of clause 35 is to obviate any doubt that may possibly arise as to whether, by vesting the High Court with the powers of the High Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, it was intended to take away from the Court within the Division of the Presidency not established by Royal Charter, any jurisdiction which they might have in matters matrimonial, as for instance, in a suit for alimony between Armenians or Native Christians. With any such jurisdiction it is not intended to interfere."

In addition to the Act of Parliament mentioned by the Secretary of State as regulating the jurisdiction of the English Divorce Court, the Statute 25 & 26 Vic., c. 81, had been passed in the year (1862). The object of this statute was to render perpetual 23 & 24 Vic., c. 144, the duration of which had been originally limited to two years.

The draft of a bill had been prepared to give effect to the Secretary of State's instructions, but some variations from the English Statutes in respect of procedure had to be adopted.

With a view to uniformity in practice in the several branches of jurisdiction the Bill provided that the procedure of the Code of Civil Procedure shall be followed, instead of the Rules of Her Majesty's Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, and it also omitted the provision in 20 & 21 Vic., c. 83 respecting the occasional trial of questions of fact by juries.

There were also some other variations of a minor and verbal character

The Bill was then introduced into the Council, and after several amendments was passed into Act IV of 1869 (See Statement of Objects and Reasons to the Indian Divorce Act, 1869)

THE DIVORCE ACT (IV OF 1869) ¹

[26th February, 1869]

An Act to amend the law relating to Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in India

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the divorce of persons professing the Christan religion, and to confer upon certain Courts jurisdiction in matters matrimonial, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

It has been declared in force in Upper Burma generally (except the Shan States) by the Burma Laws Act (XIII of 1898), S. 4 (1) and Sch. I, in the Arakan Hill District, see Schedule to the Arakan Hill District Laws Regulation (IX of 1874) in Angul and the Khondmals, Schedule to the Angul District Regulation (I of 1894), in the Sonthal Parganas by S. 3 of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872) as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation (III of 1899), ibid, in British Baluchistan by the Baluchistan Laws Regulation (I of 1890).

It has been declared by notification under S. 3

(a) of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874), to be in force in the following Scheduled Districts namely:—

The Districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga and Manbhum, and Pargana Dhalbhum and the Kolhan in the District of Singhbhum, see Gazette of India, 1881, Pt. 1, p. 504.

(The District of Lohardaga included that time the present district of Palamau which was separated in 1894. The District of Lohardaga is now called the Ranchi District, see Calcutta Gazette, 1899 Pt. 1, p. 44.)

The Scheduled Districts in Ganjam and Vizagapatam, see Fort St. George Gazette, 1893, Pt. 1, p. 666.

It has been extended by notification under S. 5 of the same Act to the North-Western Provinces Tarai, see Gazette of India, 1876, Pt. 1, p. 503.

THE LIMITATION ACT does not apply to suits under this Act, see the Indian Limitation Act (IX of 1908), S. 29 (2).

NOTES

Sec. 1.—Jurisdiction in matrimonial causes was not based on a so-called matrimonial domicile when the Indian Councils Act was passed in 1861. 47 B 843=25 Bom L R 945=1923 B 321. See also 143 I C 618=1933 Sind 70, 1933 A L J 8=1933 A 39. Act does not confer jurisdiction on the Court to dissolve the marriages of non-domiciled parties. 47 B 843. Relief not involving the status of the parties may be granted under the Act if the conditions of residence are satisfied. 47 B 843. Municipal Law of a country may lay down its own tests for creating jurisdiction within its own boundaries even in cases where the status of the parties is involved. 47 B 843. Whether Act applies to British subjects in Native States, see 10 B 422. Relief under the Act cannot be granted to Jews. 34 C W N 319=57 C 1089=1930 C 558. POWERS OF LEGISLATURE.—Divorce Act is and always has been within the legislative powers conferred upon the Indian legislature by the Indian Councils Act 1861. 47 B 843. There is a definite established practice in the Court for divorce and matrimonial causes in England that the evidence of the husband or the wife alone is never to be accepted without corroboration either by witnesses or at least by strong surrounding circumstances. This salutary rule will be followed in India. 1935 O W N 103=1935 Oudh 133. Wild rumours and baseless suspicions cannot take the place of legal testimony which is required to substantiate an allegation of unchastity or immorality. Vague and indefinite evidence is insufficient for the purpose. A L R 1935 L 112.

DUTY OF COURT IN EX PARTE PROCEEDINGS.—

When in an application for divorce neither the respondent nor the co-respondent seek to resist the petition the duty of special circumspection is thrown upon the Court. The Court has discretion in certain specified events either to pronounce a decree for divorce or to dismiss the petition. The exercise of that discretion must be regular and systematic. For this purpose the Judge should make free use of his power to look into all the necessary circumstances even though his attention is not called to them by the party. The danger of collusion between the parties must always be borne in mind especially when there has been a long delay in applying to the Court for relief. EFFECT OF AMENDING ACT OF 1926.—

By the Amending Act the jurisdiction of the Indian Courts under S 2 of the Act, has been taken away only in respect of making decrees of dissolution of marriage between parties who are not domiciled in India. The other reliefs under the Act and the power to make decrees of nullity of marriage remain unaffected, the only requirements in the latter case being that the parties profess the Christian religion, the marriage has been solemnized in India and the petitioner is resident in India at the time of presenting the petition. 130 I C 524=1931 L 245. Defect in the Act pointed out and amendment of the Act suggested. See 62 C 82=39 C W N 95. As a result of the amendment in 1926 of S 2 of the Act, Courts in India are permitted to make decrees of nullity of marriage even though the parties presenting the petition are not domiciled in India. I L R (1937) 1 Cal 417=41 C W N 268. The effect of S 2 of the Act is that so far as a suit for dissolution of marriage is concerned a domiciled British subject resident beyond British India, i.e., in Mysore can invoke the jurisdiction of the Madras High Court, but as regards a suit for nullity of marriage any person resident in India who has been married in India can bring such a suit in the High Court. 59 M 509 and 518=1936 M 324=70 M L J 321 (F B).

JURISDICTION.—To grant relief under the Act, it must be proved that the conditions of S 2 are strictly complied with. See 29 C W N 330=52 C 379=1925 C 585 (F B). See also 52 C 566=89 I C 611=1925 C 874. Courts in India are not empowered to decree dissolution of the marriage between persons not domiciled within their jurisdiction. 1923 R 223. The provisions of S 2 as to the residence, apply to cases when the parties are domiciled in India but where the parties are domiciled in England, they cannot override the express provisions in S 7. (Ibid.) See also 143 I C 618=1933 Sind 70. But as a result of the amendment of 1926, Courts in India are permitted to make decrees of nullity of marriage even though the parties preventing the petition are not domiciled in India. 169 I C 948=41 C W N 268=I L R (1937) 1 C 417. Per Stone and Mockett, JJ. (Wadsworth, J, dissenting).—The proper form of a decree to be passed in the first instance in a suit on the original side of the High Court for declaration of nullity of a marriage is that of a decree nisi and not a decree absolute. 59 M. 509 and 518=1936 M 324=70 M L J 321 (F B). Court should enquire and set out in the judgment facts relied on as conferring jurisdiction. 32 A 293=5 I C 871=7 A L J 193.

DOMICILE.—In a case of divorce, it is important to consider the question of domicile from the outset, because it goes to the very root of jurisdiction 58 C. 1332=135 I C 445=1932 C. 161 See also 138 I C. 611=1932 L. 468 (S B.) It is necessary to see that there is proper proof of Indian domicile before giving a decree under the Act. The fact that the petitioner is shown to have been born in India and residing there is not sufficient to prove Indian domicile 60 C. 601=144 I C 827=37 C W N 255 (S B.) Domicile in India at the time of the presentation of the petition for divorce is an absolute necessary condition of jurisdiction so far as regards divorce. The domicile of the parties means in practice the domicile of the husband. The burden of proving that a person has changed the domicile is on the person who alleges it. Where the petitioner was shown to have come to India to earn a living and intended to remain there so long as an opportunity to obtain a livelihood was open to him but he had formed no intention to settle in any one place. Held, that there being no intention to reside, and establish himself in India for the rest of his days it could not be said that the petitioner was domiciled in India. 56 C. 530=1929 C 599. The question of domicile should be treated with care, for unless the parties to the marriage are domiciled in India at the time when the petition is presented there is no jurisdiction in a District Court to dissolve the marriage. Residence alone for however long a period, is by no means the test and a safer guide is to enquire where the person, whose domicile is in question, intends to end his days. Every independent person can acquire a domicile of choice by the combination of residence and intention of permanent or indefinite residence but not otherwise. To these may be added the further propositions that the presumption of law is against a change of domicile, which must be proved by the person alleging it, and that a wife's domicile is the domicile of her husband. Where a European claims to be domiciled in India, it will be pertinent to enquire where his father lived and died or resides, as the case may be, where he and his father were born, the circumstances in which he came to and resides in India, which will assist in ascertaining whether there exists an animus revertendi or an animus manendi his object in residing in India, and generally as to the conditions under which he lives and his habits of life. 58 C. 259=1931 C 383 (S B.)

Domicile must be decided on the facts as they exist and not on future possibilities. Every person must have a domicile and until the petitioner abandons his present domicile in India and becomes domiciled in some other country, he will remain within the jurisdiction of the Indian Courts. 1031 O 126=8 O W N 177. Where the petitioner alleged that he had been in India for 15 years and that he had no intention of returning to England and the respondent also stated that she intended to settle in India and it was proved that they had lived in India since the date of their marriage. Held that their statements that they had made India their domicile could be accepted and the petition for divorce be entertained. 7 R. 313=119 I C. 220=1929 R. 216 (S B.) The mere statement of the petitioner, who is 42 years old and is in this country, because he is in the service of the Railway that he intends to continue to reside here is not proof of his domicile in India. 174 I C. 992=1938 Lah 293. Domicile is of two kinds domicile of origin and domicile of choice. The domicile of origin is irrevocably ascertained at the parties' nativity. A domicile of choice, he can indeed acquire, but the domicile of origin remains in abeyance and is at any moment ready to revive. Every presumption is to be made in favour of the original domicile. It is for the party who relies on a change of domicile to prove a double intention the intention of abandoning his domicile of origin and the intention of adopting the domicile of choice. A domicile of choice is not established by mere assertion. The petitioner left his native land under oeders and not of his own free will. He came to India in obedience to other authority and not in the exercise of any choice of his own. Being thus transplanted he did not strike root. The petitioner, moreover, was neither a house-holder, nor any member of any club in India, nor was he permanently employed. Held, that the petitioner was not domiciled in India. 1933 Sind 70=143 I C. 618. If the domicile of the parties be English the Courts in India have no jurisdiction to dissolve their marriage notwithstanding that it was solemnized in India and that the adultery was committed in India. 1933 S 70=143 I C 618. It is necessary to see that in cases of divorce there is proper proof of Indian domicile before giving a decree under the Act. The fact that the petitioner is shown to have been born in India and residing there is not sufficient to prove Indian domicile. 60 C. 601=144 I C 827=37 C W N 255=1933 C 524.

RESIDENCE.—Residence in India is sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction under the Act, though the party retains a foreign domicile. 40 C. 215=17 C W N 491, 53 C. 282=1926 C 871. See also 5 L. 147 (161) (F B.) Intention has nothing whatever to do with the question of residence. Whether or not a person resides in a particular district is a question of fact and depends in each case upon the evidence. Mere casual or temporary visits do not constitute "residence" within the meaning of the Act. C, a Railway employee, had official quarters provided for him by the Railway Company at Gondia, in the C.P. He had a bungalow there, and in the same compound an office. C had himself furnished the bungalow allotted to him. His position as inspector entailed a good deal of travelling over the Railway line, and in every month he used to be for several days away from Gondia. But when in Gondia he lived at the quarters assigned to him. Shortly before the petition was filed, C came to Allahabad for two days and thereafter every month for the same period, and on each occasion he saw his counsel in connection with his case. It was also alleged that he busied himself in trying to discover some portion of land which might be suitable for carrying on farming operations when he would retire from the Railway and set up business as a farmer and as a breeder of dogs. Held, that C had failed to establish that he was residing in Allahabad and his residence with in the meaning fixed place of residence elsewhere, but where a person has no fixed place of residence the place where he actually lives must be taken to be the place where he resides. The parties, husband and wife, belonged to Mangalore in South Kanara, were married in Mangalore, and were living there on more than one occasion. They last resided together at Mangalore until the husband left for Rangoon where he was employed, but he had no fixed place of residence in Rangoon. Held, that the husband must be deemed to be residing in the place where he actually lived, i.e., in Mangalore, and the District Court of South Kanara had therefore jurisdiction to entertain an application presented by the wife under Ss 7, 18 and 19 of the Divorce Act for a declaration that the marriage was null and void and for maintenance. 1940 Mad 584 = (1940) 1 M.L.J. 621.

Sec 4—[See also under S 7.] The jurisdiction of the Patna High Court in matters matrimonial is only such jurisdiction as is comprised within the provision of the Divorce Act, 72 I.C. 657=1923 P. 301. A suit for a mere declaration that the plaintiff's marriage with her deceased husband's brother is valid and legal is not sustainable on the matrimonial side of the Patna High Court (Ibid). Enforcement of decrees or orders made heretofore by Supreme or High Court

Madras or Bombay sitting on the ecclesiastical side, or of any of the said High Courts sitting in the exercise of their matrimonial jurisdiction, respectively, in any cause or matter matrimonial, may be enforced and dealt with by the said High Courts, respectively, as hereinafter mentioned, in like manner as if such decree or order had been originally made under this Act by the Court so enforcing or dealing with the same

6 All suits and proceedings in causes and matters matrimonial, which when this Act comes into operation are pending in any High Court, shall be dealt with and decided by such Court, so far as may be, as if they had been originally instituted therein under this Act.

7 Subject to the provisions contained in this Act, the High Courts and District Courts shall, in all suits and proceedings hereunder, act and give relief on principles and rules which, in the opinion of the said Courts, are as nearly as may be conformable to the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England for the time being acts and gives relief:

NOTES

Sec 7.—[See also notes under Ss 4, 17, 18 and 19]

SCOPE OF SECTION—S 7 is a residuary section intended to provide for any matters which by inadvertence or otherwise are not expressly dealt with in the Act. It is not unusual in statutory drafting to insert provisions of this nature ex majore cautela more especially where an attempt is being made to codify in this country an unfamiliar branch of English law. 17 B 843—25 Bom L R 945=77 I C 654. The expression "rules and principles" points rather to the rules and principles on which the Courts deal with matrimonial cases in requiring a certain degree of evidence and other cognate matters. (Ibid) The words "rules and principles" in S 7 have reference to rules that are quasi-substantive rather than mere adjective law. 7 Bur L T 121=23 I C 242. A marriage to be recognized as such by the Courts of a Christian country must be a voluntary union for life of one man with one woman to the exclusion of all others although it need not necessarily have been celebrated in accordance with Christian rites or ceremonies. A marriage contracted in a country where polygamy is lawful, between a man and a woman who profess a faith which allows polygamy is not a marriage as understood in England and the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes under S 7 will not recognize such a marriage as valid. Therefore a marriage contracted between parties according to Buddhist law which recognizes polygamy, is not such a marriage as entitles the parties to relief under the Divorce Act although they may have become Christians subsequently to the marriage. 1940 Rang L R 417=1940 Rang 67 (S B). See also I L R (1939) 2 C 60=1940 C 75 (Marriage between Mahomedan husband and Roman Catholic wife—Consent of wife obtained by fraud).

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION—Though an Indian Act should not ordinarily be construed in the light of statutes enacted by another legislature, yet S 7 of the Act makes it abundantly clear that the legislative authority in enacting the Indian Divorce Act had in view the principles and rules upon which the Court in England then acted and gave relief. It is therefore not irrelevant to enquire into the English practice with a view to the resolution of any question arising under the Act. 54 M 774=35 C W N 1185—1931 P C 234=61 M L J 367 (P C).

APPLICABILITY—S 7 applies not only to the grant of relief but also to questions of procedure. 55 I C 269=12 Bur L T 199. See also 52 C 566=1925 C 874, 53 C 282=1926 C 871. The words "principles and rules" in S 7 of the Act mean principles and rules of law of evidence, of interpretation of practices and procedure but not statutory provisions or rules. The principles and rules to be applied are subject to the provisions of the Act and they consequently cannot run counter to it. They can neither cut down the provision of the Act nor supply any form of relief not provided by it. It is impossible to hold that "rules" in the section means the statutory rules in force for the time being in England. See on appeal 31 L W 97=1930 M 154=58 M L J 29. See also 13 P 129=1934 P 475 57 A 884=1936 A 488. Under S 7, the provisions of which must be strictly complied with, Courts in India are required to give relief on principles and rules which are as nearly as may be conformable to the principles and rules on which the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England for the time being, acts and gives relief. One of these principles is that a decree for dissolution cannot be made merely on admission and without recording evidence. Even if the Court is satisfied that the petitioner has established his case by evidence, it is necessary for it to go further and find whether there has been collusion, and whether the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to or conniving at the adultery or has condoned the same. Having found on these questions, in favour of the petitioner, the Court is not bound to give a decree if it finds that the petitioner has been guilty of adultery or has been guilty of unreasonable delay in presenting the petition or of having wilfully separated himself from the other party before the adultery complained of.

Any wife may present a petition to the District Court or to the High Court, praying that her marriage may be dissolved on the ground that, since the solemnization thereof, her husband has exchanged his profession of Christianity for the profession of some other religion, and gone through a form of marriage with another woman ;

to jurisdiction of Oudh Chief Court, see 1926 O 319=94 I C 952=3 O W N 406

DOMICILE—Before granting a decree for divorce under S 10, a clear finding as to domicile of parties should be arrived at, and where the petitioner has claimed divorce on the ground that her husband committed an unnatural offence upon her, there should be some evidence and a finding as to the unnatural offence alleged 198 I C 611=1932 L 468 (1) (S B)

'RESIDE'—MEANING—A person who has an abode elsewhere, but who comes to a place for a short period and with a fixed purpose for being within the jurisdiction of a Court cannot be said to 'reside' there 12 L 214=1930 L 916 In this section the word 'together' governs only the words last resided and not the word 'reside' The Act therefore gives the petitioning spouse the choice of selecting his forum either as (1) the district where the parties had last resided together or (2) the district within the local limits of which, both the husband and the wife, though living separately "reside" at the date of the presentation of the petition 1930 L 916=12 L 214

CHANGE OF RELIGION—Under this section change of religion by the husband and his subsequent remarriage entitles his first wife to dissolution of the marriage 14 I C 192

ADULTERY—In a suit for dissolution of marriage the Court may presume adultery if it is satisfied that guilty attachment subsisted between the parties and that they had opportunities to have guilty intercourse 62 I C 782 See also 55 A 597=1933 A 427 The direct fact of adultery need not be proved In a divorce case, the correspondence between the respondent and the co-respondent is very important evidence 62 I C 782 See also 31 N L R 184=156 I C 1008=1935 N 49 (S B) It is a fundamental rule that it is not necessary to prove the direct fact of the adultery In every case almost, the fact is inferred from circumstances that lead to it by fair inference as a necessary conclusion, and unless this were the case and unless this were so held, no protection whatever could be given to marital rights But the circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just man to the conclusion 55 A 597=1933 A L J 1108=1933 A 427, 8 O W N 168=132 I C 773=1931 O 259 See also 1935 N 49 (S B) Admission in a letter from the husband of adultery is not a sufficient proof of adultery 31 I C 264 (F B) See also 49 B 368=27 Bom L R 251, 51 B 1026 (1930, 1932) (Wife's admission of adultery—Caution to be exercised) If a husband or wife contracts a venereal disease during the marriage but fails to show that the origin of the disease was innocent, adultery is established if it is proved that the wife or husband was free from that disease and could not possibly have communicated the same to him or her 12 L 95=1930 L 828 See also 1933 L 507 In India, in proceedings for divorce instituted by a wife, a Court has no power to allow the alleged adultery to be made a party, 10 R 115=1932 R 73 In a divorce suit filed by the husband on the ground of adultery the marriage took place long after the filing of the petition, and the evidence of non-access was offered by the husband Held, that the evidence of the husband of non access was admissible against his wife 150 I C 445=1934 A 618 (S B) A husband praying for the dissolution of his marriage on the ground that his wife had been guilty of adultery, is entitled to rely upon adultery committed by her outside India 45 C W N 219

DELAY IN APPLYING FOR DIVORCE—When a charge of adultery is proved the first thing to which a Court directs its attention is the delay which has occurred since the husband became aware of the fact Delay is not by itself a bar to the suit but it is a most material matter, which unexplained, would lead the Court to conclusions fatal to the petitioner's relief 26 S L R 423=1933 S 27

'BIGAMY WITH ADULTERY' AND 'MARRIAGE WITH ANOTHER WOMAN WITH ADULTERY'—Bigamy with adultery is specifically defined in the Act as meaning adultery with the same woman with whom the bigamy was committed, but marriage with another woman with adultery is not defined The definition contained in S 3 (8) merely deals with marriage with another woman which is defined as meaning marriage of any person being married to any other person during the life of the former wife, whether the second marriage shall have taken place within the Dominions of His Majesty or elsewhere Therefore, if a man after such second marriage cohabits with such woman, the first wife is entitled to apply for dissolution of marriage, just as she would have been entitled to apply if the husband would have been guilty of "bigamy" with adultery 136 I C 262=1932 L 116

CRUELTY—Though cruelty in its popular sense is undoubtedly a ground for divorce, yet that is not the only kind of cruelty which will be a ground for divorce There may be a case of cruelty in which either bodily injury has occurred or there may be cases in which the evidence is such as to lead to an inference of a reasonable apprehension that bodily injury would result, and in case of cruelty it is necessary that the evidence of the petitioner should be corroborated 13 P 129=15 Pat L T 353=1934 P 475 Repeated acts of cruelty by a husband taken together, entitles the wife to a decree for divorce, though each act by itself may not be sufficient ground, and no formal complaint or threat of divorce proceedings was made as regards each of them 36 I C 982=10 Bur

L.T. 228 Cruelty is conduct of such a character as to have caused danger to life, limb, or health (bodily or mental) or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such danger. In order to establish a case of cruelty against her husband, a wife must prove more than isolated acts of violence. No doubt the degree of violence varies in accordance with the status of the parties. 107 I.C. 184=1928 O. 114. See 139 I.C. 618=1932 O. 231. The cruelty must be dangerous to life, limb or health, bodily or mental or a reasonable apprehension of it. 36 I.C. 381=10 Bur L.T. 182, 139 I.C. 618=1932 O. 231. Isolated assaults that arise on the spur of the moment on some real or fancied provocation do not constitute cruelty. 1928 O. 114=107 I.C. 184. To constitute legal cruelty there must be danger to life, limb or health, bodily or mental or a reasonable apprehension of it. In order to establish cruelty against the husband, the wife must prove more than isolated acts of violence. (1928 O. 114. Rel. on) 1933 L. 728. A single severe assault resulting from a dispute as to jewellery would not amount to such cruelty but adultery of the husband affords ground for judicial separation. 107 I.C. 184. Threat of physical force to a pregnant wife amounts to legal cruelty. 47 A. 50=83 I.C. 167=1925 A. 237. See also 1933 L. 728. 53 C. 436. Subsequent cruelty may operate to revive condoned adultery. See 39 C. 395=15 I.C. 886. 47 A. 50. 83 I.C. 167. 53 C. 436=96 I.C. 932=1926 C. 864. As to the amount of cruelty to be proved see 11 I.C. 784 supra. Where a husband who has a loathsome disease and knowing that, he compels his wife to sexual intercourse with him against her will even though the forcible intercourse might not result in communicating the disease cruelty must be held to be proved. 1930 L. 828=12 L. 95=126 I.C. 527. See also 1933 L. 507.

DESERTION—To constitute desertion there must be a cessation of co-habitation and an intention on the part of the guilty party to desert the other. Where a husband brings a concubine into the house where his wife is living and the wife has to leave the house in consequence, the husband under the circumstances is guilty of deserting the wife so as to constitute a good ground for divorce at her instance. 155 I.C. 553=41 L.W. 534=68 M.L.J. 606. Desertion implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it. 5 Bur L.T. 85=15 I.C. 353. There is no abandonment against the wish of the wife where she herself left owing to intemperate habits of her husband. 31 I.C. 264=8 L.B.R. 106 (F.B.). A wife who seeks to prove desertion must give evidence of conduct on the part of the husband showing unmistakably that such desertion was against her wish actively expressed. The husband must be proved to have wilfully absented himself from her in spite of her wish. Subsequent conduct cannot transform what was a voluntary separation into desertion by the husband. 31 I.C. 264. No decree can be passed on a petition for divorce made before the two years' period of desertion is over, as it is premature and without a cause of action. 6 Bur L.T. 177=21 I.C. 250. The desertion required to be proved under S. 10 of the Act must be desertion within the meaning of S. 3 (9) of that Act, viz., a wilful abstention by the husband against the wish of the wife. 165 I.C. 392=1936 O.W.N. 938. When there has been desertion by the husband of his wife for a long time, a subsequent association between the parties, during which the parties, though living under the same roof live as strangers cannot amount to a break in the desertion. Desertion is not broken unless the husband offers to the wife a home on terms on which a self-respecting wife can accept. 177 I.C. 940=40 Bom L.R. 900=1938 Bom. 425.

ADULTERY AND CRUELTY—In order that a wife can have a marriage dissolved, it is necessary that there should be proof of adultery and cruelty on the part of the husband. 1933 L. 728. In a suit for dissolution of marriage, it was proved that the husband had contracted gonorrhoea and had communicated it to the wife and that the husband was guilty of cruelty. Held, that the husband was guilty of adultery and that with the charge of cruelty was sufficient for the wife to obtain a decree nisi for the dissolution of the marriage. 1933 L. 507. See also 12 L. 95. A wife who has obtained a judicial separation on the ground of her husband's adultery is entitled to a dissolution of the marriage on proof that her husband has been guilty of adultery after the separation and that he has been guilty of cruelty to her after separation. 45 I.C. 914=11 Bur L.T. 227. See also 1927 O. 34=98 I.C. 1019.

ADULTERY AND DESERTION—For a decree for divorce adultery of the husband together with desertion without reasonable cause for two years or upwards or with such cruelty as without adultery would entitle the wife to a divorce, must be proved. 36 I.C. 981=10 Bur L.T. 182. As to condonation of adultery, see 1928 O. 114=107 I.C. 184. Marriage with another woman and adultery. See 33 P.L.R. 339=1932 Lah. 116.

DISCRETION OF COURT—Court has a discretion to grant dissolution on a petition by the wife even though the petitioner had been subsequent to desertion by the husband leading a life of prostitution for some time, if the Court comes to the conclusion that such prostitution was necessitated by destitution and that her conduct was otherwise free from blame. 57 C. 891=1930 C. 729. Condonation in part of matrimonial offences is impliedly conditioned upon the future good behaviour of the offending spouse. If thereafter the offences are repeated the right to make the condoned offences a ground for divorce revives. To constitute such revival the same offence need not be repeated, and misconduct is sufficient. Where the husband condoned the wife's adultery and subsequently the latter was guilty of desertion, held that the husband's right to claim divorce revived. 7 R. 313=1929 R. 216 (S.B.). See also 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 389.

JOINDER OF PARTIES—In proceedings by wife for divorce, the alleged adulteress is not a proper party. 10 R. 115=1932 R. 75.

PLEADINGS AND PROOF—Evidence in divorce proceedings to prove the case of the petitioner or has been guilty of incestuous adultery, or of bigamy with adultery, must be confined to the pleas set out in the petition. Consequently it is essential, as laid in S 10 to insist that the petition for divorce shall state distinctly, as the nature of the case permits, the facts upon which the claim to have the marriage dissolved is founded 193 I.C. 301=1941 Rang 110. Before the Court can grant a decree for dissolution of marriage it must be satisfied that the marriage did take place and the marriage is a valid one. A bare statement of the petitioner that he was married is not sufficient evidence of marriage and he must produce the marriage certificate (1933 R. 93, Rel on) 164 I.C. 712=1936 R. 398. Unless the marriage is proved which is sought to be dissolved, no relief could be given to the applicant for dissolution I.L.R. (1940) All. 99=1940 A.L.J. 228=1940 All. 308 (F.B.) As divorce affects the status of the parties it is of importance that the necessary conditions to justify a decree for dissolution of marriage should be complied with. It is specifically laid down that certain facts must be averred and proved before a Court has jurisdiction to pass a decree for dissolution of marriage. Where there was no averment or direct evidence that the parties to the marriage were domiciled in India at the time when the petition was presented. Held, that the omission would justify the Court in returning the petition 11 R. 68=1934 R. 93. Divorce suits when undefended are peculiarly difficult because the Court is under the obligation of detecting for itself deficiencies which there is no interested party to point out. That obligation is however inoperative. Decrees for dissolution of marriage are not made without strict proof, and the fact that both parties are equally anxious to be divorced is in itself a reason why the Judge should be strict as to proof 1933 S. 70=143 I.C. 618. It is no doubt extremely difficult, if not impossible, to prove the actual fact of adultery, but no sensible man familiar with the common course of human conduct would ever persuade himself that when a man turns away his wife and lives with another woman in the same room for days and months that their relations could be altogether innocent. Where therefore a woman shares a room with a stranger and her undue familiarity with him leads to the latter's wife being turned out of doors and the woman behaves indifferently towards her own husband, the circumstances throw a sinister light on her relations with the stranger, and any man of common sense would irresistibly come to the conclusion that she was living in adultery with him 1935 N. 49 (S.B.) See also 26 S.L.R. 423. Adultery requires direct proof either by that of eye-witnesses or irresistible inference and direct proof is required of the identity of persons charged with adultery. Where it is proposed to prove the alleged adultery by calling evidence as to the birth of a child, since the separation of the husband and the wife, the evidence should be directed to the maternity of the mother in relation to the child and the mere statement that a child has been found or seen living in the same house with the wife is not ordinarily sufficient to establish that that child is her child 11 P. 627=1932 P. 345 (S.B.) The fact that a husband has communicated venereal disease to his wife is in law sufficient evidence of adultery. It also amounts to legal cruelty 1933 A.L.J. 14=1933 A. 36=55 A. 134. Where in a petition for dissolution by a wife, the petitioner stated that the person with whom her husband committed adultery was unknown to her, but in evidence she and her witnesses identified a particular woman with whom her husband committed adultery Held, even though no amendment in the petition was made as to the name, the identification by the petitioner and her witness was sufficient to grant a decree sui for dissolution 167 I.C. 743=1937 P. 82=18 Pat L.T. 586.

SECS 10, 11 AND 12. PETITION FOR DISSOLUTION—FACTS TO BE PROVED—DUTY OF COURT.—In a petition for dissolution petitioner has to allege and prove that he professes Christian religion, that marriage was solemnised in India, that the parties to marriage were domiciled in India when the petition was presented, and that husband and wife reside or last resided together within local limits of ordinary jurisdiction of Court of the District Judge, to whom the petition was presented. These must be proved by evidence, and petitioner is not excused from proving them merely because respondent admits them. A divorce Court has always to bear in mind the possibility of collusion and must insist on strict proof of all the facts alleged. The Judge should come to a distinct finding as to whether the marriage has been solemnised in India and upon what date. A certificate of marriage is not the only way of proving marriage but it is usually the best way 31 N. L.R. (Supp.) 174=1936 N. 26 (S.B.)

SECS 10 AND 14.—Where the petitioner the husband had also been guilty of adultery, it is for the Court to consider whether it should refuse to give him a decree or

11. Upon any such petition presented by a husband, the petitioner shall make the alleged adulterer a co-respondent to the said petition, unless he is excused from so doing on one of the following grounds, to be allowed by the Court —

Adulterer to be co-respondent

(1) that the respondent is leading the life of a prostitute, and that the petitioner knows of no person with whom the adultery has been committed,

(2) that the name of the alleged adulterer is unknown to the petitioner although he has made due efforts to discover it,

(3) that the alleged adulterer is dead

12 Upon any such petition for the dissolution of a marriage, the Court shall satisfy itself, so far as it reasonably can, not only as to the facts alleged, but also whether or not the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to, or conniving at, the going through of the said form of marriage, or the adultery, or has condoned the same, and shall also inquire into any counter-charge which may be made against the petitioner should exercise its discretion in his favour. The discretion should no doubt be exercised with due care and strictness. Where there was nothing to suggest that the petitioner was a man of loose and profligate character and where the parties were living apart and the respondent had given birth to an illegitimate child and there was no collusion or connivance between them in such a case, it was held that a decree for dissolution of marriage should not be refused upon the ground of the petitioner's misconduct. Indian Courts do not have the same discretion to dispense with the name of a co-respondent as English Courts have. Three grounds stated in S. 11 are the only ones on which leave can be so granted to proceed with the petition for dissolution. The fact that the petitioner had well grounded suspicions against two men is no sufficient reason. 107 I.C. 667=1928 N. 117. Where the husband did not name the co-respondent living in a distant place and it appeared that he did not know the name and that he could not find it out. Held that the Court could excuse him under S. 11. 7 R. 313=1919 R. 216 (S.B.). In a petition for divorce by the husband the petitioner has to make the alleged adulterer or adulterers a co-respondent or co-respondents to the petition unless he is excused from doing so by the Court on certain grounds. The father and mother of the wife cannot be made parties to

See 12 to 14. CONNIVANCE.—It is obligatory on a Court entertaining a petition under the Divorce Act to consider all the aspects of the case which are mentioned in Ss 12 and 14 and that obligation is not extinguished by the mere fact that the case is an undefended one. 195 I.C. 325=1941 Rang 193 (S.B.). The proceedings under the Act are not a civil suit which can be compromised and under S. 12 it is for the Court to satisfy itself so far as it reasonably can, not only as to the facts alleged but also whether or not petitioner has been in any manner accessory to or conniving at adultery or has condoned same and Court has to enquire into any counter charge which may be made against petitioner. 1930 L. 771=12 L. 22=126 I.C. 68 (S.B.). A mere refusal by husband without reasonable cause of matrimonial bed, does not constitute desertion or such wilful neglect or misconduct as conduces to wife's adultery, and is not a sufficient ground for dissolution. 44 C. 1091=41 I.C. 447=21 C.W.N. 717. A decree for dissolution cannot be legally granted merely on the ground that respondent does not oppose petition. Court must satisfy itself that there was good reason for delay in suing and that connivance or condonation is absent. 25 P.R. 1919=51 I.C. 235 (F.B.). Husband's conduct partly cause of wife's adultery, can be considered against husband. 54 C. 80=30 C.W.N. 820=1926 C. 1014. A wife petitioning for dissolution of marriage is not in the absence of a fresh matrimonial offence, entitled to a decree for dissolution of marriage upon precisely the same grounds as those on which she obtained a judicial separation previously. The Courts cannot possibly countenance a petitioner who had material for dissolution refraining from claiming it in his or her petition and obtaining only a decree for judicial separation and then later on when he or she thought it convenient to come to the Court to repeat the same evidence all over again and asking for a decree for dissolution. But where in a case there is besides the decree for judicial separation entirely fresh evidence of adultery, the wife would be entitled to a decree non for dissolution on such evidence.

A wife petitioning for dissolution of marriage is not in the absence of a fresh matrimonial offence, entitled to a decree for dissolution of marriage upon precisely the same grounds as those on which she obtained a judicial separation previously. The Courts cannot possibly countenance a petitioner who had material for dissolution, refraining from claiming it in his or her petition and obtaining only a decree for judicial separation, and then later on when he or she thought it convenient to come to the Court to repeat the same evidence all over again and asking for a decree for dissolution. But where in a case there is besides the decree for judicial separation entirely fresh evidence of adultery, the wife would be entitled to a decree for dissolution on such evidence.

ADULTERY OF WIFE—HUSBAND'S CONDUCT RE-TRIENSIABLE—Husband of the petitioner had ill-treated her and subsequently deserted her with no means to provide for herself and her child. For providing of the education of the child she was obliged to resort to a life of prostitution for some time and subsequently she gave up that life. It was found the husband was leading a life of adultery. The wife applied for dissolution. Held that having regard to the fact that the petitioner did not make any attempt to keep material fact from the Court and that she has been maintaining her child in a very satisfactory manner, the discretion under S. 14 ought to be exercised in favour of the petitioner, and decree nisi for dissolution made. 57 C. 891=1930 C. 729. In dealing with divorce cases it should ever be remembered that the woman is the weaker vessel that her habits of thought and feminine weakness are different from those of the man and that what may perhaps be excusable in the case of woman would not be excusable in the case of man. Where it is found that the woman has been guilty of adultery and that her adultery has resulted from the husband's conduct towards her the Court should make allowance in treating her case with leniency. Where there is sufficient evidence to prove cruelty and adultery on the part of the husband who deserts his wife without making any provision for maintenance of his wife and the wife who was living in her father's house after her desertion by the husband cohabits with a person living as a guest in the father's house, the conduct of the husband in deserting his wife and making no provision for her conduces greatly to wife's adultery and it is a fit case in which Court should exercise its discretion by granting to the wife a decree nisi under S. 14. 196 IC 764=1932 S. 18. Under the provisions of S. 14, the Court has to be satisfied on evidence that the case of the petitioner has been proved and a decree for dissolution of marriage cannot be made merely on admissions without recording evidence. There should also be evidence of domicile without which a District Judge cannot proceed to hear the petition for dissolution. 143 IC 122=1933 L. 356. Where a woman who has been treated with gross cruelty and has been deserted by a husband guilty of habitual adultery under the most aggravating circumstances and who, after her husband had left the place where he had in fact long deserted her, married a Mahomedan husband according to Islamic law believing that by so doing and by herself becoming a Mahomedan, her marriage with her Christian husband would ipso facto be dissolved, it cannot be said merely because she was wrongly advised as to the law, that exercising discretion in her favour and granting her decree nisi would encourage immorality. Condonation is not absolute, but is only conditional and if there is a subsequent matrimonial offence, then the condonation goes and the original offence is revived. 1935 N. 49 (S.B.), 156 IC 247=29 S.L.R. 83. A deed of separation between a husband and wife contained the following clause: 'No proceedings shall be taken by or on behalf of _____ in respect of any misconduct or alleged misconduct previous to the date of these presents and any offence which may have been committed or permitted by either of them against the other is hereby condoned.' The wife having filed a petition for dissolution of marriage grounded on allegation of adultery by the husband subsequent to the separation deed coupled with allegation of cruelty charged to have taken place prior to the execution of that deed held that the clause in the deed operated as an absolute release and not by way of conditional condonation and that cruelty antecedent to the deed could not be relied on. 60 C. 318=37 C.W.N. 249=1933 C. 388. Upon the commission of a subsequent matrimonial offence the forgiveness of the prior offence is cancelled and the old cause of complaint is revived, furthermore, the subsequent offence need not necessarily be eiusdem generis as the original offence. Subsequent cruelty would, therefore, revive previously condoned adultery. 1939 Rang. L.R. 267=1939 Rang. 352.

DELAY IN PRESENTING PETITION—DUTY OF COURT TO CONSIDER—Although the provisions and does not find that the petitioner has been in any manner accessory to, or conniving at, the going through of the said form of marriage, or the adultery of the other party to the marriage, or has condoned the adultery complained of, or that the petition is presented or prosecuted in collusion with either of the respondents, the Court shall pronounce a decree declaring such marriage to be dissolved in the manner and subject to all the provisions and limitations in sections 16 and 17 made and declared.

Provided that the Court shall not be bound to pronounce such decree if it finds that the petitioner has, during the marriage, been guilty of adultery, or if the petitioner has, in the opinion of the Court, been guilty of unreasonable delay in presenting or prosecuting such petition, or of cruelty towards the other party to the marriage, or of having deserted or wilfully separated himself or herself from the other party before the adultery complained of, and without reasonable excuse, or of such wilful neglect or misconduct of or towards the other party as has concluded to the adultery.

No adultery shall be deemed to have been condoned within the meaning of this Act unless where conjugal cohabitation has been resumed or continued.

Condonation

of the Limitation Act do not apply to suits or proceedings under the Divorce Act one of the first things which Court should look to when a charge of adultery is preferred is whether there has been such delay as to lead to the conclusion that petitioner has either connived at the adultery or was wholly indifferent to it. Poverty is almost always a sufficient excuse for delay, subject of course to delay not being inordinate. 1935 Sind 112 (FB) 156 IC 247 29 S L R 82. Where delay is accounted for by the honest efforts made by petitioner to prevail on his spouse to abandon her evil ways, it would not be an unreasonable delay so as to deprive the petitioner of his legal right to secure a divorce. 1935 N 49 (SB), 31 N L R (Supp) 174=161 IC 409=1936 N 26 (SB). Before a Court can exercise the discretion to excuse the delay there should be some evidence explaining it, to make clear that there was no connivance or indifference to the adultery. 193 IC 301=19 41 Rang 110 (FB). In a petition for divorce by the wife on the ground of her husband's adultery and cruelty, when she makes out her case, but admits herself having been guilty of adultery, the respondent should not be allowed to avoid the consequences of proved misconduct by putting forward an act or acts of misconduct on the part of the petitioner for which, however, the respondent was himself in a serious degree responsible, and when it is found that it was the conduct of the husband (respondent) in forcing the wife to leave the home that has concluded to the adultery which she confesses the respondent should not be allowed to take advantage of that held further, on the facts that a delay of three years was not under the circumstances, unreasonable and should be condoned by the Court, and that discretion should be exercised in the wife's favour by granting the divorce, notwithstanding the delay and her admitted adultery. 13 P 129=15 Pat L J 353-1934 P 474 Courts in Burma, like the High Court in England, are entitled to pronounce a decree based on adultery committed by the respondent after the presentation of a petition for dissolution of marriage. But the petitioner desiring the Court to do so should with the leave of the Court, file a duly verified supplemental petition supported by an affidavit setting out the facts, testifying to non-collusion and non connivance, and should also serve such petition on the respondent and on all persons affected by it. This is the English practice which applies equally in Burma. 1929 Rang L R 267=1939 Rang 352.

PRACTICE.—There are no rigid rules as to the exercise of the discretion of Court to grant a petition for divorce. All relevant facts are to be considered as well as the welfare of the parties themselves and the principles of morality. If the wife's adultery has been condoned by the conduct of her husband, she is entitled to ask the Court to exercise its discretion in her favour and to grant her a divorce in the event of deliberate suppression by a petitioner the Court will be disinclined to give him or her the assistance that it might have given had full disclosure been made at the outset. Subject to these guiding principles the Court will naturally take a large and merciful view, considering the interests of possible children who might otherwise be born out of lawful wedlock, and the probability of one party to the proceedings marrying the third party involved if enabled to do so by being accorded freedom from the marriage tie. 165 IC 392=12 Luck 697=1937 O 116. Before passing a decree what the Court has got to set is not that the petitioner has given prima facie proof of his case but that the justice of the case demands that the decree should be pronounced. The facts on which the exercise of the discretionary power is sought should be set out in the petition. The Court should also consider that delay in filing petition is a point against him. 1934 P 38=146 IC 798 (FB). In

15 In any suit instituted for dissolution of marriage, if the respondent opposes the relief sought on the ground in case of such a suit instituted by a wife, on the ground of her adultery and cruelty, the Court may in such suit give to the respondent, on his or her application, the same relief to which he or she would have been entitled in case he or she had presented a petition seeking such relief, and the respondent shall be competent to give evidence of or relating to such cruelty or desertion

16 Every decree for a dissolution of marriage made by a High Court, not being a confirmation of a decree of a District Court, shall, in the first instance, be a decree nisi, not to be made absolute till after the expiration of such time, not less than six months from the pronouncing thereof, as the High Court by general or special order from time to time directs petitions for dissolution there is nothing in the Act as regards the exercise of the discretion of Court and in this matter the practice in English Courts must be followed. There is no doubt that discretion of Court in these matters ought to be used with care. The main consideration is interest of the community at large. There is one ground however on which the discretion of the Court is invariably exercised and that is where the wilful neglect or misconduct of the respondent husband caused or contributed to his wife's adultery. Further there must be complete candour and disclosure on the part of the petitioner who wishes the Court to exercise its discretion in his or her favour. 151 I C 827=1934 A 782

Sec 15—speaking generally a guilty party cannot obtain relief by way of judicial separation any more than she can obtain relief by way of divorce. 47 B 657=25 Bom LR 289=1923 B 284. Desertion to justify judicial separation must be a wilful abscission by the husband against the wish of the wife. 47 B 657. Where a wife sues her husband for divorce on the ground of his adultery it is open to the husband in his written statement to counter petition for a divorce on the ground of wife's adultery. It is not necessary that the husband should take an independent proceeding. 47 B 657. Where a husband alleges adultery on the part of the wife with a foreigner the Court has jurisdiction to add such foreigner as a co-respondent to the proceeding. (Ibid) See also 46 M 133 under S 37.

See 16—A High Court alone is competent to pronounce a decree nisi under S 16. 43 I C 519. A decree for dissolution of marriage made by the High Court under the Divorce Act whether in its appellate or in its original jurisdiction should be a decree nisi and not a decree subject to the confirmation by the High Court under S 17. 175 I C 408=1938 Rang 704 (FB). In ex parte cases the proper course if there is no cross-examining pleader is for the Judge to ask sufficient questions to make it reasonably clear what the precise facts are on which the petitioner seeks relief. 29 Bom LR 308=1927 IL 230. If in a matrimonial suit the husband being ordered to give security for the wife's costs and having failed to give it then, where the husband is the petitioner, his petition should be stayed and not dismissed. 47 B 664=25 Bom LR 339. Where wife is petitioner, husband's defence should not be struck out, but he should be proceeded against for contempt if he is proved to be able to pay, but contumaciously refuses to do so. 47 B 664. Where in a divorce case the decree is referred to the High Court for confirmation the said Court has jurisdiction for the purpose and it is not necessary for the said purpose that petitioner himself should be present personally before the High Court. 29 M LJ 269=29 I C 178 (FB). 'DURING THAT PERIOD' means period from the date of decree nisi to the date of decree absolute. 103 I C 512=1927 O 310. Where a decree for dissolution of marriage has been made absolute it is not open to a third party to seek the aid of the Court under S 151 C P Code to set it aside on the ground that one of the parties to the divorce proceedings was a minor and has not been represented by a guardian ad litem. Nor is there any provision in the Divorce Act to set aside a decree absolute in the manner in which a decree nisi could be attacked. 15 Luck 350=1939 O WN 139=1940 O 279.

INTERVENTOR—In India any person with the exception of the respondent and the co-respondent and any person acting at the instance of either of these persons may proceed by way of intervention proceedings. High Court by general or special order from time to time directs, to show cause why the said decree should not be made absolute by reason of the same having been obtained by collusion or by reason of material facts not being brought before the Court

On cause being so shown, the Court shall deal with the case by making the decree absolute, or by reversing the decree nisi or by requiring further inquiry, or otherwise as justice may demand

The High Court may order the costs of counsel and witnesses, and otherwise arising from such cause being shown, to be paid by the parties or such one or more of them as it thinks fit, including a wife if she have separate property

=137 I.C. 46-1937 R. 73 There can be no collusion in mere prosecution as distinct from imputation of a true case. But it is very necessary to be careful before imputing collusion between parties from ordinary acts which a solicitor would naturally regard as inoffensive and unobjectionable. The mere fact that the wife's attorney had furnished certain documents to the petitioner's attorneys or that they had subpoenaed co-respondent is a very narrow ground for supposing that any collusion had taken place. 36 C. 330 1929 C. 599. Where after the passing of a decree nisi a third party intervened alleging collusion and though notices and warrants were issued to the parties service was deliberately avoided. Held that the only course open to the Court was to dismiss the application for the dissolution of the marriage to set aside the decree nisi and direct that a complaint be instituted against the husband under S. 193 Penal Code. 145 I.C. 233-1933 L. 98

MOTIVE OF INTERVENOR NOT MATERIAL.—

That the motive of the intervenor was not to expose the conduct of the petitioner but only to obtain custody of the child is immaterial, if the charges or guilty conduct on the part of the petitioner are made out, the Court can refuse to make the decree absolute irrespective of the motive prompting the intervention. 10 R. 115 =137 I.C. 426-1932 R. 73

SECS. 16 AND 17.—Owing to the adultery, cruelty and desertion on the part of the husband the wife was compelled to leave his house. Subsequently she committed adultery with another man whom she wanted to marry and filed a petition for divorce. The Judge viewed the case leniently and even though she was guilty of adultery granted a decree nisi. Held that the discretion exercised was proper and that the decree should be made absolute. 27 S.L.R. 322-1933 S. 38

SECS. 16 AND 17 A.—Decree nisi—Right of respondent to intervene.—Duties of Government Advocate as King's Proctor. S. 16 does not give the right to the respondent to object to a decree nisi being made absolute. The words

'any person' do not apply to parties to the proceedings and therefore cannot include the respondent. The right of the petitioner to have the decree nisi made absolute can only be challenged by a third party or by the Government Advocate who is placed in the position of King's Proctor by a notification of the Governor General in Council issued in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by S. 17 A. The Government Advocate cannot leave the matter in the hands of the respondent and the correct course is for him to consider the respondent's allegations and what may be placed before him in connection therewith and then decide whether he should intervene. If he does not consider that the evidence is sufficient to justify his intervention there is an end of the matter so far as he is concerned. If he does consider that the evidence does justify him in intervening it is his duty to intervene. 14 R. 322-1936 R. 499

SEC. 17. GENERAL.—The obvious intention of the legislature as expressed in S. 17 is that the High Court upon a reference for confirmation should review the entire evidence and come to its own conclusion whether facts sufficient to justify a decree for dissolution are or are not established by that evidence. 1922 A. 504 44 A. 745-79 I.C. 133. Case where dissolution was refused for want of evidence of misconduct. See 1930 L. 360 (S.B.). See also 40 B. 109-17 Bom. L.R. 948 under S. 37, 91 I.C. 99-1926 S. 58 (F.B.). Only the innocent party can move the High Court for a decree absolute under S. 17. The Court will not entertain application to that effect from guilty party. 150 I.C. 543 (1)-1934 A. 634 (1) (S.B.). Where husband himself had been living for a number of years in a state of adultery with another woman that fact in itself is sufficient justification for High Court not to exercise its discretion in the matter of confirmation of the decree nisi passed for dissolution specially when circumstances on which he relies in proof of his wife's misconduct are highly improbable and fall considerably short of the high standard of proof required under the law. 149 I.C. 1009-36 P.L.R. 66-1934 L. 334 (S.B.)

Cases for confirmation of a decree for dissolution of marriage shall be heard (where the number of the Judges of the High Court is three or upwards) by a Court composed of three such Judges, and in case of difference the opinion of the majority shall prevail, or (where the number of the Judges of the High Court is two) by a Court composed of such two Judges, and in case of difference, the opinion of the senior Judge shall prevail.

NOTES.

JURISDICTION—In order that the Court may have jurisdiction to grant a decree for dissolution, the parties must profess the Christian religion, and they must also be domiciled in India at the date of the presentation of the petition. The domicile of the wife is the same as that of the husband, and it is his domicile which has to be considered. The domicile of origin remains until it is changed and a domicile of choice is acquired, and the burden of proving a change of domicile is upon the person who asserts it. Where the domicile of origin of the husband is Indian, the only question is whether there is any evidence that domicile has been changed. But where the domicile of origin is not Indian, then it is necessary to ascertain whether there is any evidence that that domicile had been changed in favour of an Indian domicile at the date of the presentation of the petition. Domicile depends on two things, the fact of residence and the intention to reside permanently. 36 Bom L.R. 492=58 B. 502=1934 B. 230 (S.B.). S. 20 does not make the proviso to S. 17 applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity made by a District Judge. Such a decree may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncing thereof. Apart from this the scheme of the Act generally shows that it makes a distinction between decrees for dissolution and decrees annulling marriage. 151 I.C. 471=36 P.L.R. 137=1934 L. 636 (S.B.).

NOTICE—No notice to the respondent is necessary in proceedings for confirmation of a decree for dissolution of marriage. 10 P.L.R. 1921=59 I.C. 89. The High Court will not confirm a decree for the dissolution if it is not satisfied that the respondent was in fact served with a petition for divorce. 42 M.L.J. 562=1922 M. 350 (F.B.). Whether relationship of husband and wife subsists after decree nisi, and before it is confirmed. See 41 C. 714=18 C.W.N. 484. A petition was made for judicial separation. But the petitioner in her evidence asked for a decree for dissolution of marriage. There was no evidence on record disclosing whether the petitioner was a Christian at the time of marriage, nor was there any evidence with regard to the religion of the respondent. Then there was no proof that the pastor who purported to solemnize the marriage was a person authorised under S. 5, Christian Marriage Act, to do so, and lastly no marriage certificate was filed. But a decree for dissolution was granted. Held, that the decree granting the dissolution of marriage could not be confirmed in such state of record and the record should be returned to the District Court for the amendment of the petition and for proof that a valid marriage had taken place. 164 I.C. 974=1936 R. 429 (S.B.).

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE—Where in divorce proceedings the petitioner charged his wife with adultery but did not mention the adulterer's name and the Judge added his name as co-respondent on his initiative, the Judge was in error in adding his name without amending the petition accordingly. 38 M. 466=25 M.L.J. 594. See also 29 I.C. 178=29 M.L.J. 269 (F.B.). Where, after the passing of a decree nisi, a third party intervened alleging collusion and though notices and warrants were issued to the parties, service was deliberately avoided, held, that the only course open to the Court was to dismiss the application for the dissolution of the marriage, to set aside the decree nisi, and direct that a complaint be instituted against the husband under S. 193, Penal Code. 145 I.C. 253=1933 L. 98. The decree of the District Court cannot be confirmed by the High Court unless the co-respondent who had been impleaded in the District Court is also impleaded in the High Court. 12 L. 266=1931 L. 1 (S.B.). In a suit for dissolution brought by the husband on the ground of adultery by his wife an ex parte decree was granted, but the High Court returned the case for enquiry to the District Judge. He found that the act of adultery, though first condoned, was revived by subsequent matrimonial offence. The wife raised the counter-allegation of petitioner's alleged adultery with another woman subsequent to the decree. Held, that it was a matter which the wife could not raise, it could only be examined upon the intervention of a third party or of a King's Proctor. (14 R. 322, 1936 Rang. 499. Rel. on.) 167 I.C. 735=1937 R. 79 (S.B.). Where a divorce decree obtained by the wife comes before the High Court for its confirmation, the husband cannot object to the confirmation of the decree on the ground that the wife has married since the passing of the decree by the District Judge. 170 I.C. 200=1937 Rang. 333 (F.B.). For a husband to live in open adultery in the same house with another is certainly cruelty. In a petition for confirmation of divorce it was established that the husband had an illicit connexion with the widow of his brother. He turned his wife out of the house, when she was pregnant, after beating her. His wife was away for more than two years and he took no steps to secure her return, nor did he take any steps to defend the petition for divorce though he was properly served. Held, that the decree dissolving marriage should be confirmed. 175 I.C. 21=1938 Lah. 301 (S.B.).

REOPENING OF CLOSED PROCEEDINGS NOT ALLOWED—Under S. 17 the High Court has full power to confirm or not to confirm the decree nisi and an order not confirming it would amount to an order dismissing the suit. The petitioner sued in the District Court for dissolution of his marriage with his wife. He was granted a decree and he then applied to the High Court for confirmation of the decree. Later on he applied to the effect that his wife had agreed to come back to him and he accordingly prayed that the case should be consigned to the record room. The order passed was that the parties had settled their differences and the application for confirmation was withdrawn. On a later date the petitioner applied once again for confirmation of the decree *mis. EVIDENCE—It is contrary to the principles and rules on which the Divorce Court acts and gives relief to act on the uncorroborated testimony of a petitioner either to establish adultery or cruelty 42 M L J 562=1922 M 350 (FB). Under S 7 the Courts in this country should follow the same rule (Ibid). Where the wife has made allegations before the District Judge that her husband was committing adultery by keeping a mistress, the decree against her ought not to be made absolute without further inquiry. And where the allegations made by the wife are denied by the husband and the wife though given an opportunity to prove the truth of her allegations, declines to cite witnesses and there is in fact no evidence to support her allegations the decree may be made absolute 196 IC 412=1941 Rang 249 (SB). Admission of an adultery by a husband may form the ground for granting a divorce even though it is not corroborated by other evidence 1927 L 491=9 L 116. Condoned adultery may be revived by a subsequent matrimonial offence 53 C 436=96 IC 932=1926 C 864. In proceedings for divorce taken out by the husband the onus of proof of the marriage is on the husband and unless such proof of the marriage is forthcoming in strict form the Court has no jurisdiction to enter into the matter 146 IC 798 (FB).

SECS 17 AND 55—A decree for dissolution of a marriage was passed and the co-respondent was ordered to pay damages to the petitioner and respondent. The co-respondent did not appeal from the order regarding damages but when the petition for confirmation of the decree was filed in the High Court he sought to attack the order regarding damages Held, that he was entitled to do so even though he had not appealed against the order (20 Bom 362 (FB) (Foll) 39 P L R 666=1937 Lah 417 (SB)).

IV—NULLITY OF MARRIAGE.

18 Any husband or wife may present a petition to the District or to the High Court, praying that his or her marriage may be declared null and void

19 Such decree may be made on any of the following grounds :

NOTES

Sees 18 and 19.—The word "solemnized" in S 5 of the Christian Marriage Act means "celebrated" and deals with the ceremony only, and the words "rules, rites, ceremonies, and customs of the church" mean only the rules, etc., as to the capacity of the parties 47 I.C. 544=11 Bur L.T. 69. Suit for declaration of nullity of marriage—Questions to be considered by Court, (Ibid) "Fraud" means fraud practised upon the other party to the marriage and does not include fraud upon a third party (Ibid) See also I.L.R. (1939) 2 C. 60=1940 C. 63. No decree of deception can avail to set aside a marriage knowingly made unless the party imposed upon has been deceived as to the person, and thus has given no consent at all (Ibid) A ceremony of marriage ordinarily constituting a binding marriage between the parties subsists unless and until it is set aside on one or other of the grounds which justify annulling or setting aside a marriage. Before a valid marriage can be celebrated both parties to such marriage must be either single or divorced or a widow or a widower and then only are they competent to enter into a valid marriage. If at the time of celebration of the marriage ceremony one or other of the parties had a spouse living, the earlier marriage not having been set aside, the later marriage is void ab initio, in other words it is no marriage at all. The law in England that a party to a marriage of which the other party is incompetent to join in the celebration of a valid ceremony because of the existence of a previous husband or wife, is entitled without any recourse to any Court to marry any one else because that particular marriage is not in law a marriage at all applies equally well to marriages between Christians in India inasmuch as no Christian can marry another person in the lifetime of an earlier spouse unless the previous marriage has been set aside. This position cannot be interfered with in regard to a marriage celebrated in India as provided by S 83, Christian Marriage Act. Unless therefore the marriage is a valid marriage it cannot be a marriage which is in full force within the meaning of S 19 46 L.W. 602=1937 M. 565. A decree of nullity must be passed when the marriage is effected within six months of the confirmation of a decree of dissolution of a former marriage of either party where the former husband or wife is living at the time of the latter 29 P.R. 1013=19 I.C. 778. See also 38 I.C. 413=38 M. 452. Hereditary syphilis—Impotency—Consent obtained by fraud—Hild, marriage should be annulled 67 I.C. 249=25 C.W.N. 706. In the absence of an express allegation and strict proof that the party was impotent, i.e., physically unfit for consummation both at the date of marriage and at the date of the institution of the suit, a suit for declaration of nullity on the ground of impotency is not maintainable 30 I.C. 565=29 M.L.J. 183. In a petition under S 18 a prayer for custody of children may also be interdicted. 27 A.L.J. 63=1928 A. 677.

Sec 19.—Where there is a wilful refusal of sexual intercourse due to incapacity arising from nervousness or hysteria or from an inherent repugnance to act of consummation thus making consummation practically impossible, Court can declare marriage null and void on the ground of impotency 1931 A.L.J. 267=1931 A 207. Incapacity in wife of consummating marriage, consisting of a nervous and psychic disorder and of invincible repugnance in relation to the act of coitus, at all events in so far as the petitioner husband is concerned, which renders her incapable of submitting to sexual intercourse with him, is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of S 19, as it constitutes a permanent physical disability. The burden of proving his allegation is on the petitioner and he must remove all reasonable doubts. If there be a direct conflict of testimony between the two parties who alone know the truth, the difficulties are much increased. But the fact that difficulties are increased, does not make them insuperable nor is the Court relieved from the duty of weighing evidence merely because the parties tell different stories. The delay on the part of the petitioner increases the burden of proof and is an important factor in deciding whether his story is true. The law requires sincerity in the complainant, i.e., real sense of grievance complained of, unmingled with any other subsidiary motive, and, as a necessary proof of such sincerity, requires all reasonable promptitude to be exhibited by complainant in seeking legal redress. Delay in itself is not an absolute bar to success in a suit of such nature unless the respondent has suffered in any way by reason of it, but it has an important bearing on the evidence by which the charge of impotency is sought to be established and upon the measure of proof required. The one guiding principle is that great delay in the institution of a suit of this description by the husband is an objection to be accounted for 1938 C. 634. Where the wife was suffering from some curable form of venereal disease and it appeared that the only mistake was that the husband was under the impression that girl was not diseased at the time of marriage, Hild that the lady was not impotent that there was no fraud and that it was not a proper case to pass a decree of nullity. Per Curiam—It would be proper to hold that incurable syphilis is equivalent to impotency 60 W.N. 244=117 I.C.

- (1) that the respondent was impotent at the time of the marriage and at the time of the institution of the suit,
- (2) that the parties are within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity (whether natural or legal) or affinity,
- (3) that either party was a lunatic or idiot at the time of the marriage;
- (4) that the former husband or wife of either party was living at the time of the marriage, and the marriage with such former husband or wife was then in force

Nothing in this section shall affect the jurisdiction of the High Court to make decrees of nullity of marriage on the ground that the consent of either party was obtained by force or fraud

NOTES

450=1929 O 238 The existence of venereal disease in a woman does not constitute impotency within the meaning of S 19 of the Act Per Hasan, J—Whether when a wife suffers from a disease which might or might not be venereal and the husband has reasonable and well founded apprehension of infection in case he has sexual intercourse with such a wife, in such circumstances the Court would be justified to record a finding that the wife was impotent 5 Luck 484=7 O W N 17=1930 O 83

Idiocy—The term "idiot" in S 19 must be read as a word used in its ordinary significance and means a person deficient in mental or intellectual faculty as to be incapable of ordinary acts of reasoning or rational conduct. The petitioner who has a license to hold a gun for shooting, who goes about shooting who rides a horse, who sometimes goes about fishing, who can compose a letter for himself and write it in a tolerably good hand, who reads books to pass time, who is invited to tea parties who knows the nature of the transaction of marriage in which he entered with the opposite party and indeed who arranged for it with the Bishop cannot be called an idiot in the ordinary acceptance of the word 56 A 428 Per Sulaiman, C J—In order to find that a person is an idiot, it is not sufficient to find that he is a mere imbecile. One cannot be an idiot unless his faculties have not at all been developed and he has not acquired any appreciable intelligence 56 A 428 Any state of mind which falls short of lunacy or idiocy cannot be allowed to be a ground for annulment. Persons differ from one another in the degree of intelligence possessed by them. It would be a dire calamity if it could be said as a matter of law that a marriage, entered into by a person who is neither a lunatic nor an idiot is void simply because one of the parties lacks in intelligence, although he is able to understand the nature of the bonds of matrimony into which he is entering. Want of consent as such does not find place in S 19 as one of the grounds for declaring a marriage null and void 1934 A L J 1127=56 A 428=1934 A 273 The Judge has to satisfy himself regarding the idiocy of a person. Doctor's opinion in such matters is not conclusive. It is at the most a guide. The mere fact that the person is feeble-minded and that he has the intelligence of a child of about eight or nine years of age is not sufficient to declare that person an idiot within the meaning of S 19 (3) which classes lunatics and idiots together. An idiot in law means something more than this 1933 A 122=55 A 185

MISREPRESENTATION—Inducing consent to marry cannot upset a marriage. The position in law is that the party imposed upon must be deceived to such an extent that there is in reality no consent at all to the marriage. Such consent cannot be given by a child of nine years of age and consequently a person who though 54 years old is found by the Court to be very feeble-minded and to have the mentality of a child of nine years of age is incapable of giving his consent 1933 A 122=55 A 185 The various grounds on which the Court can give a decree of nullity under the Divorce Act refer to cases where there has been a marriage validly performed. Questions arise under Ss 4 and 5, Christian Marriage Act when the marriage has not been validly performed. There is a clear distinction between a decree of nullity of a valid marriage and a declaration that the marriage itself is illegal and void. There can therefore be no doubt that there is jurisdiction in the High Court to hear and decide questions under the Christian Marriage Act 55 A 185

CONSENT TO MARRIAGE—QUESTION OF FACT—In a suit for declaration of marriage null and void on ground of want of free consent, among other grounds the question of consent is one of fact and not of law. Hence an issue and evidence for it is necessary for decision 56 A 428

BURDEN OF PROOF—Where a petition to declare a marriage null and void is made under S 19 (4), the burden of proof lies upon the petitioner that the previous marriage of the opposite party was in full force and effect and was not set aside at the time when his marriage took place with the opposite party 169 I C, 516=1937 Mad 565

SECS 19 AND 20—The policy of the Divorce Act does not contemplate a valid marriage between a Christian and a person professing a religion which is not monogamous. Where prior to and also at the time of their marriage, the husband who was a Mahomedan represented to the wife that he was a Roman Catholic, and the wife, who was a Roman Catholic would not have married him if she had known that he was a Mahomedan, the marriage is void, the wife's consent to it having been obtained by fraud. The High Court has accordingly power

20. Every decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge shall be subject to confirmation by the High Court, and the provisions of section 17, clauses 1, 2, 3 and 4, shall mutatis mutandis apply to such decrees.

Confirmation of District Judge's decree.

21. Where a marriage is annulled on the ground that a former husband or wife was living, and it is adjudged that the subsequent marriage was contracted in good faith and with the full belief of the parties that the former husband or wife was dead, or when a marriage is annulled on the ground of insanity, children begotten before the decree is made shall be specified in the decree, and shall be entitled to succeed, in the same manner as legitimate children, to the estate of the parent who at the time of the marriage was competent to contract.

V—JUDICIAL SEPARATION.

22. No decree shall hereafter be made for a divorce a mensa et toro, but the husband or wife may obtain a decree of judicial separation, on the ground of adultery, or cruelty, or desertion without reasonable excuse for two years or upwards, and such decree shall have the effect of a divorce a mensa et toro under the existing law, and such other legal effect as hereinafter mentioned to annul that marriage on the ground of fraud under S 19 of the Act I L.R. (1939) 2 Cal 60=1940 Cal 75

Sec 20—S 20 does not make the proviso to S 17 applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of a nullity of marriage made by a District Judge. Such a decree may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncing thereof. Apart from this the scheme of the Act generally shows that it makes a distinction between decrees for dissolution of marriage and decrees annulling a marriage 36 P.L.R. 137=1934 L. 636 (S.B.)

Sec 22—The mere fact that the husband and wife cannot agree is not a sufficient ground for judicial separation 1932 O 231=9 O.W.N. 447. Desertion under the Divorce Act implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it, but it is not a universal rule that the abandonment must be against expressed wish of that person 8 Bur.L.T. 32=27 I.C. 604. As to what constitutes "cruelty", "adultery", "desertion", see note under S 10, supra. To constitute 'cruelty' there must be danger to life, limb and health, bodily or mental, or a reasonable apprehension of it 1932 O 231=9 O.W.N. 447. A decree for judicial separation and payment of alimony to the wife is annulled by subsequent resumption of cohabitation by the parties and the wife cannot claim any rights under the decree even if the husband had executed an agreement that the decree ordering payment should remain in force and that she should have the right to live separate if she had any fresh grievance against him 137 I.C. 737=1932 O 142 (8 Q.B.D. 778 and 2 R. 163 Foll.)

CRUELTY—IMPUTATION OF MISCONDUCT TO WIFE—If amounts to—A false imputation of misconduct made by the husband in the course of an acrimonious correspondence between himself and his wife is not sufficient to make out a case of cruelty justifying a decree for judicial separation, especially when there is no evidence that he made any such imputation against his wife to any third person and it is not even suggested that the wife has suffered any mental injury or injury to health by reason of such imputation 1935 O.W.N. 103=1935 O 133. Where the husband has been guilty of beating his wife on several occasions and on one of them her hands were tied with a chain and her feet with a rope and she was kept hanging in a door way until another person came to her rescue, the acts of the husband amount to legal cruelty sufficient to justify the Court to pass a decree for judicial separation under S 22 of the Act 165 I.C. 12=12 Luck 526=1937 O 52. As to jurisdiction see 1941 A.L.J. 710.

DESERTION—A false imputation of misconduct made by the husband in a letter written by him to his wife during the period of desertion by her when his feelings were greatly exasperated on account of the attitude adopted by his wife, does not constitute "reasonable cause" for her deserting him, especially when, during that period, the husband wrote to her several times asking her to return to him and offering to take her back without any conditions on either side but the wife persisted in her desertion. The husband, in such circumstances, is entitled to a decree for judicial separation on the ground of desertion by his wife without reasonable cause 1935 O.W.N. 103=1031 O 133. Where in a petition by the wife praying for the dissolution of her marriage with her husband on the ground of her husband's adultery, the wife fails to prove the charge of adultery but succeeds in proving cruelty by the husband towards her, the Court can pass a decree for judicial separation under S 22 although she has not specifically prayed for such a decree either in her original petition or in her memorandum of appeal 165 I.C. 12=12 Luck 526=1937 O 52. In an application for judicial separation under S 22, where adultery is alleged, it is difficult to produce

23 Application for judicial separation on any one of the grounds aforesaid

Application for separation made by petition

may be made by either husband or wife by petition to the District Court or the High Court, and the Court, on being satisfied of the truth of the statements made in such petition, and that there is no legal ground why the application should not be granted, may decree judicial separation accordingly

24 In every case of a judicial separation under this Act, the wife shall,

Separated wife deemed spinster with respect to after acquired property

from the date of the sentence, and whilst the separation continues, be considered as unmarried with respect to property of every description which she may acquire, or which may come to or devolve upon her

Such property may be disposed of by her in all respects as an unmarried woman, and on her decease the same shall, in case she dies intestate, go as the same would have gone if her husband had been then dead

Provided that, if any such wife again cohabits with her husband, all such property as she may be entitled to when such cohabitation takes place shall be held to her separate use, subject, however, to any agreement in writing made between herself and her husband whilst separate

Separated wife deemed spinster for purposes of contract and suing

whilst so separated, be considered as an unmarried woman for the purposes of contract, and wrongs and injuries, and suing and being sued in any civil proceeding, and her husband shall not be liable in respect of any contract, act or costs entered into, done, omitted or incurred by her during the separation

Provided that where, upon any such judicial separation, alimony has been decreed or ordered to be paid to the wife, and the same is not duly paid by the husband, he shall be liable for necessities supplied for her use

Provided also that nothing shall prevent the wife from joining, at any time during such separation, in the exercise of any joint power given to herself and her husband

REVERSAL OF DECREE OF SEPARATION

26 Any husband or wife, upon the application of whose wife or husband,

Decree of separation obtained during absence of husband or wife may be reversed

as the case may be, a decree of judicial separation has been pronounced, may, at any time thereafter, present a petition to the Court by which the decree was pronounced, praying for a reversal of such decree, on the ground that it was obtained in his or her absence, and that there was reasonable excuse for the alleged desertion, where desertion was the ground of such decree

The Court may, on being satisfied of the truth of the allegations of such petition, reverse the decree accordingly, but such reversal shall not prejudice or affect the rights or remedies which any other person would have had, in case it had not been decreed, in respect of any debts, contracts or acts of the wife incurred,

VI.—PROTECTION ORDERS.

27. Any wife to whom section 4 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865¹ does not apply, may, when deserted by her husband, present a petition to the District Court or the High Court, at any time after such desertion, for an order to protect any property which she may have acquired or may acquire, and any property of which she may have become possessed or may become possessed after such desertion, against her husband or his creditors, or any person claiming under him.

28. The Court, if satisfied of the fact of such desertion, and that the same was without reasonable excuse, and that the wife is maintaining herself by her own industry or property, may make and give to the wife an order protecting her earnings and other property from her husband and all creditors and persons claiming under him. Every such order shall state the time at which the desertion commenced, and shall, as regards all persons dealing with the wife in reliance thereon, be conclusive as to such time.

29. The husband or any creditor of, or person claiming under him, may apply to the Court by which such order was made for the discharge or variation thereof, and the Court, if the desertion has ceased, or if for any other reason it thinks fit so to do, may discharge or vary the order accordingly.

30. If the husband, or any creditor of, or person claiming under, the husband, seizes or continues to hold any property of the wife after notice of any such order, he shall be liable at the suit of the wife (which she is hereby empowered to bring), to return or deliver to her the specific property, and also to pay her a sum equal to double its value.

31. So long as any such order of protection remains in force, the wife shall be and be deemed to have been, during such desertion of her, in the like position in all respects, with regard to property and contracts and suing and being sued, as she would be under this Act if she obtained a decree of judicial separation.

VII.—RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.

32. When either the husband or the wife has, without reasonable excuse, withdrawn from the society of the other, either wife or husband may apply, by petition to the District Court or the High Court, for restitution of conjugal rights, and the Court, on being satisfied of the truth of the statements made in such petition, and that there is no legal ground why the application should not be granted, may decree restitution of conjugal rights accordingly.

X—SETTLEMENTS

39 Whenever the Court pronounces a decree of dissolution of marriage or judicial separation for adultery of the wife, if it is made to appear to the Court that the wife is entitled to any property, the Court may, if it think fit, order such settlement as it thinks reasonable to be made of such property or any part thereof, for the benefit of the husband, or of the children of the marriage, or of both

Any instrument executed pursuant to any order of the Court as the time of or after the pronouncing of a decree of dissolution of marriage or judicial separation shall be deemed valid notwithstanding the existence of the disability of coverture at the time of the execution thereof

The Court may direct that the whole or any part of the damages recovered under section 34 shall be settled for the benefit of the children of the marriage, or as a provision for the maintenance of the wife

Sec 37, paras 3 and 4 SCOPE OF—POWER TO SUBSTITUTE ORDER UNDER PARA 3 FOR PRIOR ORDER UNDER PARA 4—The provisions of paras 3 and 4 of S 37 are alternatives at the discretion of the Court. They are merely alternative methods of protecting the successful petitioner the wife. The proviso to the section in terms relates only to the provisions in para 4 for monthly and weekly payments, and it does not in terms provide for any increase in the amount of the payments. Though a prior order has been made under para 4 a Court has power on a fresh application to pass an order under para 3. The correct interpretation of the third para of S 37 is that the husband is to secure to the wife a gross sum of money which is to be at her disposal in the same way as the annual sum of money. The section does give power to direct a money payment 1938 O W N 513=1938 Oudh 173 See also 1938 Cal 321

Sec 39—There is no power under the Divorce Act to make any provision for the maintenance of children who are no longer minors under the Act 38 M J 29=1931 M 154

Sec 40—The power given to the Court under S 40 is a discretionary one. The discretion must be exercised judicially. It is of course open to a party to make an application for an order but such an application shall not be readily acceded to unless special circumstances which make it just and proper to make an order upon the application are shown. Varying a settlement, the Court has power to may inquire into the existence of ante-nuptial or post-nuptial settlements made on the parties whose marriage is the subject of the decree, and may make such orders, with reference to the application of the whole or a portion of the property settled, whether for the benefit of the husband or the wife, or of the children (if any) of the marriage, or of both children and parents, as to the Court seems fit

Provided that the Court shall not make any order for the benefit of the parents or either of them at the expense of the children

XI—CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

41 In any suit for obtaining a judicial separation the Court may, from time to time, before making its decree, make such interim orders, and may make such provision in the decree, as it deems proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of such suit, and may, if it think fit, direct proceedings to be taken for placing such children under the protection of the said Court

Power to make orders as to custody of children in suit for separation

42 The Court, after a decree of judicial separation, may, upon application (by petition) for this purpose make, from time to time, all such orders and provision, with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of the decree, or for placing such children under the protection of the said Court, as might have been made by such decree or by interim orders in case the proceedings for obtaining such decree were still pending

Power to make such orders after decree

43 In any suit for obtaining a dissolution of marriage or a decree or nullity of marriage instituted in, or removed to a High Court, the Court may from time to time before making its decree absolute or its decree (as the case may be) make such interim orders, and may make such provision in the decree absolute or decree

Sec. 41—Appeal lies from order of Court fixing amount of maintenance under S 41 1937 Lab 86

Secs 41 and 43—The order passed by the District Judge about maintenance under S 41, terminates when a final order is passed under S 43 and S 41 gives the Court a very wide discretion to fix such maintenance as it thinks fit. High Court will not therefore ordinarily interfere with an order fixing the amount of maintenance unless it appears to have been passed in disregard of the evidence and is clearly unreasonable. 1937 Lab 86

Sec 42—DECREE OF JUDICIAL SEPARATION—CUSTODY OF CHILDREN—CONSIDERATION.—It cannot be contended that in cases of judicial separation, the custody of daughters as a rule should be given to the mother in preference to the father. No hard and fast rule can be laid down in this matter. The paramount consideration must always be the welfare of the children. Where the father is held entitled to a decree of judicial separation and he has not been found guilty of any conduct which could disentitle him from the custody of his children and he holds a respectable position in life and is in a better position to give them a decent education and to provide and look to their upbringing and the mother's past conduct shows that if the children are left with her, she is sure to alienate their affections from the father, the Court would exercise a wise discretion in allowing the father who is in law natural guardian of his minor children to have their custody. 1935 O.W.N. 103—1935 O 123. Per Phillips J.—It seems to me most improper that a Court of Matrimonial jurisdiction should not have power to pass orders as to the custody and maintenance of unmarried girls above the age of 13 or of boys over 16. Since 1869 great strides have been made on education and it cannot now be said that education always ceases in the case of girls at 13 and in the case of boys at 16, nor are they usually in a position to find for themselves at that age. In my opinion the definition of minor children in S 3 (5) requires amendment. 58 M.L.J. 29 = 1930 M 154

Sec 43—It is no doubt true that prima facie the innocent party is entitled to the custody of the children of the marriage. But there is no hard and fast rule on the subject. The matrimonial offence which justified the divorce is not always sufficient to disentitle the mother to the custody of her daughter. The paramount consideration is the interest of the children and in any such suit instituted in a District Court, the Court may from time to time, before its decree is confirmed, make such interim orders, and may make such provision on such confirmation, as the High Court or District Court (as the case may be) deems proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of the suit, and may, if it think fit, direct proceedings to be taken for placing such children under the protection of the Court

Power to make such orders after decree or confirmation 44 The High Court, after a decree absolute for dissolution of marriage or a decree of nullity of marriage, and the District Court, after a decree for dissolution of marriage or of nullity of marriage has been confirmed, may, upon application by petition for the purpose, make from time to time all such orders and provision, with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the minor children, the marriage of whose parents was the subject of the decree, or for placing such children under the protection of the said Court, tion for alimony, pending the suit of C.B., says—

1 In answer to the first paragraph of the said petition, I say that I have for the last three years carried on the business of , at , and that, from such business, I have derived a nett annual income of Rs 900, but less than Rs. 1,000

2 In answer to the second paragraph of the said petition, I say that I am possessed of plate, furniture, linen and other chattels and effects at my said house aforesaid, of the value of Rs 7,000, but as I verily believe of no larger value. And I say that a portion of the said plate, furniture and other chattels and effects of the value of Rs 1,500, belonged to my said wife before our marriage, but the remaining portions thereof I have since purchased with my own moneys. And I say that, save as herebefore set forth, I am not possessed of the plate and other effects as alleged in the said paragraph in the said petition, and that I did not acquire the same as in the said petition also mentioned.

3 I admit that I am entitled under the will of my father, subject to the life-interest of my mother therein, to property of the value of Rs 5,000, that is to say, I shall be entitled under my said father's will, upon the death of my mother, to a legacy of Rs 7,000, out of which I shall have to pay to my father's executors the sum of Rs 2,000, the amount of a debt owing by me to his estate, and upon which debt I am now paying interest at the rate of five per cent per annum.

4 And in further answer to the said petition, I say that I have no income whatever except that derived from my aforesaid business, that such income, since my said wife left me which she did on the day of last, has been considerably diminished, and that such diminution is likely to continue. And I say that out of my said income, I have to pay the annual sum of Rs 100 for such interest as aforesaid to my late father's executors, and also to support myself and my two eldest children.

5 And, in further answer to the said petition, I say that, when my wife left my dwelling house on the day of last, she took with her, and has ever since withheld and still withholds from me, plate, watches and other effects in the second paragraph of this my answer mentioned, of the value of, as I verily believe, Rs 800 at the least, and I also say that, within five days of her departure from my house as aforesaid, my said wife received bills due to me from certain lodgers of mine, amounting in the aggregate to Rs , and that she has ever since withheld and still withholds from me the same sum.

THE DOWER ACT (XXIX OF 1839).

Year	No	Short title	Amendments
1839	XXIX	The Dower Act, 1839	.. Repealed in part, VIII of 1868, XII of 1891, X of 1914

PREFATORY NOTE.—Dower is one of the rights which the wife under the English Law has in her husband's property. Under the English law, at the present day, a life interest in a portion of the real estate of which the husband dies possessed and intestate and provided he had not excluded the wife therefrom is all that remains of the ancient dower, a right which the common law gave to the widow for the sustenance of herself and her children (Co. Litt 31-a).

"Where a woman taketh a husband seised of such an estate in tenements, etc., so as by possibility it may happen that the wife may have issue by her husband, and that the same issue may by possibility inherit the same tenements of such an estate as the husband hath, as heir to the husband, of such tenements she shall have her dower, and otherwise not" (Litt S. 53). Three conditions were therefore necessary to entitle the wife to dower—(i) marriage; (ii) sole seisin of an estate of inheritance, (iii) death of the husband (Co. Litt. 21-a). It was not necessary that there should be issue in fact of the marriage-

(Litt S 36) but it was necessary that there should be a possibility of issue who could inherit and therefore if lands were limited to a man and his heirs by a certain marriage in tail and his wife died and he married again his second wife would have no dower out of those lands (Litt S 53) Assuming these three conditions fulfilled the widow was entitled to an estate for life in one third of the lands of which her husband was solely seised for an estate of inheritance in possession at any time during the coverture The husband must have been seised therefore the widow was not dowable out of his equitable estates (Co Litt 29-a) including a mere equity of redemption Lawson v Bank of Whitehaven (1877) 6 Ch D 218

All women married after the 1st January 1834 come under the provisions of the Dower Act, 3 & 4 Will IV c 105 Under this Act a widow is dowable out of lands in which her husband's interest was equitable, or partly legal and partly equitable (S 2) provided it was an estate of inheritance in possession or equal to an estate of inheritance in possession [In re Michell (1892) 2 Ch 87] other than a joint tenancy If the husband's interest is a right of entry that is sufficient, (S 3) provided the claim to dower is enforced before the right of entry is barred But she is not dowable out of any lands of which her husband actually disposed in his lifetime or by will (S 4) A widow is not entitled to dower out of any land of her husband where in the deed by which such land is conveyed or by any deed executed by him it shall be declared that his widow shall not be entitled to dower out of such land (S 6) Nor is she entitled to dower out of any land of which her husband dies wholly or partially intestate when by his will he declares his intention that she shall not be entitled to a dower out of such land or out of any of his land (S 7) Her right is subject to any conditions restrictions or directions declared by her husband's will (S 8) Where a husband devises land out of which his widow would have been dowable if the same were not so devised or any estate or interest therein, to or for the benefit of his widow she is not dowable out of any of his land unless a contrary intention appears in his will (S 9) A devise of real estate to trustees on trust to sell and to pay an annuity out of the proceeds of an interest in land [Lacy v Hill (1875) L R 19 Eq 346 In re Thomas (1886) 34 Ch D 166] But no gift or bequest out of personal estate or out of land not liable to dower will defeat her right to dower unless a contrary intention is expressed in the husband's will (S 10) The Court may enforce an agreement by the husband not to bar his wife's right to dower (S 11) Formerly if a legacy were given in satisfaction of dower it was entitled to priority over simple legacies for it was considered the price of the dower By S 12 nothing in the Act is to interfere with any rule of equity by which legacies bequeathed in satisfaction of dower are entitled to priority over other legacies But this rule only applies where if she had not accepted the gift in satisfaction on the widow would have been entitled to dower [In re Greenwood (1892) 2 Ch 295] By S 5 dower is made subject to all partial estates and interests and all charges which the husband may have created and also to all debts incumbrances and contracts to which the land may be liable The proportionate part of the widow's charge for £500 to be borne by the real estate of an intestate under the Intestates Estates Act 1890 has priority over her right to dower [In re Charrere (1896) 1 Ch 912] (Encyclopædia of the Laws of England 2nd Ed Vol VI Title Husband and Wife)

An Act for the Amendment of the Law relating to Dower

1 WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the amendments in the English law of dower contained in the 1 Statute 3rd and 4th William IV, Chapter CV, to the territories of the East India Company in cases which, but for the passing of this Act, would be governed by the English law of dower as it existed previously to the passing of the aforesaid Statute,

It is hereby enacted that the words and expressions hereinafter mentioned, which in their ordinary signification have a more confined or a different meaning, shall in this Act, except where the nature of the provision or the context of the Act shall exclude such construction, be interpreted as follows, that is to say, the word "land" shall extend to messuages, and all other hereditaments, whether corporeal or incorporeal (except such as are not liable to dower), and to any share thereof,

2 [* * * * *]³ When a husband shall die, beneficially entitled to any land for an interest which shall not entitle his widow to dower out of the same at law, and such interest, whether wholly equitable, or partly legal and partly equitable, shall be an estate of inheritance in possession or equal to an estate of inheritance in possession (other than an estate in joint tenancy), then his widow shall be entitled in equity to dower out of the same land

Widows to be entitled to dower out of equitable estates

3 [* * * * *]⁴ When a husband shall have been entitled to a right of entry or action in any land, and his widow would be entitled to dower out of the same if he had recovered possession thereof, she shall be entitled to dower out of the same although her husband shall not have recovered possession thereof Provided that such dower be sued for or obtained within the period during which such right of entry or action might be enforced

Sesin shall not be necessary to give title to dower

4 [* * * * *]⁵ No widow shall be entitled to dower out of any land which shall have been absolutely disposed of by her husband in his lifetime, or by his will

No dower out of estates disposed of 5 [* * * * *]⁶ All partial estates and interests, and all charges created by any disposition or will of a husband, and all debts, incumbrances, contracts and engagements to which his land shall be subject or liable, shall be valid and effectual as against the right of his widow to dower

Priority to partial estates charges and specialty debts

6 [* * * * *]⁷ A widow shall not be entitled to dower out of any land of her husband when in the deed by which such land was conveyed to him, or by any deed executed by him, it shall be declared that his widow shall not be entitled to dower out of such land

THE EASEMENTS ACT (V OF 1882).

Year	No	Short title	Amendments
V	1882	The Indian Easements Act, 1882	Application extended, VIII of 1891, Amended, XII of 1891, X of 1914 Continued in force (with modifications) in territory transferred to D-III Province, Act VII of 1915, S 3, Sch II

PREFATORY NOTE—Easements, in some form or other, were known to all the ancient nations, who had developed some form of legal rules and legal institutions.

Thus easements were familiar to Hindus and Mussalmans, and their law books are full of rules in regard to what are termed by Muhammadan lawyers as "neighbour's rights". (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India, dated 16th February, 1882. See also 13 B L R O C 18.)

It has sometimes been said that easements in an agricultural country like India, are not matters of sufficient importance to deserve the attention of legislature; that, to frame an Act in regard to them is to encumber the Indian Statute book unnecessarily. Such views are not countenanced by the Native community. In cities and towns, easements are regarded as rights of great pecuniary value and litigation often arises in regard to them. In the rural parts of the country the right to take fish or water from lakes and tanks often becomes the subject of litigation, and the final decision materially affects the value of the property in regard to which the easements are claimed. Nor are disputes in regard to easements confined to the most advanced parts in India. Probably they are more frequent in those parts of India which have come under British dominion comparatively lately. (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, dated 10th February, 1882. See also 3 B L R O C 18.)

"The origin of servitudes" says an eminent French writer, "is as ancient as that of property, of which they are a modification. By their natural disposition the inferior lands were placed in a species of dependence on those more elevated and the first possessors of the soil recognised the indispensable necessity of such subjections. When the extension of cultivation brought men nearer together and the want of a common defence formed the first society, public utility and safety led to the conviction, that it was necessary to restrict in certain cases rights legitimate in themselves, but the absolute exercise of which by individuals could not take place without rendering some properties almost valueless. In a short time, similar rights were stipulated for by private persons as matter of utility, or even pleasure. Thus, from the disposition of nature the wants of society and the agreements of individuals have originated praedial servitudes" (Fardessus, Traité des Servitudes, Sec 1 cited in Gale on Easements, 8th Ed., 1908 p 27.)

"Probably the origin of praedial servitudes is to be found in the gradual introduction of the stricter notions of exclusive ownership. Without some modifications of these notions, neighbours could not have lived comfortably together. Hence in praedial servitudes it is always assumed that the two praedia are not far apart. Hence also it was a rule that the right of a landowner over the land of his neighbour must not be advantageous to him, but advantageous to him qua landowner, or as it is sometimes put, advantageous to his land. So again it followed that, if the landowner who had the right sold the land for the benefit of which the right existed, he could not himself retain the right. It passed with the land to each successive owner of the land. Exactly in the same way if the land over which the right was exercised were sold, the land remained burdened with servitude, following out the idea that the servitude was attached to both lands, to one as a benefit and to the other as a burden. The land or house to which the servitude was attached as a benefit was called locus superior, that to which it was attached as a burden was called the locus inferior" (Markby's Elements of Law, 5th Ed., 1896, pp 207 and 208.)

It has been said that "the right of easement is a right as old as the day when the human race, first emerging from barbarism, adopted the custom of living together in towns, or living as each other's neighbours or respecting each other's rights. The right of easement is the necessary consequence of the right of ownership of immovable property, and, as soon as mankind arrived at the determination that individuals were to be allowed exclusive ownership of property, the very next step was concurrence in the equitable principle, that the good of the public lay in enjoying one's property so as not to disturb the enjoyment by the neighbour of his own property. And this salutary principle appears to be the original foundation on which easements are based' (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India dated 16th February, 1882)

The Indian Easements Act was intended to systematically formulate those rules of law which previously governed the decision of disputes relating to easements. Those rules were such as our Courts were even before the passing of this Act in the habit of administering

The object of this Act was to state clearly and compactly the rules relating to Easements that is to say the rights which a man sometimes has over one piece of immovable property by reason of his ownership of another. As to these rights then existing statutory law was silent except so far as regards the acquisition of easements by long and continued possession the limitation of suits for disturbing them and the granting of injunctions to prevent such disturbance, and three of the then most experienced Judges in India—Sir Michael Westropp Mr Justice Jackson and Mr Justice Innes—expressed their opinion that it was desirable to codify the law on the subject which was then (to quote the Chief Justice of Bombay) for the most part to be found only in treatises and reports practically inaccessible to a large proportion of the legal profession in the Mufassil and to the Subordinate Judges. There was much litigation in the case of urban easements and a Judge of the Punjab Chief Court asserted that it was largely due to the fact that neither the people themselves, nor the majority of the Courts understood the principles upon which such disputes had to be determined (See Statement of Objects and Reasons See also Whitely Stokes' Anglo Indian Codes Vol I p 879)

The Act was mainly based on the law of England which being just, equitable and almost free from local peculiarities has in many cases been held to regulate the subject in this country but a few deviations have been made from that law and rules as to some matters which had not till then come under the cognizance of the English and Indian Courts have been adopted from the writings of well known jurists (See Whitely Stokes Anglo Indian Codes Vol I p 879)

Whenever any disputes regarding easements arose previous to the passing of the Act the Courts had to decide these disputes on principles derived from reported English cases. Of course there were customary rights in this country which were not usual in England but that was not the difficulty. The difficulty was to know what gave a man a right to an easement so as to enable him to enforce it against a neighbour and how he might acquire that right and how he could enforce it. All these points were decided by the High Courts according to the English law and therefore it was held that in any attempt at codifying the existing law, the reproduction of the rules of English law was found to be inevitable (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India dated 16th February 1882)

In the early days of the British administration of this country there was a wholesale and indiscriminate borrowing from the English law—the most copious system of express rules known to the world. The Judge reads English Law books the young native lawyer read them for law is the study into which the educated youth of the country are throwing themselves and for which they may even be said to display something like genius. You may ask, what authority have these borrowed rules in India. Technically they have none whatever. Yet though they are taken (and not always correctly taken) from a law of entirely foreign origin they are adopted as if they naturally commended themselves to the reason of mankind and all that can be said of the process is that it is another example of the influence often felt in European legal history which express written law invariably exercises on unwritten customary law when they are found side by side (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, dated 16th February 1882 Maine's Ancient Law)

On this subject the following remarks of Justice Field may also be noted — Doubts had been expressed as to whether a measure like this Bill is at present demanded by the requirements of this country. I have on many previous occasions expressed my own opinion that legislation in India ought not to anticipate future requirements the nature and measure of which must in the present be uncertain, and that the real test of the advisability or utility of any proposed legislative measure is whether it is demanded by the actual present requirement of the country. If there is a considerable amount of actual present litigation to which any proposed measure will be immediately applicable and for dealing with which it will supply ready and useful body of rules, it appears to me that this is a strong fact to show that such legislation is demanded by the requirement of the progress of the country. Applying this test to the Easements Bill I think that it is a measure which may well be passed into law. As the result of my own personal experience, I have had before me within the last six months cases which directly involved the following easements—(1) Right of way for foot passengers (2) Right of way for boats (3) Right of way for carts (4) An easement of necessity (5) Destination du pécé du famille (6) Flumen, or the right of discharging water in a continuous stream upon adjoining premises (7)

Right of allowing water to drop from the eaves to the dominant tenement upon the servient tenement (stillicidium) (8) Jus prociendi, or right to project a roof over the boundary line of a neighbour's land. Turning to the published reports of twenty years (previous to the passing of this Act) we find cases connected with easements in every presidency and in every Court, from the Munsiff's Court in India up to Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. For the assistance of any who may desire to test the value of this argument, I give a few instances which may be verified by referring to the reports. The reference will be found most interesting. Mr Field referred to the reports of over seventy Indian cases relating to easements which might be tabulated as follows—Right of way 34 cases. Right of water, 8 cases. Right to stop or obstruct the natural flow of water, 7 cases. Fall of water from roof of house 2 cases. Light and air 9 cases. Profits a prendre, 2 cases. Other cases connected with easements 11 cases. In this connection it must also be remembered that the number of reported cases on a given subject was only a small fraction of the number of unreported cases on that subject. (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India dated 16th February, 1882.)

'This Act is a measure of which the country had long stood in need.'

This Act it was believed, would do material service in the Central Provinces in enabling the raiyats to maintain themselves in the enjoyment of those grazing and forest rights which the Government had endeavoured to preserve to them but of which a few of the more grasping landowners were seeking to deprive them. (See Abstract Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India dated 16th February, 1882.)

been the customary method to take the water of the stream to augment the supply of the tank without which it would be impossible to cultivate registered wet lands under the ayacut of the tank the Government must be taken to have impliedly recognised this as the customary method of supply for the time being for the irrigation of the wet fields The fact that the stream is not shown as the source of irrigation in the settlement register cannot curtail the rights of the ryots If with the consent and approval of Government water had been diverted from 1893 and Government chose to permit wet cultivation on a large extent knowing full well that without the aid of such water it would not be possible for the ryots to do so the ryots must be deemed to have a right conferred on them by Government a right to the said water and any interference of such right by any one is actionable The ryots can sue for a declaration of their rights and for an injunction restraining interference with such rights by the ryots of another village 46 L W 472=1937 Mad 957 Where the Government as upper riparian owner seeks to use the waters of a public stream not for a riparian tenement but for the purpose of filling a tank situate at a long distance by putting up a permanent dam across the river the right to divert water to such a tank in such manner is in the nature of easement and not a riparian right The lower riparian owner is therefore entitled to insist that there should be no excessive user and that the easement should be enjoyed in a manner consistent with his rights and without increasing the burden of the easement If the Government claims the easement by prescription it is for the Government to show the extent of the prescriptive right The burden is not on the lower riparian owner in an action by him against the Government on the ground of excessive user to prove that he has suffered damages as a result of any specific act of the Government The suit cannot be regarded as one between two riparian proprietors If it is proved that silt has accumulated over or near the dam in a way calculated to obstruct the natural flow of water over the dam the plaintiff (lower riparian owner) is entitled to relief against the defendant (Government) unless the latter can show that the plaintiff's remedy is barred by limitation The obstruction caused to the free flow of water in the river by such accumulation amounts to a nuisance, and the riparian owner who is injured thereby may take steps to abate it even by going on the other person's land if only he can do it peacefully If this is not permitted his remedy is to sue for an in junction and damages. The position is the same even when natural causes combine with the existence of the dam to bring about the obstruction. The fact that the Government has acquired a right by prescription to maintain the dam would not give the Government any immunity in respect of all other obstructions that may arise in the natural course of things by reason of the existence of the dam. Nor can a plea of limitation be raised in respect of the removal of such obstruction. The injury caused to the lower riparian owner by such obstructions is in the nature of a continuing wrong within the meaning of S 23 Limitation Act, and the lower riparian owner would have a cause of action accruing de die in diem until the opposing party acquires a prescriptive right to maintain the obstruction. It is also very doubtful whether a prescriptive right could be acquired at all in respect of a shifting or changing mass like silt accumulation. The acquisition by the Government of a prescriptive right to maintain the dam will not of itself entitle them to all the waters intercepted by the dam but only to such water as they have been accustomed to take. If they are entitled to draw water through a channel with certain dimensions, they cannot enlarge the dimensions of that channel. 174 I C 229=46 L W 862=1938 Mad 180 Customary right, proof of. See 2 (b) CUSTOMARY RIGHT—A custom in order to be valid must be ancient, invariable, reasonable and certain, whereas an easement need not be reasonable. 29 N L R 85=142 I C 153=1933 N 74. When it is found that the inhabitants of a village have certain legal rights arising out of immemorial user of certain land as a village goval which they have never surrendered, the Courts are bound to defend and enforce such rights. 60 C L J 213=1935 C 201 Customary rights—Right of pasturage by long user—Villagers' right to graze cattle over lands of adjacent village—Owner not their landlord—Enforceability of such rights. See 63 C 851 Customary right and prescriptive right—Distinction. 71 M L J 268, 66 C L J 270. The customary right referred to in S 2 (b) of the Easements Act must be one which is possessed irrespective of immoveable property. The right for drainage that is for the water which is on or comes on to the land of a person to flow over certain other ground is a right which is connected with the immoveable property owned by him. Such a right, therefore does not amount to a customary right, but amounts to an easement under S 4 of the Easements Act. 1936 A L J 1160=1936 A 879 Use of building as a mosque with consent of zamindar—If licence—Nature of right. 156 I C 942=1935 A L J 1269=1935 A 891

A CLAIM TO PROFITS a prendre over the soil of another such as a right to fish without stint and for commercial purposes which might lead to the destruction of the subject matter is a claim of right unknown to law and a custom alleged in its support is bad and unreasonable. Though this principle is not, perhaps applicable to the case of a right in gross (fishery) vested in the inhabitants of a particular village the fact that the fish is to be taken for commercial purposes and the fact that under the custom alleged any of the persons has the right to bring in as many others as he chooses on payment of a nominal fee are factors which stamp the custom with considerable uncertainty as regards the persons entitled to exercise the right and unreasonableness that stand in the way of its being pleaded as having created a right. Further though the payment of a reasonable fee is not real objection to the validity of a custom if one such existed the fact that the fee was paid per head of persons fishing was antagonistic to the idea of a right enjoyed without leave and licence. 37 C W N 18=1933 C 539. See also 61 C 43=151 I C 813=1934 C 461

CUSTOMARY EASEMENT AND CUSTOMARY RIGHT, DISTINCTION BETWEEN.—A customary easement remains an easement and can exist only for the beneficial enjoyment of other land. It is merely appurtenant to the dominant heritage and cannot exist in gross. A right over property that exists in gross and not for the beneficial enjoyment of other

OF EASEMENTS GENERALLY

4 An easement is a right which the owner or occupier of certain land possesses, as such, for the beneficial enjoyment of that land, to do and continue to do something, or to prevent and continue to prevent something being done, in or upon, or in respect of, certain other land not his own property is not an easement though it may be a customary right. Such rights exist independently of the Easements Act and are expressly excluded from its operation by S 2 (b). Merely because the villagers have a right to graze in the C class forest land they cannot be said to be occupiers of it nor the claim to go through a particular field in order to reach the C class forest is a claim for the beneficial enjoyment of their houses in the abadi. A right of passage by the villagers through a particular field for going to the Government forest with their cattle is not an easement but a customary right. 29 N L R 85=1933 N 74. OVER WHAT PROPERTY AND HOW CAN EASEMENTS BE ACQUIRED.—Easements can be acquired over artificial structures such as flat masonry or roofs of shops. 45 I C 585=21 O C 78. It is not inconsistent with a claim to property or in the alternative an easement over the same. 41 C L J 379=1925 C 788. The claim in respect of an easement is not incompatible with a claim of ownership. 1938 Nag 415. See also 1939 Nag 197 1939 Sind 110 1933 Bom 122 1939 Bom 149. In order that a plaintiff should prove the right to an easement he must show the exercise of that right with the necessary animus throughout the statutory period. The question of animus is a question of fact to be proved by evidence. Though a plaintiff in a case to establish right of easement may in his pleadings raise inconsistent pleas yet if in the witness box he leads evidence to show that he is the owner of the land over the statutory period or some part of it, he clearly destroys his case which is dependent upon his showing that he is not the owner of the land over the statutory period and has not claimed the rights of owner but the exercise of the rights over the land of another. In such a case the plaintiff must necessarily fail on both the grounds as one plea is fatal to the other. I L R (1939) Kar 307=1939 Sind 110. Neither writing nor registration is necessary for the creation of easement. 96 I C 276 following 31 A 612. The right of easement necessarily implies both the dominant and servient tenements belonging to different persons. No easement could be acquired in favour of one property as against another both owned by the same man. 24 S L R 208=1930 S 34, 1940

Rang L R 93=1939 Rang 421 1937 Cal 572=I L R (1937) 1 Cal 569. For the acquisition of an easement along with other things it is essential that the dominant owner must be a fixed or ascertained person or body of persons capable of acquiring the right. Where the evidence shows that Sindhus in general had been making use of the land in question held that this could not establish a right of easement as Sindhus in general are a variable body of persons who in law are incapable of acquiring any right. 1940 Mar L R 122 (Civ). A suit to enforce an easement can be brought not only by the owner of the land but also by the occupier. 123 I C 230=1930 S 152. The right of person to go and take water from a well standing on a neighbouring land is a right of easement and the Court can grant an injunction restraining a stranger from interfering with the plaintiff's right. It is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that the servient tenement is the tenement of the particular defendant who has interfered with his right. 27 A L J 1120=1929 A 779. Private persons who merely happen to reside in houses in a public lane cannot sue for alleged encroachments in that lane for no right of easement can be acquired over a public lane. 118 I C 570=1929 A 504.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—(1) WHAT ARE EASEMENTS.—The definition of easement applies to a projection of eaves in a dry country as well to a country having abundant rainfall the purposes of the eaves being only to discharge rain water. 38 B 1=21 I C 352=15 Bom L R 876. See also 38 Bom L R 264=1936 B 219.

5 Easements are either continuous or discontinuous, apparent or non-apparent

A continuous easement is one whose enjoyment is, or may be continual without the act of man

A discontinuous easement is one that needs the act of man for its enjoyment.

An apparent easement is one the existence of which is shown by some permanent sign which, upon careful inspection by a competent person, would be visible to him

A non apparent easement is one that has no such sign

See also 18 Pat L T. 806=1938 Pat 71, 1938 Pat 73=174 I C 710 It is now well settled that the right of an upper land owner to throw his surface water on to land at a lower level is a natural right, and not in the strict sense of the word 'an easement'. In other words, it is a right which is not acquired, but is an incident of property owing its origin to the disposition and arrangements of nature. It is incapable therefore of being lost by non user or extinguished permanently, and the maxim "tantum prescriptum quantum possessum" has no application. But these natural rights and liabilities may be altered by contract or grant express or implied as well as by enjoyment of an adverse easement obstructing the flow of the water from the higher to the lower ground. It follows therefore, that if any artificial alteration is made in the configuration or disposition of the lands or any conditions are otherwise created affecting the exercise by the upper owner of his natural right to discharge his surface water to the lower level such as by excavating a khal or channel between the two tenements then this fact alone will not be sufficient to determine whether the natural right is thereby merely suspended for the time being or finally extinguished. The purposes for which and the circumstances in which the altered conditions are brought into existence as well as the subsequent mode of user or enjoyment will all have to be looked into. 74 C L J 95. An owner of a piece of land has a natural right to drain off the rain water that collects on his land into the adjoining lands belonging to another lower down. In India the right of an agriculturist to drain off into the lower lands the water brought into his land for ordinary agricultural operations is a customary right and not a natural right. (Dictum of Sadasiva Aiyer J. to the contrary in 1918 M W N 167 not approved.) Every landowner has a natural right to deal with his surface drainage water as he pleases, he can collect it and use it on his own land or he can let it find its way by gravitation to his neighbour's land if that is at a lower level than his own land but the owner of the lower land may acquire by prescription as an easement restricting this natural right, the right to throw water back to the land at a higher level. Hence where the owner of the lower land has acquired an easement to restrict the natural flow to such an extent as it may be restricted by a bund which has been in existence for over 25 years, the owner of the higher land cannot claim to breach the bund at a particular point to let out the water unless he has acquired such a right as an easement. (11 right v. Howard 24 R R 169, 1 M 335 and 21 C 865 Rel on.) 14 R 544=163 I C 453=1936 R 282. See also 17 Mys I J 123=44 Mys II C R 105. The owner can exercise this right to drain off the water that collects on his land or that is brought into his land, by opening vents in the bund which he has put up along the boundary between his land and the adjoining land lower down, so long as no damage is caused to the owner of the adjoining land. 52 M 426=1929 M 337=56 M L J 311. The right of a riparian owner to use the water of a stream either for irrigation or manufacture is an extraordinary use of water and is subject to the condition that the use of the water by other proprietors should not be affected. 51 I C 949. It is not rightful to a higher riparian owner to use the water for irrigation in such a way as to interfere with an easement acquired by prescription by a lower riparian owner. 44 I C 19. Where through his own fault flood water accumulates on a man's land, his neighbour is entitled to put up bunds to protect his land. The former cannot claim a right of natural drainage and restrain the latter from putting up the bund. 1 R 427=1924 R 86. Where there is a competition between the rights of the owner of land on a higher level to allow water to pass in its natural flow without obstruction and the rights of the owner of the lower land to use it as he pleases the latter's right must give way to the former. In such a case the owner of the lower land cannot erect a bund to obstruct the flow of water. 52 I C 128. 10 Subject to the provisions of section eight, a lessor may impose, on the property leased, any easement that does not derogate from the rights of the lessee as such, and a mortgagor may impose, on the property mortgaged, any easement that does not render the security insufficient. But a lessor or mortgagor cannot, without the consent of the lessee or mortgagee, impose any other easement on such property, unless it be to take effect on the termination of the lease or the redemption of the mortgage.

Explanation—A security is insufficient within the meaning of this section unless the value of the mortgaged property exceeds by one-third, or, if consisting of buildings, exceeds by one-half the amount for the time being due on the mortgage.

11 No lessee or other person having a derivative interest may impose on the property held by him as such, an easement to take effect after the expiration of his own interest, or in derogation of the right of the lessor or the superior proprietor.

Sec 13 (a) —The words "If an easement is necessary" in S 13 (a) imply an absolute necessity and not a mere convenience. It is not enough to show that in the absence of an easement there would be inconvenience felt, but it should be shown that there is an absolute necessity of the easement for the enjoyment of the property. 160 I C 955=1936 M 142, see also 1938 Lah 800=40 P L R 787, 1 I L R (1937) Nag 204=1937 Nag 179, 178 I C 803=1939 Pat 164 1 I L R (1939) Nag 580=1939 Nag 197=1939 N L J 297. But the easement does not extend to going over the neighbour's roof for that purpose. 16 I C 893. A person is also entitled to enter his neighbour's house or land to protect his cave which project over the neighbour's house. 16 I C 893. A pankh or projection of a roof of a house over the neighbouring land is an easement and not a trespass or occupation of property giving rise to any rights to the property covered by the projection by adverse possession. Such a right has to be acquired like any other easement by grant or prescription and once it is acquired by prescription it becomes absolute under S 15 of the Easements Act. 163 I C 293=38 Bom L R 264=1936 B 219. On a severance of tenements the transferee of plots sold for building purposes acquires as an easement under the provisions of S 13 (a) of the Easements Act the right of lateral support for the building which is intended to be constructed on the plots sold against the adjoining plots of the severed property. 164 I C 102=1936 O W N 865.

Sec 13 (b) —In order to bring a case within S 13 (b) it must be established inter alia that the easement claimed is apparent and continuous. 117 I C 381=1929 L 848. Under S 13 (b) the necessity need not be absolute. Even a qualified necessity such as has been described with reference to the previous enjoyment is quite enough. Rule applied to a claim for the flow of water from the roof through a spout. 7 O W N 652=125 I C 840. The existence of vents through which adjoining lands were being irrigated is evidence of an apparent, continuous and necessary easement which passes to the transferee under S 13 (b). 45 M L J 724=1924 M 108. An act done for the proper enjoyment of an easement such as closing the vents after irrigation or in the course of the enjoyment of an easement which is continuous would not render the easement a non-continuous easement. 45 M L J 724.

There is nothing to prevent a claim to title by lost grant being made under the Indian law apart from S 15 of the Easements Act. The Act is remedial and is neither prohibitory nor exhaustive 59 M 979=1936 M 682=71 M L J 187. See also 1929 M W N 528. Easements are not capable of being possessed and unless such rights have ripened into prescriptive rights recognized by law mere enjoyment for anything less than the statutory period does not confer on the enjoyer a right to maintain an action against a trespasser interfering with his enjoyment 1940 Oudh 111=1939 O W N 992. One of the necessary conditions of a right of easement is that it must be certain. Thus where only a right of way is claimed and allowed the decree must state the limits of the pathway 148 I C 431=1934 P 420. Easements are not capable, in an exact sense of being possessed. The enjoyment which may in time ripen into an easement is not possession and gives no possessory right before the expiry of twenty years 29 I C 255=38 M 280. When user is proved the presumption is that it is of right 86 I C 595 (2)=1925 L 344. There is no reason why the expression 'as of right' which appears both in S 26 Limitation Act, and S 15 Easements Act should not receive the same interpretation as in English Law 30 S L R 32=163 I C 137=1936 S 61. Where a person makes a payment for the use of land such user is by license and is not a user by right 1933 A L J 516=1933 A 623. Long continued user would be ascribed to lawful origin 58 I A 195=54 M 427=61 M L J 1 (P C). It is no doubt incumbent on the person claiming easement to establish that his user was as of right but the law presumes that it is as of right that is to say it has a lawful origin if he proves open and notorious user. On proof of the fact of enjoyment from time immemorial there must arise a presumption of a legal origin for the right claimed. Hence where a person had been exercising his right of way for himself for his servants and for his carts from remote past as appurtenant to his shop and relations between the parties were not such as to indicate that the user was attributable to leave or license, it must be presumed that his user was as of right I L R 1939 Nag 580=1939 Nag 197. See also 1939 Sind 110. Ineffectual opposition to the exercise of what is claimed to be a right of easement is evidence rather in support of the right than of its non existence 58 I A 195. While the mere putting forward of a wider claim in legal proceeding is not conclusive against a right of easement, yet the question que animo egerit, to what purported character are the acts of user to be described is one which the Court must answer. The question in each case is one of fact as to whether the acts of user are referable to a purported character of owner or to the claim to an easement. Even in the case of an enjoyment from time immemorial it would be equally necessary for the plaintiff to prove a user as of right as an easement as distinguishable from a right of ownership. 1930 P 7. The mere claim of the higher right of ownership does not prevent a person from acquiring the lesser right of easement provided he could show that he asserted certain rights over the servient tenement for the benefit of the dominant tenement belonging to him. The right of the person depends upon the actual circumstances of the case established by evidence and not upon an unfounded assertion of a claim. 1930 P 7. An easement is a restriction in favour of one owner or occupier of the immovable property of the rights of ownership of the immovable property of another owner. The restriction cannot be built up or asserted without consciousness of the rights which are restricted. 23 N L R 117=104 I C 431=1927 N 334. Right of easement can be established not only by terms of the grant but also by circumstantial evidence and presumptions. 58 I A 195=54 M 427=35 C W N 605=61 M L J 1 (P C). Where there is evidence of long enjoyment in a particular way it is the habit and duty of the Court so far as it lawfully can to clothe the fact with right. 148 I C 215=1934 Pat 11. It is open to the Court to infer a grant from immemorial user alone when such user is open as of right and without interruption. But a grant will not be inferred if the user may be explained in some other way than by a grant. 155 I C 719=60 C L J 321=1935 C 253. See also 30 S L R 32=163 I C 137=1936 S 61. See also 22 Pat L T 699=1941 Pat 260. User from time immemorial may no doubt give rise to a presumption of a lost grant or public dedication of a right of way. But user short of that may also be the foundation of such a presumption. For the purpose of presuming dedication there can be no hard and fast rule as to the length of time for which the user must be proved. Whether or not dedication may be presumed really depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. The mere fact that user has not been proved for a long series of years may not always be a conclusive reason for shutting out such a presumption. 44 C W N 1029. It is open to the Courts to recognise acquisition of the easement by the claimant if he could prove continuous enjoyment for the requisite period by himself or his immediate predecessor in occupation of the property. 168 I C 921=1937 Nag 38. In order to establish a right of easement under S 15 a plaintiff has to establish user for the statutory period. He has to establish that the user is as of right, but the law presumes that it is as of right, that is to say, that it has a lawful origin if the plaintiff proves open and notorious user. That presumption is however, rebuttable, and the defendant may show that the facts are such that the user was not as of right, e.g., he can show that the user was under license not amounting to a grant or he can show fraud in the sense it is used in relation to this subject, or he can show force, or he can show secrecy. Those would show that it was not as of right. 20 N L J 12=171 I C 121. Under S 15 there are two requirements to be fulfilled: first the enjoyment must be up to within two years of the date of suit and secondly that up to that time it must have been enjoyed for 20 years and without interruption. The period of enjoyment up to within two years of the suit need not be a period of actual user up to the last moment, provided the absence of user does not amount to absence of enjoyment whether it does or not is a question which depends on the facts of each case. The onus is on the person claiming the easement to prove the user. If there is not merely non user but actual abandonment then the person claiming the easement cannot succeed. 15 Luck 509=1940 O W N 267=1940 Oudh 197. This Act does not contemplate any acquisition of easement against an occupier of land and not against an owner. An easement is acquired in the land and not against one or more of the persons interested in the land. Under S 15 the right acquired by prescription is absolute: it is not possible to hold that such a right exists only against the occupier and not against the owner. The right which is absolute is a right in the land itself and an absolute right against all persons connected with the land whether as owners or as occupiers. Where an easement of light and air is claimed on the ground of 30 years' user over land held by a Railway Company, but it is found that the land is the property of the Government the claim must fail and cannot succeed when there is no allegation or proof of 60 years' user, the plaintiff cannot claim on the basis of 30 years' user a right as against the Railway Company as occupier as distinct from the Government as owner. 1937 A 428=1937 A L J 249. dant has consistently claimed ownership in the land he cannot claim to have acquired an easement as the user has not been with the animus of enjoying the easement as such in the land of another. The question of immemorial user has nothing to do with it. 55 B 427=34 Bom L R 1015=1932 B 513 S 4 of the Easements Act shows that not merely the "owner" but even an occupier may acquire an easement and there is no prima facie reason why the enjoyment of a person is an "occupier" should not be tacked on under S 15 to his enjoyment as "owner", if there is no interruption in his use. 152 I C 216=1934 M 575=67 M L J 262. See also 1037 A 428=1937 A L J 249. To support a claim to a prescriptive right of way over a pathway the pathway must be enjoyed peaceably and openly as an easement without interruption for more than 20 years. It is not necessary that it should be used every moment to constitute enjoyment. Cessation of user is not inconsistent with the continuance of the enjoyment of the right. Cessation of user for a time while the right is being acquired does not stand on a different basis from that where the right has already been acquired by 20 years user. But an enjoyment physically incapable of interruption would not confer any right of easement by prescription. 60 C L J 412=1935 C 282. The presumption of constructive enjoyment can no more be made in favour of a person acquiring easement by prescription than the presumption of constructive possession made in favour of a trespasser acquiring prescriptive title. If there is a grant it is construed against the grantor but in case of prescriptive right its extent must be measured and determined by the accustomed user. It is on this principle that a servitude acquired for one purpose cannot lawfully be used for another. Hence where a person has by prescription acquired a right of way on others land for himself his servants and carts the right of way cannot be presumed to include the passage for sweepers. Nor can such a presumption be based on the circumstances that the houses occupied by the parties had at one time belonged to a common owner unless the way was necessary for enjoying the tenement which was purchased by the person claiming easement. Government land in the management of Municipal Board—Proof of user for 60 years essential—Land leased out to tenant whether makes any difference. 1928 O 17=4 O W N 1035. When a person prays the Court to presume a lost grant as against Government it is reasonable to infer that such a grant cannot be presumed unless there is evidence of a user which would be sufficient to establish a right by prescription and against Government, that is to say, unless there is evidence of sixty years' user. At any rate it is impossible to infer a lost grant on the basis of immemorial user when the evidence shows positively that fifty years ago no such grant had been made. 162 I C 97=1936 M 692. See also 71 M L J 187=59 M 979. If it is found that for a sufficiently long time, covering a period of over 30 years all the water, both rain water as well as water brought on to the upper land by artificial means for agricultural purposes is allowed to pass into the lower land without any interruption by the proprietor thereof, the Court will easily infer a custom and that the customary conditions of the locality require such user. The doctrine of lost grant can be invoked for the purpose of inferring such a custom. It is not necessary that the words "lost grant" or "customary user" should in so many words be pleaded. All that is necessary to be alleged in order to infer a doctrine of lost grant or a claim based on prescription is long continual and peaceful possession. Where these incidents are found, the Court will presume a grant of the right. The fact that both the proprietors are ryotwari owners holding under the Government a common landlord is no bar to the acquisition of a title by prescription or lost grant by one against another. The estate of the ryotwari proprietor is an estate in the soil and is heritable and alienable, and he has sufficient estate to support a grant of an easement. 59 M 979=1936

WATER RIGHTS—Where the plaintiff had been enjoying the water by means of channels through which water passed to a tank for a certain number of years, no prescriptive right was acquired to receive the water through the channels unobstructed so as to entitle the plaintiff to seek the removal of these obstructions caused by the defendants. 23 Bom L R 1004=46 B 115. See also 43 L W 330. A prescriptive right of easement to discharge surplus water on the defendant's land through a channel across the public road cannot be acquired. 19 C L J 42=21 I C 857=18 C W N 378. Where an underground channel had been in existence between the lands of the plaintiff and defendant across a public path way for over twenty years to the knowledge of the public authorities and the plaintiff had been accustomed to discharge the water from his land through this channel on to the defendant's land and it appeared that the channel was a pucca one constructed with brick and chunam covered over with stone and the public authorities not only did not object to it for all these 20 years but actually approved of it as a public convenience. Held though an easement in the strict sense of the term may not have been acquired against the Secretary of State—the enjoyment having been short of 60 years—where it is called an easement or licence or grant the channel must be considered to have been used by the plaintiff in a lawful manner and that the plaintiff was entitled to maintain an action against the defendant when the latter interfered with the plaintiff's user of the channel. 40 L W 281=1934 M 543=67 M L J 382. There can be no possessory rights in connection with incorporeal rights (Ibid). A right to irrigate his punya land through a channel in the adjoining nanja land of another ryot can be acquired by a ryot by prescription. If such right has been enjoyed for over 20 years he can get a declaration of such right. It is not necessary that the plaintiff should establish a right to water against the government for this purpose. 1937 M W N 920. Under S 15 a right of fishing cannot be acquired by prescription but from uninterrupted user such a grant may be presumed. 43 I C 962=14 N L J 35. See also 37 C W N 18. (A claim of fishery without stint and for commercial purposes which might lead to the total destruction of the subject matter is a right unknown to law and the custom alleged in its support is unreasonable.) OVERHANGING TREES—An owner or occupier of land has no right to allow his trees to overhang his neighbour's land and he cannot acquire such a right by prescription. 40 L W 639=67 M L J 442. No right of easement can be acquired in respect of a tree which gradually projects over his neighbour's land insensibly and by slow degrees. The owner of tree has consequently no right to prevent a person lawfully in possession of land into which or over which its roots or branches have grown from cutting away so much of them as project into or over his land. But it is a settled maxim that a grantor shall not derogate from his grant. Where an owner of two adjacent plots of land transfers or sells one of them together with a tree standing thereon which is not a tiny plant or sapling but an ancient tree of about 100 years old whose growth has practically ceased it must be held that a right to project the existing boughs of the tree over the vendor's land is also transferred to the vendee. To allow the transferor to cut off the branches overhanging his land (which has not been transferred) would be to violate the maxim that the grantor shall not derogate from his grant. If he intends to reserve to himself the right to lop off the projecting branches he should expressly reserve. It is not necessary that the vendee should be given under the sale deed an express right to project the branches in order to entitle him to prevent the vendor from cutting off the branches. 47 L W 324=1938 Mad 511=(1938) 1 M L J 510. It is settled law that an owner of land can cut the branches of trees standing on his neighbour's land which overhang on his land. The fact that the two plots of land were once held in common ownership and the plot with the trees thereon with the branches overhanging on the other is transferred by partition or sale makes no difference so far as the application of the rule is concerned. To have the branches of a tree overhang on the land of another is not in the nature of a right of easement and it cannot be acquired by prescription at common law or statute either under English law or Indian law. In other words there is no right of easement or customary right to have the branches of a tree overhang on another man's land. To allow the branches of one's tree to overhang on another's land is to commit a nuisance which that another has a right to abate by cutting off the branches. 1936 M 702=71 M L J 296. A right to overhang the branches of one's trees over the land of his neighbour may, no doubt, by apt words be granted. But such a right cannot be implied from a grant of the land with the trees on it because the result of allowing the branches to overhang is an unlimited and indefinite area of the neighbour's land would be subject to the burden which would virtually deprive him of his right to use his land as he wishes.

so long as the branches are allowed to overhang the owner of the trees will also be the owner of the branches and the produce thereon and it may be that the adjoining owner will have to permit the owner of the trees to take the produce 1936 M 702=71 M L J 296

RIGHT OF WAY—One of the necessary conditions of a right of easement is that it must be certain. Where a right of way is claimed and allowed the decree should state definitely the limits of the pathway. When the two termini are known the right to the way does not fail merely for want of a defined track between them and if the owner of the servient tenement does not point out the line of such way the dominant owner must take the nearest way he can. If the owner of the servient tenement wishes to confine him to a particular track he must set out a reasonable way and then the person is not entitled to go out of the way merely because the way is rough and there are ruts in it and so forth 148 I C 431=1934 P 420. Where a passage has been found to have been used openly uninterruptedly and peaceably for about 50 years it can be presumed that the right had a legal origin and that those using it had a right to use it 1939 A L J 821=I L R (1939) All 754=1939 All 586. A person who is in enjoyment of an easement such as a right of way but who has not acquired a title to it by prescription or otherwise cannot ordinarily maintain an action to prevent its obstruction by a stranger. An action can only be maintained in very exceptional cases where access to his land would otherwise be cut off altogether or if the obstruction to the user of the right of way will have the effect of substantially depriving a person of the enjoyment of his property I L R (1941) Mad 367=53 L W 8=1941 Mad 176=(1941) 1 M L J 145 (F B). It is true that an owner can subject one part of his property by a quasi easement in favour of another part and if afterwards he alienates a portion of his land the purchaser takes the portion with all the convenience or quasi easements which the proprietor has attached to it. But this applies only when the quasi easements are continuous and apparent. There could be no implied grant where the easements are not continuous and non apparent. A right of way is neither continuous nor always an apparent easement and hence would not ordinarily come under the above rule. Exception is no doubt made in certain cases where there is a formed road existing over one part of the tenement for the apparent use of another portion or there is some permanence in the adaptation of the tenement from which continuity may be inferred but barring these exceptions an ordinary right of way would not pass on severance unless language is used by the grantor to create a fresh easement. Where however a deed of conveyance describes the property conveyed as bounded by a common passage, an implied grant of a right of passage may be presumed, and the extent of such right has got to be gathered from the language of the document as well as from the surrounding circumstances of the case. Ordinarily such right of passage does not include the right to use it as a metoher passage for the cleansing of a privy 41 C W N 1169=1937 Cal 661. See also 1939 N L J 297=1939 Nag 197. The terms 'immemorial user' and 'from time immemorial' had a connotation in English Law which obviously could not be applied to Indian society and circumstances 56 B 82=1932 B 130. A right of way cannot be acquired by a tenant over the lands of the landlord within his tenancy except by grant 34 I C 450=20 C W N 1158. See also 1936 S 61=30 S L R 32. It is true that a lessee of land cannot acquire a right of way or any other easement over land owned by his lessor as having been peaceably and openly enjoyed by a person claiming title thereto and of right within the meaning of the third clause of S 15 in such a case the tenant's occupation is in the sight of the law that of his landlord. But where a lessee of land owns a building built upon land leased to him he may so far as the use of light and air or support for his building is concerned acquire rights of easement in respect of such light air or support under Cls (1) and (2) of S 15 and these rights cannot be objected to as being incapable of being acquired by him on behalf of his lessor as well as against him for those rights are acquired by him for himself and for none other than himself as owner of the building I L R (1941) Kar 381=1941 Sind 211.  These rights cannot co-exist as they are mutually exclusive The adverse posses-

In other words there is no right to a monopoly. Such an exclusive right can be claimed only under a Crown grant. 1935 A L J 444=1935 A 481 To establish a right under this section twenty years of uninterrupted user must be shown. 25 I C 405=12 A L J 693 As to presumption from long user see 91 I C 987=1926 O 237 As to the effect of unreasonable user see 92 I C 465=1926 M 625 The period of user must be twenty years or more ending within two years before the institution of the suit wherein the claims to which such period relates is contested. 24 I C 126=12 A L J 415 In a case of a claim to a right of easement the period of twenty years should end within two years of the suit. It is immaterial whether there was or was not a period of twenty years user at some period beyond two years before the date of plaint. A period of twenty years user in the fifteenth century for instance cannot have any bearing on a claim to easement. 1933 A L J 516=1933 A 623 In a case not of prescriptive easement but of one arising from a grant it is not necessary for the plaintiff to establish twenty years exercise of the right of easement or its continuance till a time within two years before the institution of the suit. 150 I C 601=1934 A 447 No minimum limit of time can be laid down to justify an inference of immemorial uses. The question whether such an user is established depends on the circumstances of each case. 45 B 1027=62 I C 65 Peaceable enjoyment means one without interruption or opposition by the servient owner sufficient to defeat the enjoyment. 49 I C 963=21 Bom L R 709 The obstruction must find expression in something done on the servient tenement itself. 45 B 1027=23 Bom L R 422 Mere protest does not amount to such obstruction. 45 B 1027 The mere fact that the land is waste does not necessarily show that no right can be acquired over such land. If that were so the right of user over almost every pathway in the mofussil would be lost, inasmuch as almost every pathway lies over waste land. 65 I C 509 In determining the question whether an user of way over waste land was as of right or not the Court would have to consider the character of the land the relation between the parties and the circumstances under which the user took place. 65 I C 509 See also 56 B 427=34 Bom L R 1015=1937

B 513 If an easement has been enjoyed for the statutory period peaceably and openly as of right without interruption, the right becomes absolute. 26 I C 781 A long and uninterrupted user for a long series of years leads to the inference that the user had been as of right and that the right had a lawful origin. 35 I C 749=4 L W 128 A prescriptive right can be acquired only if the enjoyment of the easement ended 'before the beginning of the two years next before the suit was instituted. 33 I C 503 See also 29 M L J 685, 1923 O 29 Enjoyment may be peaceable notwithstanding oral disputes regarding it. 29 M L J 685=31 I C 528 The adverb 'peaceably' indicates the manner in which the dominant owner must conduct himself in his use of the servient tenement, i.e. the person claiming a right of easement must not have deprived the servient owner of that right by use of force or secretly. 29 M L J 685 See also 19 Mys L J 339 A statutory prescriptive title to an easement is impossible to be acquired under S 15 unless and until the claim thereto has been contested in a regular suit. 29 M L J 685 See also 1923 O 29 17 I C 22=10 A L J 227 Enjoyment for less than the prescriptive period if entitles the persons enjoying to an injunction against trespasser. 30 I C 989=18 M L T 515 The words 'as an easement' do not mean that the enjoyment should be in the assertion of claim of an easement. Explanation I.—Nothing is an enjoyment within the meaning of this section when it has been had in pursuance of an agreement with the owner or occupier of the property over which the right is claimed, and it is apparent from the agreement that such right has not been granted as an easement, or, if granted as an easement, that it has been granted for a limited period, or subject to a condition on the fulfilment of which it is to cease.

right. 9 M L T. 274=9 I.C. 764 User which is neither physically capable of prevention by the owner of the servient tenement nor actionable, cannot support an easement. This principle applies both to affirmative and negative easements. So long, therefore, as the two tenements were held in joint ownership there can be no acquisition of an easement by prescription in favour of one tenement against the other. (Sturges v. Bridgman, 11 C.D. 852; 28 Bom L.R. 1000 and 19 C. 253, Foll.). 56 B. 427=34 Bom L.R. 1015=1932 B. 513; 60 C.L.J. 412=1935 C. 282.

Sec. 15, Expl. 1.—Where, in the absence of a licence or agreement, the defendants were found to have been using a way over plaintiff's land openly, peaceably and as of right for over the statutory period, held, the defendants had acquired an easement in respect of that right. 9 I.C. 640=9 M L T. 350 Continuous and peaceable user of easement of light and air for more than twenty years may give rise to a presumption that it existed with the consent of the owner of the servient heritage. 71 I.C. 831=1923 N. 192. See also 58 I.A. 195=54 M. 427=61 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). The right to receive light across another's land is not a natural incident of property but can only be acquired as an easement either by grant or prescription. Unless and until such a right has been acquired in the manner of other easements, no amount or mode of obstruction is actionable. 46 C.W.N. 136 An easement of light and air need not be proved to have been enjoyed as of right. It is enough if there is enjoyment. 61 I.C. 569. An open user of road or path, without interruption, for a long time, not under permission or sufferance, is prima facie evidence of enjoyment as of right. 61 I.C. 569 Under S. 15 (5) plaintiff has to show a period of 20 years continuing up to some point within two years before the institution of the suit. 1923 O. 29. The fifth paragraph of S. 15 of the Easements Act seems to render it impossible to acquire statutory prescriptive title of an easement, unless and until the claim thereto has been contested in a suit. 1923 O. 29. The right to the lateral support to a wall from a neighbour's land, is acquired only by prescription. 68 I.C. 831=14 L.W. 728. See also 1929 M.W.N. 523 Where it was shown that the plaintiff's wall collapsed as a result of a deep drain cut close to the wall by the defendant, but it was not shown that any portion of the soil on the plaintiff's land had fallen into the drain and it was also not proved that the period of 20 years had expired before the alleged encroachment. Held, that S. 15 and not S. 7 applied to the facts of the case, and that the easement by prescription not having been established the plaintiff was not entitled to recover damages. 1930 A.L.J. 340. A right of way over one part may be acquired by grant, and over another, by prescription. 57 I.C. 852. Where a pathway has been used by all the residents of the village, and on both sides of it abut houses of the residents of the village, the presumption is that the passage has been kept for the common use of the residents of the village and is, therefore, a public pathway. Under such circumstances there must be a presumption of dedication of the land under the passage for public pathway. User for any number of years is not necessary to establish a right to pass over the public pathway. User, on the other hand, is merely an evidence of original dedication in such cases. 38 P.L.R. 500=1936 L. 797 A right of easement is claimable on the land of another by the owner of land. It is not a personal right, but it attaches to land and is exercisable over another's land. A public pathway, however, may be on another's land but the exercise of a right of passage over it does not necessarily require that the person claiming it must prove that he is the owner of some land. In other words, the existence of a dominant tenement is not necessary. 38 P.L.R. 500=1936 L. 797. The fact that a passage leading from a public place is not proved to terminate also at a public place is no reason for holding that it is not a public passage. Where it does not stop at the land of a private owner but proceeds further to a great distance, that is, an important factor in support of the claim of the public, especially when it is not shown that it has terminated in private grounds. 39 C.W.N. 303=60 C.L.J. 556. See also 1 L.R. 1937 N. 21=1937 Nag. 322. When a public right of way is claimed over lands belonging to a private owner, it is not legitimate to presume from long user an intention to dedicate the lands for public use and then to examine the evidence adduced on behalf of the private owner to see if the presumption has been rebutted by him. The evidence must be examined as a whole and then the inference either in favour of or against the dedication must be drawn. It is wrong to deal with the evidence in compartments. 39 C.W.N. 303=60 C.L.J. 556 An easement exercised by the defendant was merely one of access from the road, over the strip of land belonging to plaintiff to the defendant's land for a limited and special purpose. A particular path left by the plaintiff for the exercise of the easement was blocked but another path was opened later on and had since been used. Held, that the easement was a discontinuous, non apparent, positive easement with nothing in its nature to limit it to a particular path and the erection of new path by the plaintiff did not constitute an interruption of the easement. 115 I C 884=1929 P 124. The object of S 15 of the Act in requiring that the user should be open is that it must be of a nature from which a presumption would arise that the owner of the land had knowledge that his land was being so used and that he had acquiesced in it. Where the evidence did not show that the cattle by using the defendant's land had formed any path on the land which would put the owner on inquiry and it further appeared that the land was not being continuously used for the purpose throughout the year but only during the wet season and that no particular path was used but the cattle simply strayed on the land. Held, that under those circumstances no presumption as to constructive notice could arise and that the easement of the right of way for the cattle was not made out. 31 Bom L R 120=1929 B 144. Where the owner of a mak a tree complained of the construction of a wall by the defendant which prevented him from collecting the fruit of the tree the branches of which overhang the wall but it was found on the evidence that the wall was constructed three years before the suit was brought. Held that assuming that the plaintiff had a right of easement he could not enforce it because of S 15 of the Easements Act. 114 I C 512.

MODE OF ENJOYMENT—The presumption of lost grant should not be made merely upon establishment of user for a period of 20 years or more. What has to be found as raising the presumption of lost grant is user from time immemorial although the period for which such user need be proved must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. 57 C L J 31. No presumption of a lost grant can be made in the case of the right of fishery where the use of the fishery was in harmony with the right of the public to fish by stakes which is acknowledged method of public fishing on the West Coast of India. 23 Bom L R 939. Possession of the dar (space between two fishing stakes) for over sixty years does not perfect into an easement by way of prescriptive right. 23 Bom L R 939. As to presumption of lost grant see also 96 I C 317=1926 M 788. A plaintiff is entitled to have his right of way declared if he establishes the terminus to and from which the way runs. And the right would be enjoyed in the way the servient owners point out as the tract. If no tract is pointed out, the plaintiff can enjoy the nearest route. 46 I C 374=22 C W N 922. No use of property which would be legal if due to a proper motive would be come illegal, if prompted by an improper or even a malicious motive. 42 C 164=20 C L J 97=18 C W N 1296. The extent of a right acquired by prescription is measured by the extent of the use and enjoyment thereof during the prescriptive period. (Ibid). It is not necessary to prove annual or continuous user, but only substantial enjoyment whenever the occasion required. The mere fact that the openings made were different in different years does not make the user indefinite when the channels through which the water was taken were the same. 15 C W N 259=13 C L J 670. The fact that the servient owner paid a certain sum for the repair of the embankment for his own benefit does not make the user permissive. 15 C W N 259=13 C L J 670. Period of twenty years to be completed prior to institution of suit—No right to protect inchoate right—Fact of servient owner of dominant owner suing in respect of easement immaterial. See 113 I C 525. As to presumption of implied grant see 1937 Cal 661=41 C W N 1169.

EASEMENT AGAINST GOVERNMENT—To claim 60 years rule of easement, there must be Government ownership on the date when the easement is claimed and not at some antecedent period. 116 I C 806=1929 A 382. See also 1936 M 692. A plaintiff claiming a right of easement against Government must prove sixty years' peaceful and uninterrupted user and the rule of law that the burden of proof is shifted on to Government if the plaintiff proves possession for a sufficient number of years is not applicable if the plaintiff fails to prove the completion of even the prescriptive period necessary against a private individual. 26 I C 723=39 M 304. See also 1928 O 17=4 O W N 1035, 45 I C 80=34 M L J 425. (Acquisition of right in water in Government channel). If the plaintiff proves 30 years possession the Government must prove that he had no possession within 60 years. 16 I C 626=12 M L T 159. The words 'belongs to the Government' in S 15 refer not to the time of the suit but to the duration of enjoyment. 41 M 622=34 M L J 395. When after 40 years enjoyment against the Government, the latter transfers the land to a private person the easement in order to become absolute must be enjoyed as against the transferee for a further period of 20 years. 41 M 622. The period of 20 years must be computed from the time when the transfer was made to a private person. 41 M 622.

GOVERNMENT LAND IN OCCUPATION OF PERSON WITH LIMITED RIGHT—S 15 of the Easements Act insists on a period of 60 years' user not merely when the easement is claimed as against the Government but over any property belonging to Government.

The word 'belongs' in the section should not be restricted to cases where possession and ownership continue to remain with the Government and the clause applies to cases where any person with a limited right is in occupation of land belonging to Government 40 L W 514=1934 M 575=67 M L J 262 See also 71 M L J 268, 43 L W 330

PROPERTY OVER WHICH PATHWAY LAY BELONGING TO GOVERNMENT—RIGHTS OF THIRD PARTIES—The plaintiff as the owner of a certain survey number in a village sued to restrain defendants 1 and 2 who claimed to be trustees of a temple, from interfering with the plaintiff's use of a pathway across suit survey number and the Government also was impleaded as a party. The lower appellate Court found that the suit survey number belonged to the Government who had allowed its use in favour of the temple. On the contention that though for want of 60 years user the plaintiff had not acquired an easement as against the Government, he had by reason of 20 years user acquired a limited right which was sufficient to prevail as against any interest which private persons like defendants 1 and 2 might possess in that property. Held assuming the possibility of acquisition of an easement against the holder of a limited interest the acquisition was possible only to the extent to which a grant might be possible within the terms of S 8 of the Easements Act and as no such grant by the temple would be possible having regard to the nature of its interest in the property the plaintiff would not by 20 years user acquire prescriptive right as against property which belonged to Government even to the extent of preventing defendants 1 and 2 from interfering with his user of the way. Held also that though it might be a question whether a mere stranger could obstruct another person in the exercise of even what might be called an inchoate right of easement the position of the defendants 1 and 2 could not be compared to that of a mere stranger or a licensee 1934 M 575=67 M L J 262

BURDEN OF PROOF—The onus of proving that a right of way has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right without interruption and for 20 years lies upon the person asserting the right 25 I C 499 See also 18 L W 404=1923 M 674 The question in each case must be what is the exact nature of the right which is shown by the evidence to have been acquired by the party? See 1923 M 674 supra S 15 (1) applies both to continuous and discontinuous easements 17 I C 22=10 A L J 227 The question of animus is in each case, a question of fact. Where enjoyment is proved the person enjoying the right must be presumed to possess an animus which is manifestly to his advantage 53 A 16=1931 A 877 Where it is a question of acquisition of an easement by prescription the burden lies entirely on the plaintiff to prove 20 years' enjoyment and not mere possession for 12 years and then say the onus is shifted on to the defendant 33 I C 503

DEFENCES—When a right has begun to run under S 15 and the servient holder sues to put an end to it the defendant can not plead in bar of it Art 32 of the Limitation Act 33 I C 90 When the defendant has a right of support from the plaintiff's wall abutting on the defendant's property for a roof of his adjoining house it is an encroachment of that right if the defendant raises his wall and erects upon it another thatch resting on the plaintiff's wall 33 I C 90 The limit of a party's right of support must be determined by his actual enjoyment up to the date of the encroachment complained of by the opposite party 33 I C 90 As to right of support see also 59 C 363=1932 C 542 If a man's ancient rights be interrupted it is no answer to say that he can provide other sources of light for himself by making changes in his own tenement nor that defendant is willing to provide fresh light for him in another way 36 M 11=21 M L J 742 Where a party causes injury to another he cannot object to appropriate relief being granted to his opponent on the ground that he would suffer serious injury by being compelled to undo the mischief 36 M 11 There is no difference in the application of the law as regards the interference with ancient lights to buildings in cities and elsewhere 36 M 11 In order to establish a right of easement under S 15 a plaintiff has to establish user for the statutory period. He has to establish that the user is as of right but the law presumes that it is as of right that is to say that it has a lawful origin if the plaintiff proves open and notorious user. That presumption is however rebuttable and the defendant may show that if he can that the facts are such that the user was not as of right e.g., he can show that the user was under license not amounting to a grant or he can show fraud in the sense it is used in relation to this subject or he can show force or he can show secrecy. Those would show that it was not as of right 20 N L J 12 See also 1936 S 61

NATURE OF OBSTRUCTION (EXPL 11)—To constitute an actionable obstruction there must be substantial privation of light enough to render the occupation uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind 9 I C 417=21 M L J 313 Where the owner of the building is in the course of acquiring a right of easement by prescription when his house is being down, and he begins immediately to rebuild his house and place the windows exactly in the same position as the old ones he can be regarded as enjoying the access and use of light and air continuously and he will be entitled to protection after twenty years from the first building 46 B 448=24 Bom L R 83=

PLEADINGS—PLEAS OF OWNERSHIP AND EASEMENT—PERMISSIBILITY—No doubt as a rule a plaintiff should not be allowed to put forward contradictory pleas but the pleas of ownership and easement though inconsistent are not contradictory and can be put forward in the alternative The important point to be considered in such a matter is the question quo animo egerit with reference to the user allowed by the plaintiff in other words if the plaintiff had used a way on an assertion of title of owner he could not put forward such user in support of a right of easement That view however does not prevent the putting forward of alternative pleas in a suit though at the trial of the suit the character of the user and the question of quo animo egerit would have to be decided and if the user is proved one plea would have to be affirmed and the other rejected 29 N L R 330=1933 N 257 See also I L R (1939) Nag 580=1939 N L I 297=1939 Nag 197 1939 Nag 415 1925 Cal 788 It is not the law that a person cannot acquire an easement unless during the whole prescriptive period he acts with the conscious knowledge that it is a case of a dominant and servient tenement and that he is exercising a right over property which does not belong to him A plaintiff may claim an easement and ownership in the alternative If he shows that for the statutory period he has openly exercised certain rights which are in themselves sufficient to establish an easement prima facie he is entitled to the easement and it is not necessary to show that during the whole of the prescriptive period he was consciously asserting a right to an easement A right to an easement by prescription can not be defeated merely by showing that during the whole or part of the period of prescription the plaintiff was not consciously claiming an easement I L R (1939) Bom 140=41 Bom L R 168=1939 Bom 149 See also 35 Bom L R 144=1933 Bom 122 1939 Sind 110 The question of immemorial user or lost grant must be pleaded in every case before a person can be given relief on that head Whether the action be brought against the servient owner or a stranger a party cannot safely allege his right to an easement generally but should state specifically the manner in which he claims title to the easement, whether by grant (actual or lost) prescription at Common Law or under the Prescription Act Where the plaintiffs did allege circumstances namely the user by themselves and by their ancestors of the land as pathway for 40 or 50 years the plaintiff may on a liberal construction be taken to have relied upon long user leading to an inference of lost grant 142 I C 458=1933 C 215=56 C L J 274 The presumption of lost grant should not be made merely upon establishment of user for a period of 20 years or more What has to be found as raising the presumption of lost grant is user from time immemorial although the period for which such user need be proved must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case 57 C L J 31 See also 41 C W N 1169=1937 Cal 661, 142 I C 458=1933 C 215

SECS 15 AND 16 OBSTRUCTION TO ANCIENT LIGHT—REMEDY—INJUNCTION OR DAMAGES—The law does not know of any natural right apart from a right of easement with reference to a right of passage or right to light and air. No one can claim any natural right against another unless he establishes an easement to that effect 160 I C 955=1936 M 142 Where the defendant obstructs the ancient light of the plaintiff by erecting a building and plaintiff sues for injunction to have the building demolished or for damages the question whether an injunction shall issue or whether the plaintiff must be content with an award of damages must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. If it is clear that damages will afford adequate relief to the injured party and the defendant has not been guilty of any high handed action or unneighbourly conduct, an award in damages is the appropriate remedy. If the property is still substantially useful to him depreciation in value can be met by a decree for damages but where the defendant's building deprives plaintiff to a very great extent of his best source of light and incidentally to a large extent of the beneficial use of his property damages would not be adequate relief 1933 R 351 In order to constitute an actionable obstruction of ancient light it is not sufficient that the light is less than before. There must be a substantial privation of light, enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind and in the case of business premises to prevent the plaintiff from carrying on his business as beneficially as before. The expression carrying on the business beneficially is not to be read as depending on the question whether or not the person carrying on the business is likely to lose a customer. The test is whether he would carry on the business less beneficially to himself whether in discharging his duty to his customers on the one hand or in preserving his health and facility of transacting business on the other 1933 R 351

of light and air the plaintiff seeks an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with his right the Court is entitled in a proper case to order an enquiry as to damages even though it holds that the plaintiff is not entitled to injunction. No such enquiry can however be ordered when the plaintiff has not proved any damage 179 I C 884=1939 Sind 39

DECREE FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST OWNER OF SERVIENT TENEMENT—EXECUTION—Where the owner of a dominant tenement who has obtained an injunction restraining the owner of the servient tenement from building his house beyond a certain height and within a certain distance of the decree holder's house seeks to execute his decree by the demolition of the additions alleged to have been made to his house by the judgment debtor the real question is whether the owner of the servient tenement has infringed the restrictions imposed on him by the original decree. If he has he must be made to comply with the decree passed against him. The questions whether the decree holder has rebuilt his house and has increased the burden on the servient tenement are not material questions 39 P L R 712=1937 Lah 419

SECS 15 24 AND 27—A right of way ordinarily entails a point of arrival and a point of departure both of which must be fixed. A blind lane which is blocked up by a wall on one side cannot be subject to a right of way. Where a person claims neither a right to pass along a lane nor a right to carry materials over it but a right to remain on it for hours at a time for a certain number of days in a year and to dump materials there and keep them there in order to repair his own wall the right claimed is not a right of way as ordinarily understood. Nor can it be called an accessory easement, as the right is claimed by the party to repair his own wall standing on his own land. The easement is what is called a miscellaneous easement and all that the party can claim is a right to enjoy what he has prescribed for in a reasonable way. The Courts have always leaned against an unreasonable restriction on the servient owner's enjoyment of his own property 1 L R (1937) N 21=1937 N 322

(a) A suit is brought in 1883 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption from 1st January 1862 to 1st January, 1883. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b) In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that for a year of that time the plaintiff was entitled to possession of the servient heritage as lessee thereof and enjoyed the right as such lessee. The suit shall be dismissed for the right of way has not been enjoyed as an easement for twenty years.

(c) In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff on one occasion during the twenty years had admitted that the user was not of right and asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed for the right of way has not been enjoyed as of right for twenty years.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty five years. But B shows that during ten of these years C had a life interest in the land, that on C's death B became entitled to the land, and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed as A with reference to the provisions of this section has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

(b) a right to the free passage of light or air to an open space of ground, to receive the water through the channels unobstructed so as to entitle the plaintiff to seek the removal of these obstructions caused by the defendants 46 B 115=1922 B 378. The right to take water from a river running through an undefined channel over the neighbouring lands is not one coming under S 17 (c), but is a right which though perhaps could not be acquired by prescription as an easement could be inferred from long user 42 B 286=45 I C 448=20 Bom L R 393. See also 7 M H C 37 (46). A presumption of lost grant can be made if the usage is long and uninterrupted and if it could form the subject of grant 42 B 288. Sec 18.—A customary easement is not limited to easements of a kind which could not be recognised at all apart from official customs 1924 A 159. In order to establish a customary right it is not necessary to show that it has been exercised since time immemorial. It is sufficient to show that it has been openly enjoyed for such a length of time as suggests that by agreement or otherwise the usage has become a customary law of locality. It is not necessary to prove enjoyment of the right for a period of 20 years. Where therefore the Mahomedans have been immersing their tazas at Muharram in two ghats of a tank for such a length of time as to suggest that the usage has become the customary law of the place, they have a customary right to use the ghats for immersing their tazas. There is nothing unreasonable in the custom and it is sufficiently certain and invariable. The mere possibility that the number of tazas immersed may eventually increase so much as to prove a nuisance is too remote to make the custom unreasonable. 1938 Nag 177. The right to use the ghats of a tank for the purpose of immersing tazas at Muharram is a customary right and not an easement, 1938 Nag 177. To establish a customary easement the custom must be reasonable certain, and the user must not have been permissive or exercised by stealth or force and the right should have been enjoyed for such a length of time as to suggest that by agreement or otherwise the user had become the customary law of the locality.

C. C. M.—292

1939 N L J 246=1939 Nag 193. See also 42 C W N 1102. A customary easement can only be in favour of a class or community and cannot be in favour of an individual 119 I C 695. As to proof of customary rights, see 90 I C 976. A Court should not decide that a local custom, such as cutting wood from a jungle exists, unless the Court is satisfied of its reasonableness and its certainty as to extent and application, and is further satisfied by the evidence that the enjoyment of the right was not by leave granted or by stealth or by force, and that it had been openly enjoyed for such a length of time as suggested that originally by agreement or otherwise the usage had become a customary law of the place in respect of the persons and things which it concerned 123 I C 377=1930 A 338. A customary right is not an easement in the legal sense of that term. Customary rights have their origin in grant or prescription but it is not necessary that in every case, there should be evidence from which a lost grant may be presumed. Nor is it necessary that the custom should be traced back for the whole time necessary to make it immemorial 36 C L J 280=1923 C 200. See also I L R (1941) Nag 460. What may suffice to establish a customary easement may be wholly insufficient to establish an easement by prescription and vice versa. The two rights are different, although the result may be the same. Consequently, where a claim of easement is based on a prescriptive title, it is not open to the appellate Court to treat the cases as one based on custom 1924 L 275. Nature of customary easement. See 18 M 320. The distinction between a customary right and customary easement is seen in 46 M 866=45 M L J 333=1924 M 197. See also 20 I C 467, 1933 N 74, 61 M L J 1=58 I A 195 (P C). ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—Zamindars in U P cannot arbitrarily close a right of way used by occupancy tenants for more than thirty years. 1924 A 159. In the case of a right of public way over a person's private property claimed by the members of the public at large or a right of a limited class such as the inhabitants of a particular village, the customary period of the public right to the village path a right which is sought to be established, must be proved by cogent evidence where the interests claimed conflict with those of a private owner. They must be proved by such degree of evidence as is representative of either the public at large or of the particular village or the smaller community alleged to have the right of user. To call three partisan witnesses who can in no sense be said to be representative of either the larger community of a general public or the smaller community of a particular village is no evidence whatever upon which a finding of public right or village custom can be found. 148 I C 498 (1)=1934 P 30. Where it is alleged that there is a public pathway which has been infringed by the defendant before the plaintiff can maintain an action for avoidance of the infringement, special damage must be proved. But where it is more or less a village pathway wherein the residents on either side of the pathway and round about may be considered to have a right acquired by long user of passing to and fro and this right is referable to a grant or agreement on the part of the zamindar, it is not necessary to prove any special damage and the residents of the neighbourhood can maintain an action for the avoidance of the obstruct on without proving any special damage. Even if a proof of special damage is necessary a very small amount of inconvenience will entitle the plaintiff to the relief claimed. 1933 A 919. A right of pasturage by virtue of a lost grant cannot be established by the inhabitants of a village as they are a variable number of persons. Such a right cannot also be established by prescription under S. 26 of the Limitation Act inasmuch as to establish such a right it must be shown that it has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by the persons claiming it without interruption for 20 years. That might be so with regard to some of the villagers but could not be so in the case of all the inhabitants. It is clear therefore that the only right of easement which can be claimed in a case like this is the right of easement by custom. 42 C W N 1102. Where the residents of a particular locality claimed a customary right of easement to go over the land of the defendant, to collect firewood and burn Holi and perform some ceremonies, there and where such right is proved to have been exercised from time immemorial it was held that the easement was not unreasonable and could be recognized by the Courts. 180 I C 233=1938 A L J 1243=1939 All 165. A customary right of burial can exist, apart from provisions of this Act, hence where it is found that a certain family used a grave as a burial ground customarily it was held not an easement but a customary right in the nature of an easement. 31 I C 805=13 A L J 1094. A right to bury a dead body is not an easement as contemplated by the Easements Act. Such a right cannot be acquired by prescription, though it can be acquired by grant or custom. When the origin of the right is peaceful, the Court can presume either a dedication on the part of the owners or a grant on their part, the origin of which is lost in antiquity. The right of privacy is an easement attached to land and not to a person. If there was a right of privacy existing in the house, it is not destroyed because the plaintiff herself has not always observed purdah. 151 I C 141=1934 A 527. THE INCIDENTS OF EASEMENTS

- 20 The rules contained in this chapter are controlled by any contract between the dominant and servient owners relating to the servient heritage, and by the provisions of the instrument or decree, if any, by which the easement referred to was imposed

Rules controlled by contract or title

And when any incident of any customary easement is inconsistent with such rules nothing in this chapter shall affect such incident

Incidents of customary easements

(b) I as owner of a certain house has a right of way to and from it. For the purpose of passing to and from the house the right may be used, not only by I, but by the members of his family his guests lodgers servants workmen visitors and customers for this is a purpose connected with the enjoyment of the dominant heritage. So if I lets the house he may use the right of way for the purpose of collecting the rent and seeing that the house is kept in repair.

therein for such a power of alienation would immediately defeat the very object of maintaining a haveli. The law of easements as such cannot be applied to a haveli for an easement predicates a dominant and servient tenement vested in different persons. The rights of the owners over the haveli partake of the character of easements. They are quasi easements though not easements proper, the nature and extent of such rights being regulated by custom. Such rights can in law and in the nature of things only be attached to immovable property and can only be enjoyed by the owners of such property qua owners. 176 I C 966=1938 Sind 145. Secs 20 and 22.—An owner of a large piece of land divided into several plots for building purposes and sold them to different persons reserving one part for himself and in each sale deed there was a covenant by which every purchaser bound himself to keep open a passage 15 feet wide for the common use of the other plot holders. The defendant erected posts in the passage and reduced its width to 7 ft. In a suit by one of the other plot holders, the lower Court applied S 22 of the Act considered 10 ft width sufficient and granted a decree accordingly. Held an easement of way over another's land by virtue of an agreement is governed by S 20 and not S 22 the rights in this case were governed by the contract between the vendor and the purchaser which should be given full effect to. SCOPE OF SECTION—No man can impose a new or increased restriction or burden on his neighbour by his own act, and an owner of an easement cannot by altering his dominant tenement increase his right. 24 C W N 896=32 C L J 27 97 I C 169=24 A L J 810 Every man may open any number of windows in his house looking over his neighbour's land. This right is a continuing one and a man can open new windows from time to time, provided no additional burden is imposed on the servient tenement Even if the owner of the servient tenement has a technical grievance courts have a discretion to refuse an injunction In the way a man has a right to open new outlets for drains and new spouts for leading rain water from the terrace of his building to his neighbour's land the Court will not grant an injunction when it is found that no additional burden is caused to the land of the servient owner What amounts to an additional burden is a question of fact to be determined in each case from the nature of the right and the circumstances of the case. 20 N L J 99

(b) A has a right to discharge on B's land the rain water from the eaves of A's house. This does not entitle A to advance his eaves if, by so doing, he imposes a greater burden on B's land.

(c) A, as the owner of a paper mill, acquires a right to pollute a stream by pouring in the refuse liquor produced by making in the mill paper from rags. He may pollute the stream by pouring in similar liquor produced by making in the mill paper by a new process from bamboos, provided that he does not substantially increase the amount, or injuriously change the nature of the pollution.

(d) A, a riparian owner, acquires as against the lower riparian owners, a prescriptive right to pollute a stream by throwing sawdust into it. This does not entitle A to pollute the stream by discharging into it poisonous liquor.

24 The dominant owner is entitled, as against the servient owner, to do all acts necessary to secure the full enjoyment of the easement, but such acts must be done at such time and in such manner as, without detriment to the dominant owner, to cause the servient owner as little inconvenience as possible, and the dominant owner must repair, as far as practicable, the damage (if any) caused by the act to the servient heritage.

NOTES

Bom L R 1114=1931 B 490. PROCEDURE.—If the dominant owner exceeds the right, injunction and not damages is the proper remedy 28 I C 169.

Sec 23.—Whether any particular user of the passage by the dominant owner does not impose any additional burden upon the servient heritage, is essentially a question of fact, on which a finding should always be made from the lower Courts (23 B 595 and 50 B 635 Rel on.) 34 L W 369=1931 M 128=61 M L J 58. Where a house formerly used for residential purposes is used as godown for storing the use of bullock carts over the passage leading to the godown for carrying goods will throw additional burden on the servient tenement 13 C 136, Dist (Ibid). The right of flow of rain water does not include in law the flow of all kinds of water, e.g., sullage water. Passing of such water constitutes a nuisance and the servient owner has a cause of action against the dominant owner 11 O W N 657=1934 O 237.

Sec 24 PRINCIPLE OF SECTION AND ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—The dominant owner has a right to do everything requisite to secure to himself the fullest advantage of his servitude but thereby he should not impose any additional burden on the servient tenement 39 I C 590 (2)=18 P W R 1917 Repairing pipes on another's land 23 C 525. See also I L R (1937) N 21 (Right to enter on another's land in order to repair one's own wall standing on the land) Repairing roof See 15 M 286. On this section, see also 20 Bom L R 403. A person can also enter the neighbour's house or land to protect his eaves which project over the neighbour's house 16 I C 893. Liability for expenses necessary for preservation of easement

25 The expenses incurred in constructing works, or making repairs, or doing any other act necessary for the use or preservation of an easement, must be defrayed by the dominant owner.

26 Where an easement is enjoyed by means of an artificial work, the dominant owner is liable to make compensation for any damage to the servient heritage arising from the want of repair of such work.

Liability for damage from want of repair

27 The servient owner is not bound to do anything for the benefit of the dominant heritage, and he is entitled, as against the dominant owner, to use the servient heritage in any way, consistent with the enjoyment of the easement but he must not do any act tending to restrict the easement or to render its exercise less convenient.

to claim an "easement of necessity" over the road leading from the public street to the parent estate this right must be claimed and established in appropriate legal proceedings against the owner of the servient tenement. Sec 24 III (d) —Public rights of way are not easements but arise from a dedication to the public evidenced by a deed or implied from custom and user. There can be no right of easement in favour of an indefinite body of persons 44 I C 868=14 N L R 78. Where the owner of lands renders a way impassable, a person having a right to use the way may deviate from it and pass over adjoining land of the owner provided the deviation is reasonable. (Ibid) Reading III (d) along with S 24 it seems clear that the dominant power is only entitled to deviate from the original way and pass over the adjoining land of the servient owner to such extent as may be really necessary to secure the full enjoyment of his easement. Where the original way is blocked only in its northern portion there is no justification for any deviation in the southern portion at a distance of over hundred feet from the original way. Such a diversion can hardly be considered reasonable 149 I C 949 (2)=1934 L 199.

(b) A grants a right of way through his land to B as owner of a field. A may feed his cattle on grass growing on the way, provided that B's right of way is not thereby obstructed, but he must not build a wall at the end of his land so as to prevent B from going beyond it nor must he narrow the way so as to render the exercise of the right less easy than it was at the date of the grant.

(c) A, in respect of his house, is entitled to an easement of support from B's wall. B is not bound as servient owner to keep the wall standing and in repair. But he must not pull down or weaken the wall so as to make it incapable of rendering the necessary support.

(d) A, in respect of his mill, is entitled to a watercourse through B's land. B must not drive stakes so as to obstruct the watercourse.

(e) A, in respect of his house, is entitled to a certain quantity of light passing over B's land. B must not plant trees so as to obstruct the passage to A's windows of that quantity of light.

died or the non testamentary instrument was made

Sec 28 (a) —A right of way imports the right of passing in a particular line and not the right of varying it at pleasure. A right of way of any one kind does not include a right of way of any other kind. The right of way appurtenant to the enclosure of a mosque can be used only for the purpose of passing to and from that enclosure and the managers of the mosque cannot impose any additional burden on the adjoining lands by removing boundary walls or opening new passages from the enclosure of the mosque. If a man has power to make a way across another person's land he must exercise his power in a reasonable manner and have due regard to the convenience of the servient owner as to avoid inflicting on him needless and unreasonable injury. 7 Luck 540=1932 O 274. A right of way of one kind, e.g., for persons, cattle and carts, etc., does not include a right of way of another kind e.g., for sweepers removing nightsoil in the absence of evidence as to the probable intention of parties and the purpose for which the right was imposed or acquired. 59 I C 426=22 Bom L R 1131. See also 90 I C 149=26 Cr L J 1493. But see 34 Bom L R 1150. Where the grant of right of way was unrestricted. Where an easement is claimed over another's property the servient tenement should not be saddled with a heavier burden than what the plaintiff has succeeded in proving. But when a particular mode of user is not heavier than the mode of user proved the plaintiff may be allowed to use it in that particular way e.g., the user of a way for horses may include the right to lead smaller animals as well, but not larger animals or loads. 65 I C 579. The user of a path for the passage of men, carts and palanquins may also entitle the dominant owner to take cattle, processions and corpses along the path. 65 I C 579.

ROAD AND HIGHWAY—DISTINCTION—A road or path over which individuals or a limited class of public have a right of passage is not a highway. An owner of land adjoining a highway is entitled to such highway at any point at which his land actually touches it but he has no such right in the case of land adjoining a road not subject to the public right of passage. 7 Luck 540=1932 O 274.

Increase of easement

29 The dominant owner cannot, by merely altering or adding to the dominant heritage, substantially increase an easement dominant owner is not entitled to the full amount of light enjoyed during the prescriptive period but only to so much as is necessary for habitation or business according to the ordinary notions of mankind. There is no infringement of the right unless the obstruction amounts to a nuisance. 42 C 46=27 M L J 117=41 I A 180 (P C). The owner of a dominant heritage has no absolute right to the access of light and air to windows and apertures, and is not entitled to compensation by way of injunction or otherwise for the disturbance of an easement unless he has sustained substantial damage, that substantial damage must be a diminution of the value of the dominant heritage, or of the utility thereof, material interference with the physical comfort of persons using the dominant heritage, a material interference with the use of the dominant heritage in as beneficial a manner as it had been used before such interference. An owner of an ancient light is entitled to sufficient light according to the ordinary notions of mankind for the comfortable use and enjoyment of his house as a dwelling house if it is a dwelling house, or for the beneficial use and occupation of the house if it is a warehouse, a shop or other place of business. So as to constitute an infringement of an easement of light and air there must be a substantial privation of light and air enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to the ordinary notions of mankind and (in the case of business premises) to prevent the plaintiff from carrying on his business as beneficially as before. 179 I C 884=1939 Sind 39. In the case of a suit relating to an easement of light and air reference to reported cases is necessary of little value because whether or not he has sustained an easement of light and air amounts to a nuisance depends entirely on the facts and circumstances of each particular case. So also as the law relating to easements in British India is governed very largely if not entirely by the Easements Act in those provinces to which it has been made applicable, it is of little practical use to refer to the provisions of the English statute and decisions in English cases in a matter relating to easements. 179 I C 884=1939 Sind 39. See also 1941 Sind 211.

Secs 28 33 and 35 —ACTION FOR DAMAGES OR INJUNCTION—ELEMENTS TO BE PROVED.—In considering the question about the easement for light, Ss 28 33 and 35 have to be read together. In such cases it is clear that damages may only be recovered if there has been substantial interference as described in Expt 2 S 33 and that an injunction can only be granted when compensation might be allowed under that section, that is that both in the case of an action for damages or for an injunction simpliciter it is necessary for the plaintiff to show conclusively that there has been substantial interference with physical comfort etc. 55 A 711=1933 A L J 1006=1933 A 492. Sec. 34: RIGHT OF SUPPORT.—Every land owner has a right to the support of his land in its natural state. It is not an easement, it is a right of property. In a suit for injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with plaintiff's right of support, it is not necessary to show that the plaintiff has sustained actual damage. It is sufficient to show that the injury is imminent and certain to result from the defendant's acts. 59 C. 363=1932 C. 542. The right to the support of land in its natural state vertically by the subjacent strata and laterally by the adjacent soil, is a right to which the owner of the surface is of common right prima facie entitled. The right of an owner of land to the support from adjacent or subjacent soil is not that the substance supporting his soil shall not be removed, but that the enjoyment of his land be not disturbed by the removal of its support. 11 R. 47=1933 R. 18. Where an act threatening danger to a person's land is such that injury will inevitably follow, a Court may grant a perpetual injunction restraining the continuance of that act, even though no damage has actually occurred before institution of suit. [Patton v. Gilford, (1874) 18 Eq. 259 and 24 C. 260, Rel. on.] 11 R. 47=1933 R. 18. A suit for perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from removing the necessary lateral support to which the plaintiff's land is entitled is a suit in the nature of a quia timet action and the plaintiff, in order to succeed, must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the apprehended injury, if it does occur, will be irreparable. Therefore, excavation and removal of the earth on his own land by a defendant, without leaving sufficient support to the adjoining plaintiff's land to enable it to remain in its natural state, does not inter se constitute an actionable invasion of the latter's right; and such an act to constitute a valid foundation for a claim by the adjoining plaintiff for damages must be coupled with actual damage or injury to his property. 11 R. 47=1933 R. 18.

Sec. 35.—[See also Notes under S. 33] As to the principles on which Courts will grant injunction in respect of easements, see Specific Relief Act, Ss. 52-57 and notes thereunder and C. P. Code, O. 39 and notes thereunder. Court has got discretion to grant injunction or not—Different considerations govern Indian Courts and English Courts—Courts must have consideration for both parties. See 3 R. 230=87 I.C. 800=1925 R. 327. An injunction is only an alternative within the discretion of the Court and is not an independent form of relief. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430. It is not granted where pecuniary compensation would afford adequate relief. 165 I.C. 94=1936 N. 274. An injunction to restrain the disturbance of an easement of light can only be granted where substantial damage is proved to have been caused. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430. The word "when" in S. 35 (a) must be construed to mean "when and where" because it would be useless to prescribe that an injunction could be granted when damages can be claimed under S. 33, if damages under S. 33 could not be claimed. 117 I.C. 618=1929 A. 430.

business of the tenement according to the ordinary notions of mankind. The single question in these cases is whether the obstruction complained of is a nuisance. Where in a suit for a mandatory injunction against the defendant prohibiting him from obstructing the light and air passing through certain ventilators it was found that even if those ventilators were closed the courtyard and the plaintiffs' house would receive plenty of light and air, there is no question of any nuisance being caused by the obstruction and the plaintiff is not entitled to any injunction. 152 I C 1060 (2)=37 P L R 34=1935 L 79. The decree issuing in junction about obstruction to light and air should be given in general terms. 25 Bom L R 239=1923 B 196. The dominant owner acquires by prescription so much light as is sufficient for the ordinary purposes of inhabitation or business according to the ordinary notions of mankind with reference to the locality and surroundings concerned and the amount received during the period of prescription is immaterial. 57 I C 706. It is only substantial privation of light enough to make the occupation of the house uncomfortable or unfit for business according to the ordinary notions of mankind which gives rise to an actionable claim. The mere fact that light received has become less gives no right. 42 C 46=41 I A 180=27 M L J 117 (P C). See also 97 I C 500=1926 A 764. (As to test of nuisance see 96 I C 546=9 N L J 136=1926 N 474.) WINDOWS AND SHUTTERS—The right to open and shut windows and shutters into adjoining land can be required as an easement. The owner of such an easement is entitled to restrain the servient owner by an injunction from interfering with his rights by erecting a wall or building close to the boundaries. 45 I C 435=7 L W 332. The Court should issue a mandatory injunction directing defendant to lower the roof of his house so as to enable plaintiff to shut and open the window freely. (Ibid.) VENTILATORS—When by the closing of certain ventilators in a house a thorough draft for the house and effective ventilators are not allowed the injury is so serious that the house will be substantially useless. 19 I C 843=6 S L R 255.

RIGHT OF PRIVACY—To succeed in an action to restrain any interference with a right of privacy a plaintiff must show not only that such a right of privacy exists by custom in the district in which the premises are situated but also that he has in fact enjoyed such a right and that it has been substantially or materially affected by the acts of the defendant. A contention that the opening of windows overlooking other premises cannot be restrained if such other premises are already overlooked from any parts of adjoining or neighbouring premises such as roofs is not sound. 1935 A L J 432=1935 A W R 322.

WATER RIGHTS—An occupier of abutting lands cannot be restrained in his exercise of his natural rights simply because he becomes a lessee of other lands not abutting. 24 I C 685=1914 M W N 481. Where the water of a stream has been used for irrigating only abutting lands the owner of abutting lands cannot be restrained from using more than a reasonable quantity by another to whom no material diminution in supply is caused. 24 I C 685. The actual and not a mere threatened use of the water flowing through a natural stream to irrigate lands other than those abutting on the stream gives a right to sue. 24 I C 685.

Extinction by release

38 An easement is extinguished when the dominant owner releases it, expressly or impliedly, to the servient owner.

Such release can be made only in the circumstances and to the extent in and to which the dominant owner can alienate the dominant heritage.

An easement may be released as to part only of the servient heritage.

Explanation I—An easement is impliedly released—

(a) where the dominant owner expressly authorizes an act of a permanent nature to be done on the servient heritage, the necessary consequence of which is to prevent his future enjoyment of the easement, and such act is done in pursuance of such authority.

(b) where any permanent alteration is made in the dominant heritage of such a nature as to show that the dominant owner intended to cease to enjoy the easement in future.

Explanation II—Mere non-user of an easement is not an implied release within the meaning of this section.

See also 1937 Lah 839 (Replacing of windows—Increase of burden). The owner of an easement is precluded from increasing his right on the alteration of his dominant tenement. In a case where by change of height eaves discharge water with increased force it is held that an additional burden is put upon the plaintiff's land. 32 C L J 27=58 I C 834=24 C W N 896 (Burden of proof that no additional burden is imposed lies on dominant owner). An owner of the dominant tenement had a right to drop water from his eaves at a distance of seven feet height. He increased the height three times and allowed water to drop through pipes. (c) the easement is an easement of necessity

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to an easement entitling the dominant owner to support of the dominant heritage

Extinction or permanent alteration of servient heritage by superior force

44 An easement is extinguished where the servient heritage is by superior force so permanently altered that the dominant owner can no longer enjoy such easement

Provided that, where a way of necessity is destroyed by superior force, the dominant owner has a right to another way over the servient heritage, and the provisions of section fourteen apply to such way

NOTES

Sec 45—See 7 Bom L R 352. Even if a door and a part of the house have collapsed, a right of easement already acquired by the plaintiff to use the adjoining lane, as a passage to the site of his house, cannot be extinguished. 27 N L R 213=1931 N 189. The plaintiff obtained a decree declaring that his sweepers was at liberty to go through the lane on the defendant's land in order to clear the latrine situated in the plaintiff's premises. The privy was subsequently removed by orders of the Municipality, to a different place on the plaintiff's land and the defendant contended that the plaintiff's easement was extinguished by the fact, that the dominant heritage had been destroyed and rebuilt on a different site. Held, (i) that dominant heritage was not the privy, but the plaintiff's house within which it was enclosed, (ii) so the rebuilding of the privy had not the effect of extinguishing the easement under S 45, (iii) the case was governed by S 23 and as there was no additional burden imposed on the servient heritage and the sweepers entered and left the defendant's land at the same point as before, the rebuilding of the privy did not make the prior decree incapable of execution. 33 Bom L R 1114=1931 B 490.

Sec 46—As to extinction of easements by merger, see 1926 C 92. The unity of the dominant and servient estates in the same person extinguished the easement appurtenant to the dominant estate. But unity of title will not extinguish an easement, unless the ownership of the two estates be co-extensive, equal in validity quality and other circumstances. If there has been unity of possession merely and not unity of seisin for estates in fee simple, an easement which has been thereby suspended will revive on severance of the union, but if there has been unity of seisin for estates in fee simple and not unity of possession merely, all easements are absolutely extinguished and will not revive unless they are recreated on severance of the former dominant and servient estates. 50 C 356=36 C L J 161=1923 C 8. See also A W N (1887) 260. Where the ownership of the two estates is not co-extensive and equal in validity—the dominant tenement being held for a term of years only and the servient tenement in full right of ownership—the acquisition of a right of way is not extinguished but is only suspended by unity of possession of the dominant and servient tenements (50 Cal 356 Rel on) 1939 Rang 421=1940 Rang L R 93. See also 1941 Cal 289. Right of ownership and easement are incompatible. A W N (1883) 68. Before there can be any extinguishment of an easement there must be a merger of the servient and dominant tenements so as to result in the single ownership of both. Where the owner of the dominant tenement acquires the right of a co-sharer in the servient tenement, the ownership of the two tenements does not merge in one and therefore there is no extinguishment but merely a suspension of the easement (right of way) which can revive after a partition decree. 1941 Cal 239.

(g) A has a right of way over B's road. B dedicates the road to the public. A's right of way is not extinguished.

47. A continuous easement is extinguished when it totally ceases to be enjoyed as such for an unbroken period of twenty years.

Extinction by non enjoyment

A discontinuous easement is extinguished when, for a like period, it has not been enjoyed as such.

Such period shall be reckoned, in the case of a continuous easement, from the day on which its enjoyment was obstructed by the servient owner, or rendered impossible by the dominant owner, and, in the case of a discontinuous easement, from the day on which it was last enjoyed by any person as dominant owner.

Provided that if, in the case of a discontinuous easement, the dominant owner, within such period, registers, under the Indian Registration Act, 1877,¹ a declaration of his intention to retain such easement, it shall not be extinguished until a period of twenty years has elapsed from the date of the registration.

Where an easement can be legally enjoyed only at a certain place, or at certain times, or between certain hours, or for a particular purpose, its enjoyment during the said period at another place, or at other times, or between other hours, or for another purpose, does not prevent its extinction under this section.

The circumstance that, during the said period, no one was in possession of the servient heritage, or that the easement could not be enjoyed, or that a right accessory thereto was enjoyed, or that the dominant owner was not aware of its

Sec 47. PRINCIPLE OF SECTION.—See 45 B 80=57 I C 143=22 Bom L R 415. An easement is not extinguished where its user is suspended in pursuance of a contract between the dominant and the servient owners. A person who purchases the servient tenement in an execution sale with knowledge of the easement is bound thereby. 45 I C 618=34 P L 1. 1918. A right of easement acquired by the plaintiff to use the adjoining lane as a passage to his door is not extinguished by temporary non user not amounting to abandonment. existence, or that he enjoyed it in ignorance of his right to do so, does not prevent its extinction under this section

An easement is not extinguished under this section—

(a) where the cessation is in pursuance of a contract between the dominant and servient owners ;

(b) where the dominant heritage is held in co-ownership, and one of the co-owners enjoys the easement within the said period, or

(c) where the easement is a necessary easement

Where several heritages are respectively subject to rights of way for the benefit of a single heritage, and the ways are continuous, such rights shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a single easement

Extinction of accessory rights

48 When an easement is extinguished, the rights (if any) accessory thereto are also extinguished

49 An easement is suspended when the dominant owner becomes entitled to possession of the servient heritage for a limited interest therein, or when the servient owner becomes entitled to possession of the dominant heritage for a limited interest therein

Suspension of easement

50 The servient owner has no right to require that an easement be continued ; and, notwithstanding the provisions of section twenty-six, he is not entitled to compensation for damage caused to the servient heritage in consequence of the extinguishment or suspension of the easement, if the dominant owner has given to the servient owner such notice as will enable him, without unreasonable expense, to protect the servient heritage from such damage

See 50 —The owner of a servient tenement over which the dominant owner had acquired a right to discharge his water cannot insist that the water should be continued to be so discharged. 46 I C 24. See also 2 C L R 141. An easement exists only for the benefit of the dominant tenement and a servient owner gets no right to insist on its continuance or to sue for damage notice of his intention to abandon the easement, and that such notice was sufficient to enable B, without unreasonable expense, to have prevented the damage. The suit must be dismissed.

51. An easement extinguished under section forty-five revives (a) when the destroyed heritage is, before twenty years have expired, restored by the deposit of alluvion, (b) when the destroyed heritage is a servient building and before twenty years have expired such building is rebuilt upon the same site; and (c) when the destroyed heritage is a dominant building and before twenty years have expired such building is rebuilt upon the same site and in such a manner has not to impose a greater burden on the servient heritage.

An easement extinguished under section forty-six revives when the grant or bequest by which the unity of ownership was produced is set aside by the decree of a competent Court. A necessary easement extinguished under the same section revives when the unity of ownership ceases from any other cause.

A suspended easement revives if the cause of suspension is removed before the right is extinguished under section forty-seven.

LICENCES

52. Where one person grants to another, or to a definite number of other persons, a right to do, or continue to do, in or upon the immovable property of the grantor, something which would, in the absence of such right, be unlawful, and such right does not amount to an easement or an interest in the property, the right is called a license.

NOTES

Sec 51 —[See also notes under S 49.] When a dominant tenement is rebuilt, the dominant owner has no right to impose a greater burden on the servient tenement than the prescriptive quantity of the right enjoyed. 33 I.C. 615=9 S. L. R. 101. Blocking up an old window and building another of the same dimensions in another place is an imposition of a burden on the servient tenement, which was not existing till then. 33 I.C. 615. But the right of the dominant owner under the common law to free access of light and air through an ancient window is not lost by shifting the window backwards or forwards. 33 I.C. 615.

DEMISE AND NOT MERELY LICENSE—GRANT OF EXCLUSIVE RIGHT OF OCCUPATION.—The effect of a deed which gives the holder an exclusive right of occupation of a shop although subject to certain reservations and to a restriction of the purpose for which it may be used amounts in law to a demise of the shop itself and not merely a license. The main test in such cases is that of exclusive possession 1933 A 911. See also 1933 A 735 (F B).

SECS 52 AND 56.—A license is not annexed to the property in respect of which it is enjoyed nor is it a transferable or heritable right but is a right purely personal between grantor and licensee. Unless a different intention appears it cannot even be exercised by the licensee's servants or agents. So where on the death of the original licensee his heirs continue in occupation they are on no greater footing than tenants at will. NOTES

there can be no presumption that the tenants or licensees have no power of transfer. If the landlord contends that the tenant had no right to transfer the building which he had built and which he was occupying it is for him to show that under the terms of the license the right of the tenant was limited and it was expressly agreed that he would be incompetent to make a transfer or it was open to him to prove the existence of a custom prohibiting the right of transfer. So far as houses built by tenant in villages are concerned the rights between the parties are different. A tenant building a house in a village site has only a right to occupy so long as the tenancy lasts or so long as he does not abandon the village. But the same principle cannot apply to houses built in a city. 1934 A L J 728=1934 A 336.

PRACTICE.—Before a licensor can call upon the Court to decide upon the rights of a licensee to transfer the terms of the license must be placed before the Court by the licensor and then only it will be in a position to determine as to whether or not having regard to them the licensee had a right of transfer. 1934 A L J 728=1934 A 336.

SEES 56 and 60.—In case of ryasas occupying houses in cities and towns it is to be presumed that they have a right of transfer unlike those who inhabit agricultural areas and so if a licensor sues to eject the transferee of a ryasa he has to prove not only his ownership but must also prove the existence of custom or terms of the grant under which the house in dispute was built which make the transfer thereof invalid entitling him to recover possession of the site. 117 I C 365=13 R C 615=1929 A 491. Sec 59.—Enjoyment under a licence for a long time does not constitute adverse possession. 44 A 726=20 A L J 608=1923 A 140 (1). S 59 has no application to a case in which one of two joint licensors transfers his interest in the property with respect to which the licence has been granted in favour of his co-licensor. The transferee contemplated by the section must be a person who was not the licensor himself. 98 I C 814=1927 A 197. Under S 59 the transferee is not as such bound by the term of a licence granted by the vendor such as one permitting the use of the land as a wrestling ground. The transfer extinguishes the licence and the recital in the deed of transfer that the transferee should respect the licence has no legal effect. 7 O W N 468=1930 O 203. S 59 cannot be interpreted so as to give the transferee a right of revocation of a licence which would not be exercisable by the transferor himself. 102 I C 26=1927 O 206. The use of the words as such in S 59 seems clearly to be intended to indicate that the transferee would not be in any worse position than the transferor. The result of the proviso is that if the grantor of the licence does not revoke it it does not mean that the transferee cannot do so but the section cannot be construed as giving the transferee any better rights than were possessed by his transferor much less to hold that the effect of the transfer is ipso facto to put an end to all previous licences. The rule laid down by S 59 is not independent of that laid down by S 60. Transferee held bound by licence previously granted by transferor. 132 I C 536=1931 O 364. The transferee of a licensor cannot revoke a licence when the licensee has effected a work of permanent character and incurred expenses. 37 A 91=26 I C 445=13 A L J 1. If the licensee has become irrevocable in the time of the licensor, the mere fact that he transfers his interest in the land would not extinguish the licence. 149 I C 389=1934

cation contracted that the licence would be perpetual, he can rely on the equitable doctrine and call upon the Court to intervene for his protection The contract sought to be inferred does not mean that the real consensus of mind between the two parties must be inferred to have existed, but that the conduct of the parties has been such that equity will presume the existence of such a contract as a matter of plain implication The onus of establishing such equity is on the licensee 63 I A 140=160 I C 837=1936 P C 77=70 M L J 190 (P C) The words 'acting upon the licence' in S 60 (b) of the Easements Act must mean acting upon a right granted to do upon the land of the grantor something which would be unlawful in the absence of such right A man does not act upon a licence if he does work and incurs expenses upon his own property Works done by the licensee on his own land may be done without the knowledge of the licensor and it is impossible to hold that the alleged licensor's land is bound in perpetuity (subject to S 62) as the result of some works done by the alleged licensee on his own property of which the former has been unaware S 60 is not dealing with the effect of an express contract between the parties but with the consequences to follow from a certain conduct on the part of the licensee which if done on the land of the licensor might well give the licensee rights against him 63 I A 140=160 I C 837=1936 P C 77=70 M L J 194 (P C) Where a person who has given his land to the licensee for certain purpose has given him an undertaking that he would not claim the land so long as it was required for that purpose and on acting on that promise the licensee has erected works of permanent nature the grantor of the licence is not entitled to recover the land even on payment of compensation because S 60 does not recognize any such exception 1940 Lah 18 The principle of this section is also applicable to Berar See 94 I C 923=1926 N 376 Section also applies to transferee of property 97 I C 337=1926 A 714 The principle of S 60 (b) is that the licensee acting upon the licence should execute work of a permanent character soon after the grant of a licence or within a reasonable time It is a principle dictated by justice, equity and good conscience and does not require that in order to prevent revocation of the licence the work of a permanent character must be costly one Nor does the section impose a duty upon the licensee who has already complied with the terms of the licence to maintain work of a permanent character up to any particular standard of repair Where the licensee has carried out the terms of the licence for building purposes and his incurred expenses in its execution the licensee

SECS 60 AND 62 LICENSEE PUTTING UP BUILDING OF PERMANENT CHARACTER—REVOCA-TION OF LICENSE—Even though the Ease-

ments Act does not expressly apply to cases of licences before the coming into force of the Act the principles underlying Ch 6 of the Act being in consonance with justice equity and good conscience may well be applied. Hence when an owner of land gives permission to another person to put up a building of a permanent character and he incurs expenses in the execution of such work the licensor is by necessary implication estopped from revoking his permission so as to prejudice the licensee whose position has been compromised in consequence. It would be inequitable unjust and unfair to allow a licensor to order that the licensee should forthwith remove the work of a permanent character which he has put up after incurring expenditure. In such an event the transaction ceases to be a mere license revocable at will but may in certain circumstances amount to a license coupled with a transfer of interest or at any rate a case where the licensee acting upon the license has executed a work of a permanent character and has incurred expenses in the execution so as to make the license irrevocable, so long as the construction subsists the right to revoke it would be in abeyance. 1934 A L J 698=1934 A 517.

SECS 60 AND 62 LICENSE PUTTING UP BUILDING OF PERMANENT CHARACTER—REVOCATION OF LICENSE—Even though the Ease-

ments Act does not expressly apply to cases of licences before the coming into force of the Act, the principles underlying Ch 6 of the Act being in consonance with justice, equity and good conscience may well be applied Hence when an owner of land gives permission to another person to put up a building of a permanent character and he incurs expenses in the execution of such work the licensor is by necessary implication estopped from revoking his permission so as to prejudice the licensee whose position has been compromised in consequence It would be inequitable unjust and unfair to allow a licensor to order that the licensee should forthwith remove the work of a permanent character which he has put up after incurring expenditure In such an event the transaction ceases to be a mere licence revocable at will but may in certain circumstances amount to a licence coupled with a transfer of interest or at any rate a case where the licensee acting upon the licence has executed a work of a permanent character and has incurred expenses in the execution so as to make the licence irrevocable, so long as the construction subsists, the right to revoke it would be in abeyance 1934 A L J 698=1934 A 517

THE INDIAN ELECTRICITY ACT (IX OF 1910)

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons explain the necessity for the passing of the Act —

"When the Indian Electricity Act, 1903, was passed it was clearly recognised to be a somewhat tentative measure and it was anticipated that amending legislation would be called for at an early date. Having regard to the experience gained in the practical working of the Act the Government of India in 1907 came to the conclusion that the time had arrived for undertaking this amending legislation, and they refused various difficulties which had arisen in its working to a Committee on which electro-technical and commercial interests were represented

The Act as at present framed vests its administration in Local Governments with whom rests the power to grant licenses, but the authority or the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is required in regard to so many matters that the practical result has been a dual administration. In the case of cantonments and similar "places in the occupation of Government for naval or military purposes" the administration of the Act is by section 40 placed in the hands of the Governor General in Council, but these places frequently are situated within larger areas, in respect to which the Local Government is empowered to grant licenses, with the result that separate and not necessarily consistent licences have been granted by the Governor General in Council and the Local Government respectively, to the same licensee, for the same purpose, in one and the same place. The practical effect of the present system has been delay, as it has hitherto been virtually impossible for a company to obtain a licence under two or three years' delays of this nature are obviously most detrimental to the attraction of capital for the development of the resources of the country as the financial position may, and in fact frequently does, change completely between the date of the application and the granting of the licence.

Under the Bill as now drafted the general administration of the Act and, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the granting of all licences is left in the hands of the Local Government. The rule-making power, and the delegation of the powers of the telegraph authority to licensees, are reserved to the Governor General in Council.

Among the more important modifications in the Bill are the following —

(i) The existing provision making licences compulsory has been taken out, the question of supply to the public without licence being otherwise dealt with. It is by no means certain that licences are either necessary or desirable in the case of industrial companies of certain classes.

(ii) Provision is made for the grant of licences for "bulk supply", that is to say to meet cases where the applicant company proposes to generate energy and supply it in large quantities to distributors, who would retail it under separate licence to small consumers.

(iii) The amendment of licences has been provided for. At present it is necessary to revoke a licence and grant a fresh one in order to effect this object.

(iv) The question of compulsory purchase has been dealt with, in regard both to the splitting up of undertakings and to those cases where purchase may be impracticable. The Act provides for the modification but not for the omission from a licence, of the purchase clauses. But these clauses, conceived as they are in the interests of the local authority concerned in a small area, are entirely out of place, and in Great Britain are regularly omitted, in the case of undertakings covering large areas in which various local authorities intervene. It is proposed therefore to modify the provision.

(v) Many difficulties have arisen owing to the hard and fast limits of the area of supply over which a licensee operates, consumers just outside the boundary being debarred from participation in the benefits conferred by the public supply. A new section is proposed to deal with the matter and remove obstacles which are likely to impose quite unnecessary hardships on individuals.

(vi) It is proposed to amend the provisions of Part III of the Act so as to make them applicable to mines and binding on the Crown. As regards railways and tramways, the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 3 in Part II and the first proviso to sub-section (1) of section 31 in Part III of the Act as it stands lay it down that nothing in these parts respectively relating to the supply or use of energy shall apply to any railway or tramway subject to the provisions of the Indian Railways Act of 1890. The extent to which it is proposed to modify the latter of these provisions is explained in the Notes on Clauses (omitted) while it is proposed, as already mentioned, to repeal the former.

(vii) A slight amendment of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, has been proposed with a view to facilitating its application to electrical works.

The examination of the provisions of the Act has brought to light many minor defects of substance or arrangement which it is desirable to correct and the opportunity has therefore been taken to repeal and re-enact the Act with the necessary modifications.

[18th March, 1910]

An Act to amend the law relating to the supply and use of electrical energy

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the supply and use of electrical energy, It is hereby enacted as follows —

PRELIMINARY

Short title extent and commencement 1 (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN ELECTRICITY ACT, 1910

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas, and

(3) It shall come into force on such date² as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct in this behalf

2 In this Act, expressions defined in the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885, have the meanings assigned to them in that Act, and, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definitions

(a) "aerial line" means any electric supply-line which is placed above ground and in the open air

(b) "area of supply" means the area within which alone a licensee is for the time being authorized by his license to supply energy

(c) "consumer" means any person who is supplied with energy by a licensee, or whose premises are for the time being connected for the purposes of a supply of energy with the works of a licensee

(d) "daily fine" means a fine for each day on which an offence is continued after conviction therefor

² The Act was brought into force on the 1st January, 1911 see Gazette of India 1910 Pt I, p 1236

NOTES

Sec 2 (c) 'CONSUMER', MEANING OF.— In order to hold that a person is a "consumer" as defined by S 2 (c) of the Electricity Act it would prima facie be enough to prove either that energy was supplied for the use of that person, or that that person was the owner or occupier of premises connected up with the licensee's electric system. If either of these is proved that person is a consumer under R 106 of the rule 172 I C 940=39 Cr L J 206=18 Pat L T 986=1938 Pat 15 Where the registered consumer and the person supplied with the energy is the proprietor of a company, the manager of the company cannot be held to be a "consumer" The premises of the company are not the premises of the manager The fact that the manager receives the electric bills, signs them and pays the bills cannot make him a consumer 1938 Pat 243=1938 P W N 182=19 Pat L T 141 Where a consumer intended to substitute a motor of smaller horse power in the place of one with a higher horse power and wrote to the U P. Electric Supply Co about it and asked them to make the necessary examination, it was held that the company was not entitled, under either Para 9 (2) or Para 11 of the conditions of supply to demand a testing fee for that purpose. 1939 A W R (H C) 417=1939 All 493

(e) "distributing main" means the portion of any main with which a service line is, or is intended to be, immediately connected

(f) "electric supply line" means a wire, conductor or other means used for conveying, transmitting or distributing energy together with any casing, coating, covering, tube, pipe or insulator enclosing, surrounding or supporting the same or any part thereof or any apparatus connected therewith for the purpose of so conveying, transmitting or distributing, such energy

(g) "energy" means electrical energy when generated, transmitted, supplied, or used for any purpose except the transmission of a message

(h) "licensee" means any person licensed under Part II to supply energy

(i) "main" means any electric supply line through which energy is, or is intended to be, supplied by a licensee to the public

(j) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act

(k) "public lamp" means an electric lamp used for the lighting of any street

¹[(l) "service line" means any electric supply line through which energy is, or is intended to be, supplied by a licensee—

(i) to a single consumer either from a distributing main or immediately from the licensee's premises, or

(ii) from a distributing main to a group of consumers on the same premises or on adjoining premises supplied from the same point of the distributing main]

(m) "street" includes any way, road, lane, square, court, alley, passage or open space, whether a thoroughfare or not, over which the public have a right of way, and also the roadway and footway over any public bridge or causeway and

(n) "works" includes electric supply lines and any buildings, machinery or apparatus required to supply energy and to carry into effect the objects of a license granted under Part II

PART II

SUPPLY OF ENERGY

Licenses

3 (1) The Provincial Government may, on application made in the prescribed form and on payment of the prescribed fee (if any), grant to any person a license to supply energy in any specified area and also to lay down or place electric supply lines for the conveyance and transmission of energy,—

(ii) save in cases in which under section 10 clause (b) the provisions of sections 5 and 7, or either of them have been declared not to apply, every such license shall declare whether any generating station to be used in connection with the undertaking shall or shall not form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase under section 5 or section 7,

(e) the grant of a license under this Part for any purpose shall not in any way hinder or restrict the grant of a license to another person within the same area of supply for a like purpose,

(f) the provisions contained in the Schedule shall be deemed to be incorporated with, and to form part of every license granted under this Part, save in so far as they are expressly added to, varied or excepted by the license, and shall, subject to any such additions, variations or exceptions which the Provincial Government is hereby empowered to make, apply to the undertaking authorised by the license.

Provided that where a license is granted in accordance with the provisions of clause IX of the Schedule for the supply of energy to other licensees for distribution by them, then, in so far as such license relates to such supply, the provisions of clauses IV, V, VI, VII, VIII and XII of the Schedule shall not be deemed to be incorporated with the license

Revocation or amendment of licenses

4 (1) The Provincial Government may, in its opinion the public interest so requires, revoke a license, in any of the following cases, namely —

(a) where the licensee, in the opinion of the Provincial Government makes wilful and unreasonably prolonged default in doing anything required of him by or under this Act,

(b) where the licensee breaks any of the terms or conditions of his license the breach of which is expressly declared by such license to render it liable to revocation,

(c) where the licensee fails, within the period fixed in this behalf by his license or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under sub section (3), clause (b), and before exercising any of the powers conferred on him thereby in relation to the execution of works,—

(i) to show, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government that he is in a position fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed on him by his license, or

(ii) to make the deposit or furnish the security required by his license,

(d) where the licensee is, in the opinion of the Provincial Government, unable, by reason of his insolvency, fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed on him by his license

(2) Where the Provincial Government might, under sub section (1), revoke a license, it may, instead of revoking the license, permit it to remain in force subject to such further terms and conditions as it thinks fit to impose, and any further terms or conditions so imposed shall be binding upon, and be observed by, the licensee, and shall be of like force and effect as if they were contained in the license

(3) Where in its opinion the public interest so permits, the Provincial Government may, on the application or with the consent of the licensee, and if the licensee is not a local authority, after consulting the local authority (if any) concerned,—

(a) revoke a license as to the whole or any part of the area of supply upon such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, or

(b) make such alterations or amendments in the terms and conditions of a license, including the provisions specified in section 3, sub section (2), clause (f), as it thinks fit

Provisions where license of licensee not being a local authority, is revoked

5 Where the Provincial Government revokes, under section 4, sub section (1), the license of a licensee, not being a local authority, the following provisions shall have effect, namely —

(a) the Provincial Government shall serve a notice of the revocation upon the licensee, and, where the whole of the area of supply is included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, upon that local authority also, and shall in the notice fix a date on which the revocation shall take effect, and on and with effect from that date all the powers and liabilities of the licensee under this Act shall absolutely cease and determine,

(b) where a notice has been served on a local authority under clause (a), the local authority may, within three months after the service of the notice, and with the written consent of the Provincial Government by notice in writing, require the licensee to sell, and thereupon the licensee shall sell, the undertaking to the local authority on payment of the value of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant of the licensee suit to, and used by him for, the purposes of the undertaking, other than a generating station declared by the licensee not to form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase, such value to be, in case of difference or dispute, determined by arbitration.

Provided that the value of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant shall be deemed to be their fair market value at the time of purchase, due regard being had to the nature and condition for the time being of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant, and to the state of repair thereof, and to the circumstance that they are in such a position as to be ready for immediate working, and to the suitability of the same for the purposes of the undertaking, but without any addition in respect of compulsory purchase or of goodwill or of any profits which may be or might have been made from the undertaking, or of any similar considerations.

(c) where no purchase has been effected by the local authority under clause (b), and any other person is willing to purchase the undertaking, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, with the consent of the licensee or without the consent of the licensee in case the price is not less than that for which the local authority might have purchased the same, require the licensee to sell, and thereupon the licensee shall sell, the undertaking to such other person,

(d) where no purchase has been effected under clause (b) or clause (c) within such time as the Provincial Government may consider reasonable, or where the whole of the area of supply is not included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, the Provincial Government shall have the option of purchasing the undertaking and, if the Provincial Government elects to purchase, the licensee shall sell the undertaking to the Provincial Government upon terms and conditions similar to those set forth in clause (b),

(e) where a purchase has been effected under any of the preceding clauses,—

(f) the undertaking shall vest in the purchasers free from any debts, mortgages or similar obligations of the licensee or attaching to the undertaking.

Provided that any such debts, mortgages or similar obligations shall attach to the purchase-money in substitution for the undertaking, and

(ii) the revocation of the license shall extend only to the revocation of the rights, powers, authorities, duties and obligations of the licensee from whom the undertaking is purchased, and, save as aforesaid, the license shall remain in full force, and the purchaser shall be deemed to be the licensee.

Provided that where the Provincial Government elects to purchase under clause (d), the licensee shall, after purchase, in so far as the Provincial Government is concerned, cease to have any further operation,

(f) where no purchase has been effected under any of the foregoing clauses, the licensee shall have the option of disposing of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant belonging to the undertaking in such manner as he may think fit.

Provided that, if the licensee does not exercise such option within a period of six months from the date on which the same became exercisable, the Provincial

(g) if the licensee has been required to sell the undertaking, and if the sale has not been completed by the date fixed in the notice issued under clause (a), the purchaser may, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government, work the undertaking pending the completion of the sale.

6. (1) Where the Provincial Government revokes the license of a local authority under section 4, sub-section (1), and any person is willing to purchase the undertaking, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, require the local authority to sell, and thereupon the local authority shall sell, the undertaking to such person on such terms as the Provincial Government thinks just.

(2) Where no purchase has been effected under sub-section (1), the licensee shall have the option of disposing of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant belonging to the undertaking in such manner as he may think fit :

Provided that, if the licensee does not exercise such option within a period of six months from the date on which the same became exercisable, the Provincial Government may forthwith cause the works of the licensee in, under, over, along or across any street to be removed and every such street to be reinstated, and recover the cost of such removal and reinstatement from the licensee.

7. (1) Where a license has been granted to any person not being a local authority, and the whole of the area of supply is included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, the local authority shall, on the expiration of such period, not exceeding fifty years, and of every such subsequent period not exceeding twenty years, as shall be specified in this behalf in the license, have the option of purchasing the undertaking, and, if the local authority, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government, elects to purchase, the licensee shall sell the undertaking to the local authority on payment of the value of all lands, buildings, works, materials and plant of the licensee suitable to, and used by him for, the purposes of the undertaking, other than a generating station declared by the license not to form part of the undertaking for the purpose of purchase, such value to be, in case of difference or dispute, determined by arbitration :

Provided that the value of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant shall be deemed to be their fair market-value at the time of purchase, due regard being had to the nature and condition for the time being of such lands, buildings, works, materials and plant, and to the state of repair thereof, and to the circumstance that they are in such a position as to be ready for immediate working, and to the suitability of the same for the purposes of the undertaking :

Provided also that there shall be added to such value as aforesaid such percentage, if any, not exceeding twenty per centum on that value as may be specified in the license, on account of compulsory purchase.

(2) Where—

(a) the local authority does not elect to purchase under sub-section (1), or

(b) the whole of the area of supply is not included in the area for which a single local authority is constituted, or

(c) a licensee supplies energy from the same generating station to two or more areas of supply, each controlled by its own local authority, and has been granted a license in respect of each area of supply, the Provincial Government shall have the like option upon the like terms and conditions.

(3) Where a purchase has been effected under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2),—

(a) the undertaking shall vest in the purchasers free from any debts, mortgages or similar obligations of the licensee or attaching to the undertaking :

Provided that any such debt, mortgage or similar obligation shall attach to the purchase money in substitution for the undertaking, and

(2) save as aforesaid the License shall remain in full force and the purchaser shall be deemed to be the Licensee.

Provided that where the Provincial Government elects to purchase under sub-section (2) the license shall nevertheless, in so far as the Provincial Government is concerned, cease to have any further operation.

(4) Not less than two years' notice in writing of any election to purchase under this section shall be served upon the licensee by the local authority or the Provincial Government as the case may be.

(5) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, a local authority may, with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government waive its option to purchase and enter into an agreement with the licensee for the working by him of the undertaking until the expiration of the next subsequent period referred to in sub-section (1), upon such terms and conditions as may be stated in such agreement.

8 Where, on the expiration of any of the periods referred to in section 7, sub-section (1) neither a local authority nor the Provincial Government purchases the undertaking and the license is, on the application or with the consent of the licensee, revoked the licensee shall have the option of dis-purchase or otherwise, the license or the undertaking of, or associate himself so far as the business of supplying energy is concerned with, any person supplying, or intending to supply, energy under any other license, and, before applying for such consent, the licensee shall give not less than one month's notice of the application to every local authority, both in the licensee's area of supply, and also in the area or district in which such other person supplies, or intends to supply, energy.

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be construed to require the consent of the Provincial Government for the supply of energy by one licensee to another in accordance with the provisions of clause IX of the Schedule.

(2) The licensee shall not at any time assign his license or transfer his undertaking, or any part thereof, by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise without the previous consent in writing of the Provincial Government.

(b) if the repairing authority intimates to the licensee that it disapproves of such works, section or plan, or approves thereof subject to amendment, the licensee may, within one week of receiving such intimation, appeal to the Provincial Government whose decision, after considering the reasons given by the repairing authority for its action, shall be final,

(c) if the repairing authority fails to give notice in writing of its approval or disapproval to the licensee within one month, it shall be deemed to have approved of the works, section and plan, and the licensee, after giving not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing to the repairing authority, may proceed to carry out the works in accordance with the notice and the section and plan served under clause (a),

(d) if the owner disapproves of such works, section or plan, or approves thereof subject to amendment, he may, within three weeks after the service of the notice under clause (a) serve a requisition upon the licensee demanding that any question in relation to the works or to compensation, or to the obligations of the owner to others in respect thereof, shall be determined by arbitration, and thereupon the matter shall, unless settled by agreement, be determined by arbitration,

(e) where no requisition has been served by the owner upon the licensee under clause (d), within the time named, the owner shall be deemed to have approved of the works, section and plan, and in that case, or where after a requisition for arbitration the matter has been determined by arbitration, the works may, upon payment or securing of compensation, be executed according to the notice and the section and plan, subject to such modifications as may have been determined by arbitration or agreed upon between the parties

(2) In any such case as aforesaid the following provisions shall, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary between the parties concerned, apply, namely —

(a) not less than one month before commencing an alteration, the licensee or other person desiring to make the same (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the operator") shall serve upon the person for the time being entitled to the pipe, wire, electric supply lines or works, as the case may be (hereinafter in this section referred to as "the owner"), a notice in writing, describing the proposed alteration, together with a section and plan thereof on a scale sufficiently large to show clearly the details of the proposed works and not in any case smaller than one inch to eight feet vertically and sixteen inches to the mile horizontally, and intimating the time when it is to be commenced, and shall subsequently give such further information in relation thereto as the owner may desire,

(b) within fourteen days after the service of the notice, section and plan upon the owner, the owner may serve upon the operator a requisition to the effect that any question arising upon the notice, section or plan shall be determined by arbitration, and thereupon the matter shall, unless settled by agreement, be determined by arbitration,

(c) every arbitrator to whom a reference is made under clause (b) shall have regard to any duties or obligations which the owner is under, and may require the operator to execute any temporary or other works so as to avoid as far as possible interference therewith,

(d) where no requisition is served upon the operator under clause (b) within the time named, or where such a requisition has been served and the matter has been settled by agreement or determined by arbitration, the alteration may, upon

This paragraph was numbered as sub-section '(1)' by S. 10 of 1914.

NOTES

Sec. 23.—See 63 C 1047 noted under S. 3 supra. A consumer of electricity employing electrical machinery is entitled with in his own premises to use all reasonable tests which might be necessary to discover a defect. It is not obligatory on any one whatever machinery he may happen to use to call in an expert on every occasion when something goes wrong. A man is entitled if he is able to remedy defects himself in his own plant. If, in the case of electric supply, it is a reasonable test for a consumer to use an electric lamp and if he bona fide uses a lamp for this purpose without permission S. 23 has no application nor is he guilty under S. 39 as his action does not amount to dishonest abstraction of the company's electric energy. 131 I C 19=35 C L J 1274=1934 A 320. Per Suhra cardy J.—The words such other in cl. (c) of S. 23 (3) cannot be interpreted as preventing the Government from utilising either method with such modifications as they think fit. 35 C W N 933=58 C 1458=1932 C 14. Per Graham J.—S. 23 (3) seems to give the licensee the option of adopting any one of the three methods mentioned. 35 C W N 933=58 C 1458. The consumer and the supplier may enter into any agreement as to the charge for supply of energy subject to the limitation mentioned in S. 23. Where the rate agreed and sanctioned by Government was 7as per unit plus Rs 5 per unit per kilowatt of the rated capacity of the consuming devices installed provided the combined charges shall not exceed the flat rate of 8 as per unit held, that the charges for actual consumption and kilowatt were two parts of the same method of charging and that even if they were different it was ultra vires of the Government to fix them under S. 23 (3) (c). The system adopted cannot be said to amount to a double system of charge and the consumer is bound to pay the charges as agreed. 35 C W N 933=58 C 1458.

Sec. 23 (3) (c).—S. 23 (3) (c) contemplates charges made on the basis of consumption. It does not authorise a licensee to levy minimum charges without any agreement with the consumer. Nor can the licensee invoke cl. (c) of S. 23 (3) to support its claim for minimum charges when the Local Government has not exercised their powers under that clause by a notification under it. 63 Cal 1047=40 C W N 789=1936 Cal 261.

Sec. 24. POWERS UNDER—NATURE AND EXTENT OF—CONDITIONS OF EXERCISE.—The power to discontinue supply to a premises is power given in addition to the rights to realise the arrears by a suit and this statutory power should be exercised in good faith and reasonably and only as a last resort after all the formalities laid down in the Act had been complied with. 62 C 886=39 C W N 526=61 C L J 111=1935 C 223.

NOTICE.—The notice under this section is purely for the protection of the consumer, and no question of public policy is involved.

Discontinuance of supply to consumer neglecting to pay charge

⁴[Provided that the prohibition contained in this sub-section shall not apply in any case in which the licensee has made a request in writing to the consumer for a deposit with the Electric Inspector of the amount of the licensee's charges or other sums in dispute or for the deposit of the licensee's further charges for energy as they accrue, and the consumer has failed to comply with such request]

25 Where any electric supply-lines, meters, fittings, works or apparatus belonging to a licensee are placed in or upon any premises, not being in the possession of the licensee, for the purpose of supplying energy, such electric supply-lines, meters, fittings, works and apparatus shall not be liable to be taken in execution under any process of any Civil Court or in any proceedings, in insolvency against the person in whose possession the same may be

26 (1) In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the amount of energy, supplied to a consumer or the electrical quantity contained in the supply shall be ascertained by means of a correct meter, and the licensee shall, if required by the consumer, cause the consumer to be supplied with such a meter

Provided that the licensee may require the consumer to give him security for the price of a meter and enter into an agreement for the hire thereof, unless the consumer elects to purchase a meter

(2) Where the consumer so enters into an agreement for the hire of a meter, the licensee shall keep the meter correct, and, in default of his doing so, the consumer shall, for so long as the default continues, cease to be liable to pay for the hire of the meter

(3) Where the meter is the property of the consumer, he shall keep the meter correct, and, in default, of his doing so, the licensee may, after giving him seven days' notice, for so long as the default continues, cease to supply energy through the meter

The licensee can discontinue the supply of energy if the consumer's installation is defective. In case of any alleged defect, the licensee can refer the matter to an electric inspector and he is to decide the matter. If energy is supplied to the consumer knowing that the installation is defective, the consumer will not pay for a new fuse or cut out if the old melts on account of defective installation 45 I.C. 171

(4) The licensee or any person duly authorised by the licensee shall, at any reasonable time and on informing the consumer of his intention, have access to, and be at liberty to inspect and test, and for that purpose, if he thinks fit, take off and remove, any meter referred to in sub-section (1), and, except where the meter is so hired as aforesaid, all reasonable expenses of, and incidental to, such inspecting, testing, taking off and removing shall, if the meter is found to be otherwise, than correct, be recovered from the consumer and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such reasonable expenses, the matter shall be referred to an Electric Inspector, and the decision of such Inspector shall be final.

Provided that the licensee shall not be at liberty to take off or remove, any such meter if any difference or dispute of the nature described in sub-section (6) has arisen until the matter has been determined as therein provided.

(5) A consumer shall not connect any meter referred to in sub-section (1) with any electric supply line through which energy is supplied by a licensee, or disconnect the same from any such electric supply line, without giving to the licensee not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing of his intention.

(6) Where any difference or dispute arises as to whether any meter referred to in sub-section (1) is or is not correct, the matter shall be decided, upon the application of either party, by an Electric Inspector, or by a competent person specially appointed by the Provincial Government in this behalf, and, where the meter has, in the opinion of such Inspector or person, ceased to be correct, such Inspector or person shall estimate the amount of the energy supplied to the consumer or the electrical quantity contained in the supply, during such time as the meter shall not, in the opinion of such Inspector or person, have been correct, if * * * and where the matter has been decided by any person other than the Electric Inspector, an appeal shall lie to the Inspector whose decision shall in every case be final but save as aforesaid the register of the meter shall, in the absence of fraud be conclusive proof of such amount or quantity.

[Provided that, before either a licensee or a consumer applies to the Electric Inspector under this sub section, he shall give to the other party not less than seven days' notice of his intention so to do.]

(7) In addition to any meter which may be placed upon the premises of a consumer in pursuance of the provisions of sub section (1), the licensee may place upon such premises such meter, maximum demand indicator or other apparatus as he may think fit for the purpose of ascertaining or regulating either the amount of energy supplied to the consumer, or the number of hours during which the supply is given, or the rate per unit of time at which energy is supplied to the consumer, or any other quantity or time connected with the supply.

Provided that the meter, indicator or apparatus shall not, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, be placed otherwise than between the distributing mains of the licensee and any meter referred to in sub section (1).

Provided also, that, where the charges for the supply of energy depend wholly or partly upon the reading or indication of any such meter, indicator or apparatus as aforesaid, the licensee shall, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, keep the meter, indicator, or apparatus correct, and the provisions of sub sections (4), (5) and (6) shall in that case apply as though the meter, indicator or apparatus were a meter referred to in sub section (1).

Explanation—A meter shall be deemed to be "correct" if it registers the amount of energy supplied, or the electrical quantity contained in the supply,

NOTES

Sec 26 (5) deals with a case of connecting a new meter with the licensee's supply

Inc R 31 (1) of the Electricity Rules on the other hand does not deal with cases which S 26 (5) contemplates. R 31 (1) deals with the tampering of seals placed on a meter which is already working. There is therefore no conflict between S 26 (5) and R 31 (1). I L R (1939) Bom 496. =41 Bom L R 878=1939 Bom 480 within the prescribed limits of error, and a maximum demand indicator or other apparatus referred to in sub-section (7) shall be deemed to be "correct" if it complies with such conditions as may be prescribed in the case of any such indicator or other apparatus

27 Notwithstanding anything in this Act, the Provincial Government may, by order in writing, and subject to such conditions and restrictions, if any, as it thinks fit to impose, authorise any licensee to supply energy to any person outside the area of supply, and to lay down or place electric supply lines for that purpose

Provided, first, that no such authority shall be conferred on the licensee within the area of supply of another licensee without that licensee's consent, unless the Provincial Government considers that his consent has been unreasonably withheld

Provided, secondly, that such authority shall not be conferred unless the person to whom the supply is to be given has entered into a specific agreement with the licensee for the taking of such supply

Provided, thirdly, that a licensee on whom such authority has been conferred shall not be deemed to be empowered outside the area of supply to open or break up any street, or any sewer, drain or tunnel in or under any street, railway or tramway, or to interfere with any telegraph-line, without the written consent of the local authority or person by whom such street, sewer, drain or tunnel is repairable, or of the telegraph authority, as the case may be, [unless the Provincial Government, after such inquiry as it thinks fit, considers that such consent has been unreasonably withheld]

Provided, fourthly, that, save as aforesaid, the provisions of this Act shall apply in the case of any supply authorised under this section as if the said supply were made within the area of supply

PART III

SUPPLY, TRANSMISSION AND USE OF ENERGY BY NON-LICENSEES

28 (1) No person, other than a licensee, shall engage in the business of supplying energy with the previous sanction of the Provincial Government and in accordance with such conditions as the Provincial Government may fix in this behalf, and any agreement to the contrary shall be void

Provided [*] that such sanction shall not be given within the area for which a local authority is constituted, without that local authority's consent, or within the area of supply of any licensee, without that licensee's consent, unless the Provincial Government considers that consent has been unreasonably withheld

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises as to whether any person is or is not engaging, or about to engage, in the business of supplying energy within the meaning of sub-section (1), the matter shall be referred to the Provincial Government and the decision of the Provincial Government thereon shall be final

29 (1) The local authority may, by order in writing, confer and impose upon any person who has obtained the sanction of the Provincial Government under section 28 to engage in the business of supplying energy, all or any of the powers and liabilities of a licensee under sections 12 to 19 both inclusive, and the provisions of the said sections shall thereupon apply as if such person were a licensee under Part II

(2) A local authority, not being a licensee, shall, for the purpose of lighting any street, have the powers and be subject to the liabilities respectively conferred and imposed by sections 12 to 19 both inclusive, so far as applicable, as if it were a licensee under Part II.

(3) In cases other than those for which provision is made by sub-section (1), the person responsible for the repair of any street may, by order in writing, confer and impose upon any person who proposes to transmit energy in such street all or any of the powers and liabilities of a licensee under sections 12 to 19 (both inclusive), in so far as the same relate to—

(a) opening or breaking up of the soil or pavement of such street, or

(b) laying down or placing electric supply-lines in, under, along or across such street, or

(c) repairing, altering or removing such electric supply-lines, and thereupon the provisions of the said sections shall, so far as aforesaid, apply to such person as if he were a licensee under Part II.

(4) If no order is made within fourteen days after the receipt of an application for the same under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3), the order so applied for shall be deemed to have been refused, and every order, and every refusal to make an order, under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3), shall be subject to revision by the Provincial Government.

[29A] The provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4) of section 18 and of the Explanation thereto shall apply in the case of any aerial line placed by any railway administration as defined in section 3 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, as if references therein to the licensee were references to the railway administration.]

PART IV

GENERAL

Protective Clauses

31 No person shall, in the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy, in any way injure any railway, tramway, canal or water way or any dock, wharf or pier vested in or controlled by a local authority, or obstruct or interfere with the traffic on any railway, tramway, canal or water way

32 (1) Every person generating, transmitting, supplying or using energy (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "operator") shall take all reasonable precautions in constructing, laying down and placing his electric supply-lines and other works and in working his system, so as not injuriously to affect, whether by induction or otherwise, the working of any wire or line used for the purpose of telegraphic, telephonic or electric signalling communication, or the currents in such wire or line

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises between the operator and the telegraph authority as to whether the operator has constructed, laid down or placed his electric supply lines or other works, or worked his system, in contravention of sub section (1), or as to whether the working of any wire, line or current is or is not injuriously affected thereby, the matter shall be referred to ¹[the Central Government], and ¹[the Central Government], unless ²[it] is of opinion that the wire or line has been placed in unreasonable proximity to the electric supply lines or works of the operator after the construction of such lines or works, may direct the operator to make such alterations in, or additions to, his system as may be necessary in order to comply with the provisions of this section, and the operator shall make such alterations or additions accordingly

Provided that nothing in this sub section shall apply to the repair, renewal or amendment of any electric supply line so long as the course of the electric supply-line and the amount and nature of the energy transmitted thereby are not altered

(3) Where the operator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall make full compensation for any loss or damage incurred by reason thereof, and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such compensation, the matter shall be determined by arbitration

Explanation—For the purposes of this section, a telegraph line shall be deemed to be injuriously affected if telegraphic, telephonic or electric-signalling communication by means of such line is, whether through induction or otherwise, prejudicially interfered with by an electric supply-line or work or by any use made thereof

BURDEN OF PROOF—CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE—S 39 does not remove from prosecution the burden of proving an offence against an individual. Such proof must naturally be circumstantial in character. Where the person charged is the lessee or owner of the house and the consumer of the electricity (that is the person who is officially on the company's books as the consumer in the particular house) and where there is a large and obvious erection on the roof of the house or in any part of the house where it could not possibly escape the notice of the consumer and where in addition the person charged is the only person who would gain advantage from the theft of the electricity the charge under S 39 is made out. 146 I C 814=1933 A L J 1175. S 39 does not say that dishonest abstraction or consumption or use of energy is theft. S 39 means no more than that the offender is to be tried in the same way as if he had committed the offence of theft. 1936 Cal 753. Abstraction is not always a necessary ingredient for an offence under S 39. The consuming of electricity and the regular causing of the record of that use in the shape of the figures on the dials in the meters to be altered amounts to a dishonest user within the meaning of S 39 and the persons causing or allowing the alteration of the figures on the dial must be deemed to have committed theft within the meaning of S 39, Penal Code. 1936 C 753.

OFFENCE UNDER SECTION—CONSUMER USING ELECTRICAL MACHINERY—Bona fide CONDUCT—A consumer employing electrical machinery is entitled within his own premises to use all reasonable tests which might be necessary to discover a defect. It is not obligatory on any one whatever machinery he may happen to use to call in an expert on every occasion when something goes wrong. A man is entitled if he is able, to remedy defects himself in his own plant. If in the electric supply, it is reasonable for a consumer to use an electric lamp and he bona fide uses a lamp for his purpose without permission, S 23 has no application nor is he guilty under S 39 as his action does not amount to dishonest abstraction of the company's electric energy. 151 I C 19=35 Cr I J 1274=1934 A J 320.

SECS 39 AND 44 (c)—S 39 dispenses with direct proof of abstraction by the accused person but does not indicate the person who is to be held liable for the constructive abstraction. S 44 (c) also enables a presumption to be raised under certain circumstances that the prevention of a meter from duly registering itself has been knowingly and wilfully caused by the consumer in whose custody or control the meter is proved to be. But the prosecution can not avail itself of this statutory presumption as against an accused person unless that person is shown to be a consumer within the meaning of S 2 (c). 1938 P W N 182=19 Pat I T 141=A I R 1938 Pat 243. Where an offence falls under both Ss 39 and 44 (c) the mere fact that a charge could have been made under S 44 (c) does not prevent a charge made under S 39 from being properly made especially where the offence under S 39 is clearly established. S 39 is in fact the major offence. 65 I A 158=42 C W N 621=1938 P C 130=(1938) 1 M L J 647 (P C). Ss 39 and 44 Electricity Act are to be considered as separate enactments for purposes of S 26 General Clauses Act. 1936 Cal 753.

SECS 39 AND 50 THEFT OF ELECTRIC ENERGY—PERSONS AUTHORISED TO PROSECUTE—S 39 creates an offence and prosecution for the theft of electric energy can be instituted only by one of the persons mentioned in S 50. Where the prosecution is not instituted at the instance of the Government or an Electric Inspector but by the Executive Officer of a Cantonment Board who are licensees for distribution of electric energy the proceedings are liable to be quashed in the absence of evidence to show that the Executive Officer has authority from the Board to institute the proceedings as he cannot be deemed to be an aggrieved person within the meaning of S 50. 37 P L R 758.

G. 116 J. 116

NOTES

Sec. 37.—The Power to make general rules for the whole of British India or any considerable part of it cannot be held to confer and the consideration of merely local conditions is unnecessary. In a case where the electricity supply is not covered to have a general application where with the limits of Malabar this are not free from the ordinary control of the local authority in respect of the steam boiler which they use to provide motive power for generation [(1881) 6 A.C. 193 Ref.] Nor does the fact that it is a company of public utility with compulsory obligations to the public confer on it immunity from the control of the local authority. [(1897) 2 Q.B. 664 (1909) 2 K.B. 744 (1900) 82 L.T. 562, (1909) 2 K.B. 138 (1903) 88 L.T. 772 Ref.] 54 M. 764—1931 Mal 152 =60 M.L.J. 551

RULES 31 AND 37.—The provisions of R. 31 deal with the point of commencement of supply of energy by the licensee to the consumer and not with the question of control over an electric line as a matter of fact. R. 31 is one of the rules relating to the conditions of supply which is a matter of concern between the licensee and the consumer rather than a matter affecting the public, whereas R. 37 is one of the rules of precaution for the safety of the public. 1933 R. 70=11 Rang. 162=34 Cr. L.J. 1040 R. 37 applies to all electric supply lines and in considering whether the case is governed by R. 37 or not it is unnecessary to determine whether the line in question is a service line or not. Under R. 37 the licensee is responsible that all electric supply lines under his control, even if they are on a consumer's premises, are maintained in a safe condition. In truth and in fact the consumer gets the use of the control of the electric system only when it reaches his premises and as soon as it passes there the control is lost. 111 F. 122 See also 41 Com. 111 S.C. The concern on that if the consumer elects to take a supply of electricity from the licensee is that the meter at any point on the licensee's premises and receives the supply through the licensee's meter and there after it is conveyed through a line which belongs to the consumer and is not at the licensee's disposal to keep in a safe condition. 111 F. 122 See also 41 Com. 111 S.C. (see the meter)

The consumer pays for and also the line and works on the consumer's premises is cast upon the consumer and not on the licensee cannot be accepted for it runs counter to the object and effect of the Electricity Act. The licensee is not entitled by agreement with the consumer to release himself from the obligation to see that the line apparatus and works by which electricity is transmitted so long as he retains control of them are maintained in a safe condition because this obligation is cast upon him not merely for the benefit of the consumer and the licensee but also for the protection and in the interest of the public generally. Where therefore the licensee allows the stay wire in the road to be in an unsafe condition the licensee fails to perform an obligation imposed upon him under the Act and is guilty of a breach of R. 37 and can be convicted under R. 107. But a conviction in the alternative under R. 107 and S. 47 however is not in accordance with law, for, the case falls neither under S. 236 nor S. 367 (3), Cr. P. Code. 1933 Cr. C. 477=1933 R. 70. The evidence for the prosecution showed that when the officials of a licensee company visited the premises of the accused the seals which the company had affixed to the meter placed upon the premises of the accused had been removed. Held that the accused must be held responsible for removing these seals and that his conviction under R. 106 read with R. 37 (4) was justified. 116 J. C. 889=1929 L. 867 energy by licensees to consumers and for the testing at various parts of the system of the regularity and sufficiency of such supply, and for the examination of the records of such tests by consumers,

(f) provide for the protection of persons and property from injury by reason of contact with, or the proximity of, or by reason of the defective or dangerous condition of, any appliance or apparatus used in the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy,

RULE 40 A —BOMBAY GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATION DATED 15 11 1934— THEIR OWN WORKS — INTERPRETATION OF— WORKS — MEANING OF—The words their own works in the notification dated 15 11 1934 issued by the Government of Bombay under R 40 A of the Electricity Rules 1922 can not be interpreted as being limited to works carried out on the premises of the various bodies referred to there. The words mean works carried out by the exempted bodies themselves or perhaps works belonging to them, and by works is meant the kind of works referred to in the rule and not the kind of works referred to in the definition in the Electricity Act 43 Bom L R 99 1941 Bom 100 See also I L R (1939) Bom 496

RULE 48 OF THE INDIAN ELECTRICITY RULES 1937, introduced by the Notification dated 27 3 1937, did not come into force until 22 3 1938 and R 48 cannot therefore apply to any installation works carried out before 22 3 1938 and after March 1937. Nor would the old R 40 A of the Electricity Rules 1922 would apply because under the Notification of 23 3 1937 the old R 40 A was superseded when the new rules were made applicable on 27 3 1937. S 24 of the General Clauses Act of 1897 is of no avail in such a case and R 40-A of the old cannot be regarded as superseded only when the new R 48 came into force because the notification of March 1937, expressly superseded the rules of 1922 43 Bom L R 99 =1941 Bom 100

COMMERCIAL PREMISES in the context of the classification rules for electric supply by an electric licensee means nothing more than premises used for purposes of business. Therefore in a prosecution for offences under sec 44 and R 106 prima facie it should be enough to prove either that energy was supplied for the use of the persons or that the persons were owners or occupiers of premises connected up with the licensee's electric system 172 I C 940=18 Pat L T 986=1938 Pat 15 It is clear from the provisions of S 37 of the Electricity Act that R 106 was one which the Government of India had power to make and the necessity of a rule fixing responsibility for the integrity of the seals of the meter fixed on the consumers premises is obvious. It is equally obvious that in case of a conviction under R 106 although the breaking of a seal on a meter fixed on a consumer's premises is sufficient to render the consumer liable to a fine the fine would be adopted to the circumstances of the case 151 I C 1039=1934 N 245 Rule 106 is unreasonable and repugnant to the general principles of law and is in excess of the powers conferred by S 37 (4). It is also inconsistent with the provisions of S 44 of the Act. Consequently this rule is ultra vires of the Governor General in Council and is therefore invalid 12 R 515=35 Cr L J 1364 =1934 R 178

Secs 37 and 38: RULES UNDER.—Validity of rules made and duly published by the Governor-General can be canvassed in a Court of law. 12 R. 515=35 Cr.L.J. 1364=1934 R. 178. The definite policy underlying the penal rules framed under S. 37 is to make licensees and owners who are experts, having, or supposed to have some knowledge of the technical matters relating to electricity liable for breaches of the rules. An owner as defined under the rules is a sort of quasi-licensee; a person who is not a licensee, but authorised by Government under Part III of the Act to supply energy. The rules, however, clearly are not part of the Act, and the provision in S. 38 (4) giving them the same force as if they had been enacted by the Act does not make them so. 60 Bom. 770=37 Cr.L.J. 1124=38 Bom.L.R. 434=1936 Bom 327.

Sec 39.—The word "dishonestly" is a legal expression having the same sense as that in which it is used in the Penal Code. 27 I.C. 591.

NOTES

BURDEN OF PROOF—CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE —S 39 does not remove from prosecution the burden of proving an offence against an individual. Such proof must naturally be circumstantial in character. Where the person charged is the lessee or owner of the house and the consumer of the electricity (that is the person who is officially on the company's books as the consumer in the particular house) and where there is a large and obvious erect on on the roof of the house or in any part of the house where it could not possibly escape the notice of the consumer and where in addition the person charged is the only person who would gain advantage from the theft of the electricity the charge under S 39 is made out. 146 I C 814=1933 A L J 1175. S 39 does not say that dishonest abstraction or consumption or use of energy is theft. S 39 means no more than that the offender is to be tried in the same way as if he had committed the offence of theft. 1936 Cal 753. Abstraction is not always a necessary ingredient for an offence under S 39. The consuming of electricity and the regular causing of the record of that use in the shape of the figures on the dials in the meters to be altered amounts to a dishonest user within the meaning of S 39 and the persons causing or allowing the alteration of the figures on the dial must be deemed to have committed theft within the meaning of S 39. Penal Code 1936 C 753.

OFFENCE UNDER SECTION—CONSUMER USING ELECTRICAL MACHINERY—Bona fide conduct —A consumer employing electrical machinery is entitled within his own premises to use all reasonable tests which might be necessary to discover a defect. It is not obligatory on any one, whatever machinery he may happen to use to call in an expert on every occasion when something goes wrong. A man is entitled if he is able, to remedy defects himself in his own plant. If in the electric supply, it is reasonable for a consumer to use an electric lamp and he bona fide uses a lamp for this purpose without permission, S 23 has no application nor is he guilty under S 39 as his action does not amount to dishonest abstraction of the company's electric energy. 151 I C 19=35 Cr L J 1274=1934 A 320.

SECS 39 AND 44 (c) —S 39 dispenses with direct proof of abstraction by the accused person but does not indicate the person who is to be held liable for the constructive abstraction. S 44 (c) also enables a presumption to be raised under certain circumstances that the prevention of a meter from duly registering itself has been knowingly and wilfully caused by the consumer in whose custody or control the meter is proved to be. But the prosecution can not avail itself of this statutory presumption as against an accused person unless that person is shown to be a consumer within the meaning of S 2 (c). 1938 P W N 182=19 Pat I T 141=A I R 1938 Pat 243. Where an offence falls under both Ss 39 and 44 (c) the mere fact that a charge could have been made under S 44 (c) does not prevent a charge made under S 39 from being properly made especially where the offence under S 39 is clearly established. S 39 is in fact the major offence. 65 I A 158=42 C W N 621=1938 P C 130=(1938) 1 M L J 647 (P C). Sec 39 and 44 Electricity Act are to be considered as separate enactments for purposes of S 26 General Clauses Act 1936 Cal 753.

SECS 39 AND 50 THEFT OF ELECTRIC ENERGY—PERSONS AUTHORISED TO PROSECUTE —S 39 creates an offence and prosecution for the theft of electric energy can be instituted only by one of the persons mentioned in S 50. Where the prosecution is not instituted at the instance of the Government or an Electric Inspector but by the Executive Officer of a Cantonment Board who are licensees for distribution of electric energy the proceedings are liable to be quashed in the absence of evidence to show that the Executive Officer has authority from the Board to institute the proceedings as he cannot be deemed to be an aggrieved person within the meaning of S 50. 37 P L R 758.

42. Whoever—

(a) being a licensee, save as permitted under section 27 or section 51 or by his license, supplies energy or lays down or places any electric supply-line or works outside the area of supply; or,

(b) being a licensee, in contravention of the provisions of this Act or of the rules thereunder or in breach of the conditions of his license and without reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie on him, discontinues the supply of energy or fails to supply energy; or shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence or default, with a daily fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty for interference with meters or licensee's works and for improper use of energy.

44. Whoever—

(a) connects any meter referred to in section 26, sub-section (1), or any meter, indicator or apparatus referred to in section 26, sub-section (7) with any electric supply-line through which energy is supplied by a licensee, or disconnects the same from any such electric supply-line, without giving to the licensee forty-eight hours' notice in writing of his intention; or

(b) lays, or causes to be laid, or connects up any works for the purpose of communicating with any other works belonging to a licensee, without such licensee's consent; or

(c) maliciously injures any meter referred to in section 26, sub-section (1), or any meter, indicator or apparatus referred to in section 26, sub-section (7), or wilfully or fraudulently alters the index of any such meter, indicator, or apparatus, or prevents any such meter, indicator or apparatus from duly registering; or

NOTES.

Sec. 44.—The latter part of S. 44 of the Act does not exonerate the prosecution from discharging the onus which lies on it to show that there has been improper use of the energy of a licensee, but merely provides that in case there has been such improper use, the consumer himself will not be able to avoid the liability by saying that the energy was used by some person over whom he had no control I L R. Sec. 44 (b) OF THE ACT does not require that the "works" laid or connected up with any other works belonging to the licensee must also be works belonging to the licensee. I L R. 1939 Bom. 496=41 Bom L.R. 878 =1939 Bom 480. "Works" as defined by S. 2 (n) of the Electricity Act, include electric supply lines. The point at which the supply of energy by a licensee to a consumer shall be deemed to commence, where the amount supplied is ascertained by meter, is the point at which the conductor enters the meter, in view of S. 35 read with S. 19-A of the Act. The supply line up to the point at which it enters the meter constitutes "works" within the meaning of S. 2 (n). Where a person therefore removes the meter board to a new position, after breaking open the seals which had been placed by the licensee upon the meter, laying additional lines from the former position of the meter up to its new position, his act amounts to an offence under S. 44 (b) of the Electricity Act as well as an offence under R. 31 (1) read with R. 122 (a) of the Electricity Rules. 47 Whoever in any case not already provided for by sections 39 to 46 (both inclusive), makes default in complying with any of the provisions of this Act, or with any order issued under it, or, in the case of a licensee, with any of the conditions of his license, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and, in the case of a continuing default, with a daily fine which may extend to twenty rupees

Penalty for offences not otherwise provided for

Provided that, where a person has made default in complying with any of the provisions of sections 13, 14, 15, 17 and 32, as the case may be, he shall not be so punishable if the Court is of opinion that the case was one of emergency and that the offender complied with the said provisions as far as was reasonable in the circumstances

48 The penalties imposed by sections 39 to 47 (both inclusive) shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any liability in respect of the payment of compensation or, in the case of a licensee, the revocation of his license, which the offender may have incurred

Security and Accounts

Security for execution of works of licensee not being local authority

I Where the licensee is not a local authority, the following provisions as to giving security shall apply, namely —

(a) The licensee shall within the period fixed in that behalf by his license, or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under section 4, subsection (3), clause (b), of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, before exercising any of the powers by the license conferred on him in relation to the execution of works show, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government, that he is in a position fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed upon him by the license throughout the area of supply.

(b) The licensee shall also within the period fixed in that behalf by his license, or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under section 4, subsection (3), clause (b), of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 and before exercising any of the powers conferred on him in relation to the execution of works, deposit or secure to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government such sum (if any) as may be fixed by the license or, if not so fixed, by the Provincial Government.

(c) The said sum deposited or secured by the licensee under the provisions of this clause shall be repaid or released to him on the completion of the works or at such earlier date or dates and by such instalments, as may be approved by the Provincial Government.

Audit of accounts of licensee. 11 Where the licensee is not a local authority, the following not being a local authority provisions as to the audit of accounts shall apply, namely —

(a) The annual statement of accounts of the undertaking shall, before being rendered under section 11 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, be examined and audited by such person as the Provincial Government may appoint or approve in that behalf, and the remuneration of the auditor shall be such as the Provincial Government may direct and his remuneration and all expenses incurred by him in or about the execution of his duties to such an amount as the Provincial Government shall approve shall be paid by the licensee on demand.

(b) The licensee shall afford to the auditor, his clerks and assistants, access to all such books and documents relating to the undertaking as are necessary for the purposes of the audit, and shall when required, furnish to him and them all vouchers and information requisite for that purpose, and afford to him and them all facilities for the proper execution of his and their duty.

(c) The audit shall be made and conducted in such manner as the Provincial Government may direct.

(d) Any report made by the auditor or such portion thereof as the Provincial Government may direct, shall be appended to the annual statement of accounts of the licensee, and shall thenceforth form part thereof.

(e) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this clause, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, accept the examination and audit of an auditor appointed by the licensee.

III The licensee shall, unless the Provincial Government otherwise directs, at all times keep the accounts of the capital employed for the purposes of the undertaking distinct from the accounts kept by him of any other undertaking or business.

Compulsory works and Supply

IV The licensee shall, within a period of three years after the commencement of the license, execute to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government all such works as may be specified in the license in this behalf or, if not so specified, as the Provincial Government may, by order in writing issued within six months of the date of the commencement of the license, direct.

V (i) Where, after the expiration of two years and six months from the commencement of the license, a requisition is made by six or more owners or occupiers of premises in or upon any street or part of a street within the area of supply or by the Provincial Government or a local authority charged with the public lighting thereof, requiring the licensee to provide distributing mains throughout such street or part thereof, the licensee shall comply within six months with the requisition, unless—

(a) where it is made by such owners or occupiers as aforesaid, the owners or occupiers making it do not, within fourteen clear days after the service on them by the licensee of a notice in writing in this behalf, tender to the licensee a written contract duly executed and with sufficient security binding themselves to take, or guaranteeing that there shall be taken, a supply of energy for not less than two years to such amount as will in the aggregate produce annually, at the current rates charged by the licensee, a reasonable return to the licensee, or

Cls 5, 6 and 10 —Clauses 6 and 5 cast the obligation on the licensee to supply electric energy to an applicant or a group of applicants for supply of electric energy only when the applicant or group of applicants enter into a written contract with the licensee. The only power reserved to the licensee by the Act in the matter of rates which may be exercised by him apart from contract is that he can charge on any one of the three alternative modes specified in Cls (a), (b) and (c) of sub S. (3) of S 23 of the Act, and even when the licensee intends to prefer to go upon the basis of S 23 (3) (c), the consumer can by following the procedure laid down in Cl 10 of the Schedule, compel the licensee to adopt either of the modes mentioned in Cls (a) and (b).

(b) where it is made by the Provincial Government or a local authority, the Provincial Government or local authority, as the case may be, does not, within the like period, tender a like contract binding itself to take a supply of energy for not less than seven years for the public lamps in such street or part thereof

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises between the licensee and such owners or occupiers as to the sufficiency of the security offered under this clause, or as to the amount of energy to be taken or guaranteed as aforesaid, the matter shall be referred to the Provincial Government and either decided by it or, if it so directs, determined by arbitration

(3) Every requisition under this clause shall be signed by the maker or makers thereof and shall be served on the licensee

(4) Every requisition under this clause shall be in a form to be prescribed by rules under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, and copies of the form shall be kept at the office of the licensee and supplied free of charge to any applicant

VI (1) Where [after distributing mains have been laid down under the provisions of clause IV or clause V and the supply of energy through those mains or any of them has commenced] a requisition is made by the owner or occupier of any premises situate within [the area of supply] requiring the licensee to supply energy for such premises, the licensee shall within one month from the making of the requisition, [or within such longer period as the Electric Inspector may allow] supply, and, save in so far as he is prevented from doing so by cyclones, floods, storms or other occurrences beyond his control, continue to supply, energy in accordance with the requisition

Provided first, that the licensee shall not be bound to comply with any such requisition unless and until the person making it—

(a) within fourteen days after the service on him by the licensee of a notice in writing in this behalf, tenders to the licensee a written contract, in a form approved by the Provincial Government duly executed and with sufficient security binding himself to take a supply of energy for not less than two years to such amount as will produce, at current rates charged by the licensee, a reasonable return to the licensee, and

(b) if required by the licensee so to do, pays to the licensee the cost of so much of any service-line as may be laid down or placed for the purposes of the supply upon the property in respect of which the requisition is made, and of so much of any service-line as it may be necessary for the said purposes to lay down or place beyond one hundred feet from the licensee's distributing main, although not on that property

Provided, secondly, that the licensee shall be entitled to discontinue such supply—

(a) if the owner or occupier of the property to which the supply is made has not already given security or if any security given by him has become invalid or insufficient, and such owner or occupier fails to furnish security or to make up the original security to a sufficient amount as the case may be within seven days, after the service upon him of notice from the licensee requiring him so to do, or

(b) if the owner or occupier of the property to which the supply is made adopts any appliance, or uses the energy supplied to him by the licensee for any purposes, or deals with it in any manner so as unduly or improperly to interfere with the efficient supply of energy to any other person by the licensee, or

(c) if the electric wires, fittings, works and apparatus in such property are not in good order and condition, and are consequently likely to affect injuriously the use of energy by the licensee, or by other persons, or

(d) if the owner or occupier makes any alterations of, or additions to, any electric wires, fittings, works or apparatus within such property as aforesaid, and does not notify the same to the licensee before the same are connected to the source of supply, with a view to their being examined and tested. [but the licensee shall re-connect the supply with all reasonable speed on the cessation of the act or default or both, as the case may be, which entitled him to discontinue it]

Provided, thirdly, that the maximum rate per unit of time at which the owner or occupier shall be entitled to be supplied with energy shall not exceed what is necessary for the maximum consumption on his premises, and, where the owner or occupier has required a licensee to supply him at a specified maximum rate he shall not be entitled to alter that maximum, except after one month's notice in writing to the licensee, and the licensee may recover from the owner or occupier any expenses incurred by him by reason of such alteration in respect of the service lines by which energy is supplied to the property beyond one hundred feet from the licensee's distributing main, or in respect of any fittings or apparatus of the licensee upon that property and Provided, fourthly, that "[if any requisition is made for a supply of energy and] the licensee can prove to the satisfaction of an Electric Inspector,—

(a) that "[the nearest distributing main] is already loaded up to its full current carrying capacity, or

(b) that, in case of a larger amount of current being transmitted by it, the loss of pressure will seriously affect the efficiency of the supply to other consumers in the vicinity, the licensee may refuse to accede to the requisition for such reasonable period, not exceeding six months, as such Inspector may think sufficient for the purpose of amending the distributing main or laying down or placing a further distributing main

(2) Any service line laid for the purpose of supply in pursuance of a requisition under sub-clause (1) shall, notwithstanding that a portion of it may have been paid for by the person making the requisition, be maintained by the licensee

(3) Where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of energy to be taken or guarantee as aforesaid, or as to the cost of any service line or as to the sufficiency of the security offered by any owner or occupier, or as to the improper use of energy, or as to any alleged defect in any wires, fittings, works or apparatus, or as to the amount of the expenses incurred under the third proviso to sub-clause (1), the matter shall be referred to an Electric Inspector and decided by him

(4) Every requisition under this clause shall be signed by the maker or makers thereof and shall be served on the licensee

[VII The licensee shall before commencing to lay down or place a service-line, in any street in which a distributing main has not already been laid down or placed, serve upon the local authority (if any) and upon the owner or occupier of all premises abutting on so much of the street as lies between the points of origin and termination of the service line so to be laid down or placed, twenty-one days' notice stating that the licensee intends to lay down or place a service line and intimating that, if within the said period the local authority or any five or more of such owners or occupiers require, in accordance with the provisions of the license, that a supply shall be given for any public lamps or to their premises, as the case may be, the necessary distributing main will be laid down or placed by the licensee at the same time as the service line]

VIII (1) Where "[after distributing mains have been laid down under the provisions of clause IV or clause V and the supply of energy through those mains or any of them has commenced] a requisition is made by the Provincial Government or by a local authority requiring the licensee to supply for a period of not less than seven years energy for any public lamps within the "[area of supply] the licensee shall supply, and save in so far as he is prevented from doing so, by cyclones, floods, storms or other occurrences beyond his control, continue to supply energy for such lamps in such quantities as the Provincial Government or the local authority, as the case may be, may require

(2) The provisions of sub-clause (b) of the first proviso of sub-clauses (c) and (d) of the second proviso, and of the third and fourth provisos to sub-clause (1) and the provisions of sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause VI shall so far as may be, apply to every case in which a requisition for the supply of energy is made under this clause as if the Provincial Government or local authority were an owner or occupier within the meaning of those provisions

Supply by bulk licensees

IX (1) Where, and in so far as, the licensee (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "the bulk licensee") is authorized by his license to supply energy to other licensees for distribution by them (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "distributing licensees") the following provisions shall apply, namely —

⁴ These words were inserted by S 25, ibid

⁵ These words were substituted for the words "distance of one hundred yards from any distributing main," by S 25, ibid

(a) any distributing licensee within the bulk-licensee's area of supply may make a requisition on the bulk licensee, requiring him to give a supply of energy and specifying the point, and the maximum rate per unit of time, at which such supply is required, and the date upon which the supply is to commence, such date being fixed after the date of receipt of the requisition so as to allow an interval that is reasonable with regard to the locality and to the length of the electric supply line and the amount of the plant required,

(b) such distributing licensee shall, if required by the bulk licensee so to do, enter into a written agreement to receive and pay for a supply of energy for a period of not less than seven years of such an amount that the payment to be made for the same at the rate of charge for the time being charged for such supply shall not be less than such an amount as will produce a reasonable return to the bulk licensee on the outlay (excluding expenditure on generating plant then existing and any electric supply line then laid down or placed) incurred by him in making provision for such supply,

(c) the maximum rate per unit of time at which a distributing licensee shall be entitled to be supplied with energy shall not exceed what is necessary for the purposes for which the supply is required by him and need not be increased except upon a fresh requisition made in accordance with the foregoing provisions,

(d) if any difference or dispute arises under this clause, it shall be determined by arbitration, and, in the event of such arbitration, the arbitrator shall have regard to the following amongst other considerations, namely —

(i) the period for which the distributing licensee is prepared to bind himself to take energy,

(ii) the amount of energy required and the hours during which the bulk licensee is to supply it,

(iii) the capital expenditure incurred or to be incurred by the bulk licensee in connection with the aforesaid supply of energy, and

(iv) the extent to which the capital expended or to be expended by the bulk licensee in connection with such supply may become unproductive upon the discontinuance thereof

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sub-clause (1) the bulk licensee shall give a supply of energy to any distributing licensee within his area of supply applying therefor even although the distributing licensee desires to be supplied with only a portion of the energy required for distribution by him

Provided that the distributing licensee shall, if so required by the bulk licensee, enter into an agreement to take such energy upon special terms (including a minimum annual sum to be paid to the bulk licensee) to be determined, if necessary, by arbitration in the manner laid down in sub-clause (1) (d)

(3) The maximum price fixed by a license for energy supplied to a distributing licensee shall not apply to any partial supply given under sub-clause (2)

(4) Every distributing licensee who is supplied with energy by a bulk licensee and intends to discontinue to receive such supply, shall give not less than twelve months' notice in writing of such intention to the bulk licensee

Provided that, where the distributing licensee has entered into a written agreement with the bulk licensee to receive and pay for a supply of energy for a certain period, such notice shall be given so as not to expire before the end of that period licensee changes the method of charging for the energy supplied by him from the distributing main, the licensee shall bear the expense of providing a new meter, or such other apparatus as may be necessary by reason of the new method of charging.

XI Save as provided by clause 9 sub-clause (2), the prices charged by the licensee for energy supplied by him shall not exceed the maxima fixed by his license, or in the case of a method of charge approved by the Provincial Government, such maxima as the Provincial Government shall fix on approving the method.

Provided that, if at any time after the expiration of seven years from the commencement of the license, the Provincial Government considers [1* * *] that the maxima so fixed or approved as aforesaid should be altered, it [shall refer the matter to an advisory Board and, if the Board recommends any alteration, may make an order in accordance with such recommendation], which shall have effect from such date as may be mentioned therein.

Provided also that where an order in pursuance of the foregoing proviso has been made, no further order altering the maxima fixed thereby shall be made until the expiration of another period of five years.

[XI-A A licensee may charge a consumer a minimum charge for energy of such amount and determined in such manner as may be specified by his license, and such minimum charge shall be payable notwithstanding that no energy has been used by the consumer during the period for which such minimum charge is made.]

XII The price to be charged by the licensee and to be paid to him for energy supplied for the public lamps and the mode in which those charges are to be ascertained shall be settled by agreement between the licensee and the Provincial Government or the local authority, as the case may be, and, where any difference or dispute arises, the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

Testing and Inspection

XIII The licensee shall establish at his own cost and keep in proper condition such number of testing stations situated at such places within reasonable distance from any distributing main, as the Provincial Government may direct for the purpose of testing the pressure or periodicity of the supply of energy in the distributing main and shall supply and keep in proper condition thereat, and on all premises from which he supplies energy, such instruments for testing as an Electric Inspector may approve, and shall supply energy to each testing station for the purpose of testing.

XIV The licensee shall afford all facilities for inspection and testing of his works and for the reading, testing and inspection of his instruments and may, on each occasion of the testing of his works or the reading, testing or inspection of any instruments, be represented by an agent, who may be present, but shall not interfere with the reading, testing or inspection.

XV On the occasion of the testing of any works of the licensee by an Electric Inspector reasonable notice thereof shall be given to the licensee, and the testing shall be carried out at such suitable hours as in the opinion of the Electric Inspector, will least interfere with the supply of energy by the licensee, and in such manner as the Electric Inspector may think fit, but, except under the provisions of an order made in each case in that behalf by the Provincial Government, the Electric Inspector shall not be entitled to have access to, or interfere with, the works of the licensee at any points other than those at which the licensee himself has access to the same.

Provided that the licensee shall not be held responsible for any interruption or irregularity in the supply of energy which may be occasioned by, or required by the Electric Inspector for the purpose of, any such testing as aforesaid.

Provided, also, that the testing shall not be made in regard to any particular portion of the works oftener than once in any three months unless in pursuance of an order made in each case in that behalf by the Provincial Government.

Plans

XVI (1) The licensee shall, after commencing to supply energy forthwith cause a plan to be made of the area of supply, and shall cause to be marked thereon the alignment [and, in the case of underground works, the approximate depth] below the surface of all his then existing electric supply lines, street distributing boxes and other works and shall once in every year cause that plan to be duly corrected so as to

[(2) Every such plan shall be drawn to such scale as the Provincial Government may require provided that no scale shall be required unless maps of the locality on that scale are for the time being available to the public]

[(3) Every such section shall be drawn to horizontal and vertical scales which shall be such as the Provincial Government may require]

(4) Every plan and section so made or corrected or a copy thereof marked with the date when it was so made or corrected shall be kept by the licensee at his principal office or place of business within the area of supply and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of all applicants and copies thereof shall be supplied on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by rules under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

(5) The licensee shall if required by an Electric Inspector and where the licensee is not a local authority by the local authority (if any) concerned supply free of charge to such Electric Inspector or local authority a copy of every such plan or section duly corrected so as to agree with the original kept at the principal office or place of business of the licensee.

Additional notice of certain works

XVII On the day next preceding the commencement of any such works as are referred to in section 13 of the Indian Electricity Act 1910 the licensee shall, in addition to any other notices which he may be required to give serve upon the Electric Inspector or such officer as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf for the area of supply a notice in writing stating that he is about to commence the works and the nature and position of the same.

THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT (XXIV OF 1938)

[24th September, 1938]

An Act to declare that certain defences shall not be raised in suits for damages in British India in respect of injuries sustained by workmen

WHEREAS it is expedient to declare that certain defences shall not be raised in suits for damages in British India in respect of injuries sustained by workmen It is hereby enacted as follows —

Short title and extent 1 (1) This Act may be called THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT 1938

(2) It extends to the whole of British India

Definitions 2 In this Act unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context —

(a) "workman" means any person who has entered into, or works under a contract of service or apprenticeship with an employer whether by way of manual labour clerical work or otherwise and whether the contract is expressed or implied oral or in writing and

(b) "employer" includes any body of persons whether incorporated or not, and any managing agent of an employer, and the legal representatives of a deceased employer and where the services of a workman are temporarily lent or let on hire to another person by the person with whom the workman has entered into a contract of service or apprenticeship, means such other person while the workman is working for him

Defence of common employment barred in certain cases 3 Where a personal injury is caused to a workman—

(a) by reason of the omission of the employer to maintain in good and safe condition any way, works, machinery or plant connected with or used in his trade or business or by reason of any like omission on the part of any person in the service of the employer who has been entrusted by the employer with the duty of seeing that such way, works, machinery or plant are in good and safe condition, or

(b) by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has any superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence, or

(c) by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders or directions the workman at the time of the injury was bound to conform and did conform where the injury resulted from his having so conformed or

(d) by reason of any act or omission of any person in the service of the employer done or made in obedience to any rule or bye law of the employer (not being a rule or bye law which is required by or under any law for the time being in force to be approved by any authority and which has been so approved) or in obedience to particular instructions given by any person to whom the employer has delegated authority in that behalf or in the normal performance of his duties

a suit for damages in respect of the injury instituted by the workman or by any person entitled in case of his death shall not fail by reason only of the fact that the workman was at the time of the injury a workman of or in the service of or engaged in the work of the employer

4 In any such suit for damages the workman shall not be deemed to have undertaken any risk attaching to the employment unless the employer proves that the risk was fully explained to and understood by the workman and that the workman voluntarily undertook the same

Risk not to be deemed to have been assumed without full knowledge

5 Nothing in this Act shall affect the validity of any decree or order of a Civil Court passed before the commencement of this Act in any such suit for damages

THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (I OF 1872)

Preamble

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate, define and amend the law of evidence; It is hereby enacted as follows —

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1 (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872

NOTES

Sec 1—Rules in this Act are rules of logic. 1914 M.W.N. 931 Act is not exhaustive. 39 C 164=15 C.W.N. 1053=14 C.L.J. 375, 14 C 721 Act not exhaustive of the rules of evidence and the Courts can invoke the aid of the principles of jurisprudence of English law as supplementing and explaining the rules given in the Act. 39 M. 449=28 M.L.J. 329 In questions relating to matters expressly provided for in the Evidence Act, it must not be dealt with as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England. The Evidence Act is, as it was intended to be, a complete Code of the law of evidence in British Burma. 1938 R.L.R. 190=175 I.C. 465=1938 R. 177 (F.B.) See also 65 C.L.J. 520=41 C.W.N. 1103. The provisions of the Act are independent of the rules of procedure contained in the Criminal Procedure Code and must have full scope, unless clearly repealed or altered by another statute. 7 L. 84=91 I.C. 901=1926 L. 88. The records of the German Court authenticated in the manner prescribed by secs 14 and 15 of the English Extradition Act are admissible in evidence. 39 C 164=15 C.W.N. 1053=12 I.C. 273 Evidence properly admitted for one purpose must be admissible for all purposes in the cause. 37 B. 122=40 I.A. 1=24 M.L.J. 176=17 C.W.N. 388 (P.C.) (On appeal from 12 Bom L.R. 316=5 I.C. 457) See also 11 Bom L.R. 926=4 I.C. 652. There is no ground why a party having once denied cannot on a reconsideration subsequently admit the genuineness of a document and if this is so a Court could not be precluded from taking such document into consideration. 1941 O. 189=1940 O.W.N. 1344 No Court has a right to look at any document or any papers other than those on the record unless the Judge gives to the parties to the suit an opportunity of being heard and making their submission with regard to what is contained in documents outside the record to which the Judge desires to refer. 1923 C. 194 The mere summoning of a record does not constitute it a part of the evidence in the case in which it is summoned. The contents in those documents, if sought to be relied upon must be formally proved. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 153=1940 R.D. 242 A Court is not bound to treat the registration endorsement as conclusive proof of the fact of execution, but it can treat it as sufficient proof thereof. 1940 N.L.J. 437=1940 Nag. 382 Statements made at the local inspection are inadmissible and a judge should not bring such statements into the case as evidence. No statement by any person is evidence unless given on oath in the witness box. 1935 N. 69 Conjecture should not be the basis of a judgment. 1924 N. 363 Statements which are not admissible in evidence cannot be rendered admissible by consent of parties. 1923 L. 630 See also 1924 P. 284 36 I.C. 906 Omission to object to the reception of evidence does not make irrelevant evidence relevant and the objection can be taken on second appeal. 44 B. 192=55 I.C. 316=22 Bom L.R. 57 See also 47 M.L.J. 640, 1924 N. 358 79 I.C. 1029=1924 A. 918 40 I.C. 553 135 I.C. 572=1931 M. 601 Where a piece of evidence not proved in the proper manner has been admitted without objections the opposite party cannot challenge it at a later stage. But the principle on which unobjected evidence is admitted, does not apply where evidence has been received without objection in direct contravention of an imperative provision of law. 27 C.W.N. 134=1922 C. 160 See also 1939 A. 61=1939 A.L.J. 128 There can be no conditional admissibility of a document. There cannot be an order that while a document is inadmissible as a lease, it is admissible as a receipt. If it is held to be not a lease, it can be admitted unconditionally. But if it is held to be a lease it cannot be admitted as a receipt. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 979=1941 R.D. 932 An objection as to the mode of proof not taken in the Courts below cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal. 64 I.C. 266=36 C.L.J. 186 An erroneous omission to object to evidence irrelevant and consequently inadmissible under any circumstances, does not make it admissible. But the Court will not entertain for first time in appeal an objection that a document not admissible has been improperly admitted in evidence. 45 C. 159=21 C.W.N. 996 A Court refusing to admit a piece of evidence in the first instance has no jurisdiction to take the same into consideration at a subsequent stage, unless some good explanation or reason is shown by the party producing the same. Once a document is admitted at a late stage by a dodge or trick, there is an end of the matter. 182 I.C. 407=1939 Pat. 530 Documentary evidence relevant to the case and admitted without objection in the first Court cannot be objected to in appeal on the ground that it is not admissible for the purposes for which it has been used. 40 I.C. 553, 32 P.L.R. 470=

134 IC 770. See also 167 IC 190=ILR (1937) N 68=1937 N 13 Evidence which is relevant under any circumstances whatsoever must be distinguished from evidence which is admissible if certain conditions were fulfilled 9 IC 211=13 CLJ 18 In the latter case objection should be taken at the earliest possible stage and if such objection is not taken the appellate Court will not entertain it 9 IC 211=13 CLJ 18, An objection relating to the mode of proof of a document must be raised when the document is sought to be put in evidence and if raised at a later stage, it does not deserve serious consideration 63 C 1053=1936 C 316 There is a distinction between the relevancy and admissibility of a document Evidence which is not relevant under provisions of the Act cannot be made relevant because it is let without objection If a document is inadmissible on account of a defect which could be cured by the person relying on it if an objection had been taken at the proper time, no objection as to its admissibility can be allowed at a later stage But the omission to object to the admission of irrelevant evidence cannot possibly make it relevant 1936 L 114 It is too late in appeal to object to a document which had been admitted without objection in the first Court 3 L 59=1922 L 281. When at a trial, admissibility of evidence is objected to, it is the duty of the trial Judge to decide at once whether it is admissible If he holds it inadmissible the document should not find a place on the record and assessors or jurors should be warned not to rely on it 50 IC 481=98 P L R 1918 Where the Court passed an interlocutory order that the evidence was admissible such an order can legally be varied by the Court, though in practice it is not often done Court therefore can hold the evidence as inadmissible which was formerly held admissible 39 P L R 262=1937 L 176 It is wrong for a Civil Court to rely too much on decisions in criminal cases when deciding questions of title in civil suits 21 P L T 873 A party who did not object to the admissibility of secondary evidence of a registered will even in his appeal memo cannot be allowed to urge it 31 IC 600 When a document is tendered in evidence and no objection whatever is taken to it either as to its being secondary evidence or as to its being tendered in circumstances that would justify its being received as secondary evidence, it is too late in appeal to take the point that it should not have been received ILR (1937) N 68=1937 N 13 The relevant point of time in the proceedings at which the condition of admissibility must be fulfilled is the time when it has to be admitted by the Court before which the evidence is produced and relied on and not the moment when the case is decided 190 IC 849=1940 NLJ 459=1940 Nag 340 No statement of counsel concerning relevant facts in the case can be accepted otherwise than in the witness-box 1935 N 69=17 NLJ 189 Parties, if so minded, may ordinarily agree that evidence shall be taken in a particular way That is not a matter which can be said to affect the jurisdiction of the Court It is merely that parties allow certain materials to be used as evidence which apart from their consent cannot be so used 43 M L J 448=1922 M 394 [43 M 609, 38 M 160, Foll] If a party to a suit consents to the recitals in prior judgment being taken as proof of a will, he cannot object in appeal (Ibid) The omission by a party to prevent irrelevant evidence from being admitted will not in the absence of a deliberate consent to waive objections, cure the defect 36 IC 906 When the lower Court has given a finding that the document is legally proved, the appellate Court should sparingly interfere with the findings when no objection was taken at the hearing 32 IC 760, 10 OWN 173=1933 O 128 It does not follow that a document is invalid, merely because it may not be admissible in evidence 1923 N 109 Where a document is admitted without proof but without objection in the trial Court, no objection to its admissibility on the ground of want of formal proof can be taken in appeal 44 IC 422=3 PLJ 306 If a document is once admitted in the lower Court without objection, no party can take objection to its being referred to by the Court 36 IC 96=10 SLR 4 Where the only reason given for admitting a document in appeal is that it is a public document but it relates to facts which the defendant is entitled to meet, the admission is illegal 150 IC 306=1934 N 124 Legal practitioners should confine themselves to such documents as were produced by them and exhibited in the case If the record of another case happens to be in Court for a specific purpose it cannot be treated as evidence in the case for any purpose other than the one for which it was summoned 131 IC 513=1931 A 600 It is not safe to assume that a case must be false if some of the evidence in support of it appears to be ambiguous or is clearly untrue There is on some occasions a tendency amongst litigants to back up a good case by false or exaggerated evidence 24 C WN 626 (PC) As to admissibility of notes of evidence of a speech in a trial for sedition, see 1940 OWN 965 The Court is not entitled to attribute to the witnesses conspiracy and perjury, unless the story told by them, coupled with the surrounding circumstances is of itself so unnatural and improbable that only one conclusion, viz, conspiracy and perjury, is reasonably possible 1934 PC 12=66 M L J 151 (PC) An appellate tribunal may bring its knowledge of life and business to bear even in cases where in the lower Court contemporary communications and course of business are used, and it can say that evidence given about them at the trial cannot be true 34 IC 273 (PC) In a matter of appreciation of evidence and the credibility of witness the opinion of the trial judge should not be lightly disturbed on appeal 39 B 386=42 IC 119=28 M L J 593 (PC) Alw 43 C 707=31 M L J 1=43 IA 73 (PC), 28 CLJ 306=48 IC 561, 39 A 426, 39 IC 666, 27 IC 276=20 CLJ 501 When dealing with a version spread over several consecutive stages, it is inevitable that careful regard should be had to them all and their truth or falsehood tested on a review of the entire

It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court, including Courts-martial [other, than Courts-martial convened under the Army Act], [the Naval Discipline Act or that Act as modified by the Indian Navy (Discipline) Act, 1934], [or the Air Force Act] but not to affidavits⁴ presented to any Court or officer, nor to proceedings before an arbitrator,

Commencement of Act

And it shall come into force on the first day of September, 1872

An approximate estimate of the age of a party made by the third parties who might not have had any special means of knowledge is not of much value 56 A 766=1934 A 406 (F B). In criminal proceedings the statement of a witness's age forms no part of his deposition and is not usually the statement of the witness himself, but an estimate of the Court 1933 P 627. It is a well known fact that when the age is not in issue, villagers are particularly careless in stating their age. As such the statement of age cannot be of such positive character in determining a particular issue long after the date, when the determination of age was not one under consideration when the statement was made 1939 A WR (BR) 44=1939 RD 164. In the case of an unsworn testimony of a young child that evidence is admissible Sec 13 of the Oaths Act expressly provides for cases in which the provisions of secs 5 and 6 of that Act have not been carried out 39 Cr L J 585=1938 MWN 90=1938 M 490=(1938) 1 M L J 289. Children are a most untrustworthy class of witness, for when of a tender age, they often mistake dreams for reality repeat glibly as of their own knowledge what they have heard from others and are greatly influenced by fear of punishment, by hope of reward and by desire of notoriety 34 P L R 536=1933 L 667. The proper tests to be applied with reference to the evidence of a child witness are how consistent the story is with itself how it stands the test of cross examination and how far it fits, in with the rest of the evidence and the circumstances of the case 1941 O W N 1246. It is not likely for a boy of about ten years to distinguish between things heard by him and those which he has seen, and when there is a clear indication of inconsistent statements in his evidence, not much importance can be attached to it. It is not illegal to examine a witness of tender years, but it is important that the Judge should, as a precaution, ascertain in the first instance by means of a few simple questions whether the intelligence of the child is such that it is capable of giving credible evidence, it is also desirable that the record of evidence should show that such a test has been in fact made. When it does not appear that any such attempt was made to test the capacity of the child witness to give his testimony, it is not safe to rely on the evidence of such a witness 15 P L T 586=1934 P 651. It is not necessary to tender the evidence taken on commission formally at a trial to make it evidence in the case (36 C 566, Ref) 37 C W N 666=1933 C 412. Where an arbitrator has examined witnesses and recorded evidence with due formality, it is open to the parties by consent to treat such statements as evidence and proceed with the case before the Court from the stage it has reached before the arbitrator. The consent in such a case relates in the manner in which the evidence has to be proved and not to the relevancy of the evidence itself 1934 M 610=67 M L J 358. It is unsafe to rely completely on the evidence of trackers as to the correspondence of trackers 42 I C 129=18 Cr L J 897. Sometimes the identification of the particular accused by witnesses to whom they are strangers is useful 17 Cr L J 156=33 I C 636. Where a witness was examined before the committing Magistrate and was simply tendered for cross examination in the Sessions Court and the evidence before the committing Magistrate was marked as exhibit in the Sessions Court, such procedure is illegal 30 I C 439=1915 M W N 544. But see also 39 Mys H C R 581=12 Mys L J 1. Statements of accused in police custody are notoriously untrustworthy 20 I C 721=1912 M W N 825. In criminal cases, it is the weight of the evidence and not the number of the witnesses, which the Court has and ought to consider 63 I C 407=24 O C 225. When in murder case the only eye-witness to the occurrence has been disbelieved on several points, it is not safe to base a conviction on the evidence of such witness, especially when no motive for the murder has been made out 11 O W N 969=1934 O 373. Conviction should be resorted to only after the reasonable exclusion of every conceivable hypothesis of innocence 9 I C 400=12 Cr L J 690. Evidence cannot be admitted on the intention of parties when that intention is clearly expressed in the deed 1928 C 825.

EXAMINATION OF PARTY—DEFENDANT AS PLAINTIFF'S WITNESS—Where the plaintiff refrained from giving evidence on his own behalf and adopted instead the tactics of calling the defendant as a witness for the plaintiff, with the usual result that important features of his case were denied by his own witness, their Lordships condemned this practice and approved of the course taken by the High Court in treating the plaintiff as a person who put the defendant forward as a witness of truth 172 I C 633=47 L W 124=1938 P C 59 (P C). If a party appears as a witness on behalf of the opposing party the Court should before proceeding to record his statement question him or his counsel as to whether he does not propose to appear as his own witness. If that party then declares that he does not propose to appear as his own witness the Court should point out to the party producing him that ordinarily speaking the matter should be left as it is and the Court be left to draw any adverse inference which may justifiably be drawn from the refusal of the party to appear in the witness box and subject himself to cross-examination. If the party, however, insists on examining the opposite party as his own witness the Court should be careful not to allow him to cross-examine his own witness because unless the evidence is declared hostile, the party producing the witness has no right to cross-examine his own witness 35 P L R 28=1934 L 126. The fact that a witness was cited on behalf of the defendants and his evidence went entirely to support the plaintiff's case does not entitle a Court to reject his evidence as that of a witness who had been "won over" by the plaintiff 147 I C 591=1934 A 226.

A fact is said to be proved when, after considering the matters before it, " Proved " the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists

A fact is said to be disproved when, after considering the matters before " Disproved " it, the Court either believes that it does not exist, or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

" Not proved " A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor disproved.

4 Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may presume a fact,
" May presume " it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, or may call for proof of it ;

" Shall presume " Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact, it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved ;

(d) The question is, whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact

(a) The question is whether A robbed B. The facts that, shortly before the robbery, B went to a fair with money in his possession, and that he showed it or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons are relevant

(b) The question is, whether A murdered B. Marks on the ground, produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts

(c) The question is whether A poisoned B. The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison, and habits of B, known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison, are relevant facts

they should not amount to a mere narrative of a past occurrence. They are admitted when they appear to have been made under the immediate influence of some principal transaction relevant to the issue and are so connected with it as to characterize or explain it. The bare statement of a complainant made sometime after the occurrence is not admissible in evidence. 1941 O.W.N. 1290. Statement made to Police—Admissibility of. See 50 I.C. 487=17 A.L.J. 760. Evidence of woman raped—Res gestae. See 4 M.L.J. 491=1921 Lah. 258, note under sec. 8. Where a woman raped made a statement to her relative shortly after and committed suicide about 3 days after the occurrence, such statement is not admissible under sec. 6. 1930 M.W.N. 702. In a case of rape, a statement made by the complainant immediately after the occurrence to another woman is admissible, not as evidence of the truth of the charge alleged but as corroborating the credibility of the complainant and of the evidence of the consistency of her conduct. 43 I.C. 443=19 Cr. L.J. 155 (F.B.). See also 1930 C. 132=124 I.C. 175 (statement by the girl to the mother that she was bitten by a leech to be used only to contradict the statement made by the girl). Unless a statement by the girl to her father and the offence under sec. 376, I.P. Code, form res gestae such statement is not of much value. 1930 L. 337=127 I.C. 862. Hearsay evidence—C.C.M.—302

Secs. 7 and 45—Evidence that there were foot prints at or near a scene of offence or that the foot prints came from a particular place or led to a particular place, is relevant evidence under S. 7 and statements as to these facts made by person skilled in identifying foot prints are not excluded by S. 45. The words 'science' or 'art' in S. 45 are to be construed widely. The amendment relating to finger impressions is made to meet particular decisions which had been given by the Courts. The amendment does not operate to limit in any way the wide meanings which should be given to the expressions 'science' or 'art'. Whether a particular tracker called upon to assist, is or is not an expert in this art or science, is of course a matter to be decided by the Judge or Magistrate, before reliance can be placed upon his evidence. But if it is established to the satisfaction of the Court that the tracker is a person capable of distinguishing and identifying foot prints, there is no reason why his evidence should not be given such consideration as it may deserve. 1942 Sind. 11.

MOTIVE. Per Crump, J—A motive is that which moves a man to do a particular act. Whether the belief which produces the state of mind is true or false the motive remains the same and the truth or falsity of the belief is not really in question. 62 I C 545—22 Bom L R 1274. EVIDENCE OF CONDUCT.—As to evidence of conduct and surrounding circumstances see 22 C 406 24 W R 176 7 A 385 25 S L R 55—1927 Sind 28 1937 Sind 93 35 C W N 705=59 C 40 161 I C 885—1926 Pesh 72. Conduct may in certain circumstances include statements as well as acts but in doing so it still retains the difference between an act and a statement. A statement must consist of words whether they be spoken or written, or spelled out as would be done by a mute person on his fingers and words would not always be statements. Acts however exclude words and cannot be translated into words. So where an accused takes certain articles belonging to the deceased from various places and hands them over to the police he cannot be said to be making a statement much less making a statement amounting to a confession. To such case sec 8 applies. I L R (1941) All 280—1941 All 145=1941 A L J 86 See also 1941 O W N 722

Rape—No direct evidence—Child on whom rape committed refused to make any statement—Prosecution tried to put statement of mother as regards answers given by child in reply to questions put to her—Statements held not admissible. 1030 L 84=120 I C 539. Sec 8 does not render a statement by a woman raped admissible in evidence when there is nothing to corroborate or confirm the same. 131 I C 466=1041 M 233 (2). (a) A is tried for the murder of B

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant

(b) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money B denies the making of the bond

The fact that at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant

(c) A is tried for the murder of B by poison

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B is relevant

(d) The question is whether a certain document is the will of A

The facts, that not long before the date of the alleged will A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared of which he did not approve, are relevant

(e) A is accused of a crime

The facts that, either before or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant

(f) The question is whether A robbed B

The facts that, after B was robbed C said in A's presence—“The police are coming to look for the man who robbed B” and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant

SECS 8 AND 32. A statement of a person believed but not proved to be dead is no doubt not admissible under sec. 32 of the Evidence Act, but the document however is admissible under sec. 8 to a limited extent, to show the conduct of the party. It however is not a direct proof of the facts contained in it. 40 P.L.R. J. and K. 1. The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which the complaint was made, are relevant

The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant—

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that he said he had been robbed without making any complaint, is not relevant, as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration under section 32, clause (1), or as corroborative evidence under section 157

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent

(d) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A—"I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer" This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct, which is relevant as a fact in issue

NOTES

Sec 9 SCOPE OF SECS 9 AND 11.—See also notes under secs 14 and 15, infra. SECS 9 and 11 read along with sec. 21 of the Evidence Act amply justify a Court in admitting into evidence all previous statements made by the accused bearing on the question of his guilt whether made to a police officer or to officer or to a third party if the statement is relevant to the fact in the issue. These sections are not controlled by the Criminal Procedure Code 73 I.C. 963=6 P.L.T. 381. If after the commission of a crime a person whose name is mentioned as a participator in the crime absconds, his conduct implies that he is concerned in the crime. Anything therefore which tends to explain his conduct and furnishes motive other than a guilty conscience is relevant under sec 9 62 I.C. 545=22 Bom L.R. 1274. (f) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob. The cries of the mob are relevant as explanatory of the nature of the transaction.

10 Where there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence or an actionable wrong, anything said, done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention, after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is a relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring, as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.

NOTES

Sec 10 SCOPE OF ENGLISH AND INDIAN LAW.—Sec 10 is wider than the English Law. As soon as it is shown with regard to an individual conspirator that he was in privy with the combination and its objects and adopted the acts already performed he as a conspirator becomes bound by the antecedent and consequent acts of his fellow-conspirator. 17 P.R. (Cr) 1915=28 I.C. 738. See also 37 C. 467=14 C.W.N. 1114=7 I.C. 359. Sec 10 of the Evidence Act is quite comprehensive. Its provisions are much wider and the section renders admissible in cases of conspiracy such evidence which is not ordinarily admissible under the English or Indian law. The first thing for the prosecution in a case of conspiracy is to give satisfactory evidence to show a common purpose. The existence of the assent of minds which is involved in a conspiracy may be and from the secrecy of the crime, usually must be inferred from the proof of facts and circumstances which taken together apparently indicate that they are merely part of some complete whole. 1939 A.L.J. 783=1939 All 567. There is a considerable inconsistency between sec 10 and the illustration thereto. 37 C. 467=14 C.W.N. 1114. It is not necessary to establish by direct evidence that the accused persons did enter into an agreement to commit an offence to attract the operation of sec 10 against the accused. 37 C. 467. See also I.L.R. (1936) N. 152=1936 N. 97. The object of sec 10 is merely to ensure that one person shall not be made responsible for the acts or deeds of another until some bond in the nature of agency has been established between them and the acts words or writing of another which it is proposed to attribute vicariously to the person charged must be in furtherance of the common design and after such design was entertained. 11 P.L.T. 45=1929 P. 145 (F.B.). See also 1930 M.W.N. 1264. Sec. 10 means this: if two persons conspire together to commit an offence each is regarded as being the agent of the other and just as the principal is liable for the acts of the agent so each conspirator is liable for what is done by his fellow conspirator in furtherance of the common intention which they had both entertained. First, you must find that there was a conspiracy, and secondly, that the person to whom the doctrine is to apply should have joined the conspiracy before they can be made liable for anything said or done by others. 35 Bom.L.R. 515. The terms of sec. 10 are very wide and apply to acts done in connection with the conspiracy, and under the section an act done by third persons may in certain circumstances be treated actually as evidence of the existence of the conspiracy, as for instance when an act is done or something is said in the presence of the persons implicated. But mere statements of third parties made in the absence of the persons implicated form a class by themselves, of no probative value whatever standing alone. The section does not permit of the attaching of weight as real evidence to mere statements of this kind made in the absence of the accused persons and independent evidence required as corroboration of such statements must be something very much more than the evidence which may ordinarily be regarded as corroborating the evidence of an accomplice. It may be direct or circumstantial evidence. But it must be evidence which standing alone would be properly treated as evidence for a jury of a proved intention so that there would be evidence apart from the statements of the alleged fellow conspirators incriminating the persons charged. The evidence must be proof of intention and not merely proof of a possible motive for the intention. 178 I.C. 324=1938 P.W.N. 403=1938 P. 497. The words of sec. 10 are not capable of being widely construed so as to include a statement made by one conspirator in the absence of the other with reference to past acts done in the actual course of carrying out the conspiracy, after it has been completed. The words Common intention signify a common intention existing at the time when the thing was said done or written by one of them. Things said, done or written while the conspiracy was on foot, are relevant as evidence of the common intention once reasonable ground has been shown to believe in its existence. But it would be a very different matter to hold that any narrative or statement or confession made to a third party after the common intention or conspiracy was no longer operating and had ceased to exist is admissible against the other party. There is then no common intention of the conspirators to which the statement can have reference. Such statement is therefore inadmissible as evidence against co-conspirator. 190 I.C. 233=52 L.W. 662=1940 P.C. 176= (1940) 2 M.L.J. 811 (P.C.). See also 1941 O.W.N. 133, 1943 Oudh. 130. When sec. 10 refers to the common intention of the conspirators it refers to the common intention in the future, not to common intention in the past. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 449=40 Cr.L.J. 832=1939 Sind. The fact that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G at Kabul the money which C had collected at Calcutta and the contents of a letter written by H giving an account of the conspiracy, are each relevant, both to prove the existence of the conspiracy and to prove A's complicity, in it, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it of a co-accused Nor can it be admitted under sec 10, because sec 10 applies to acts done in furtherance of a conspiracy or which bear some relation to the conspiracy and does not apply to a confession made after the conspiracy, and the acts done in pursuance thereof were at an end. Sec 10 cannot be extended to cover the case of a confession of a person who was co-accused or who might have been a co-accused on the charge of conspiracy and the offences which were its purpose or committed in pursuance of it. 175 I C 99=39 Cr L J 545=1938 Sind 94. Sec 10 does not apply to incriminating statements made by accused to the police in the course of the investigation, whether they incriminate themselves or others unless the special provisions of sec 27 let in part of a confession to a police officer. A confession by a conspirator made to a Magistrate in Court implicating other conspirators is admissible in evidence under sec 30, but statements made by a conspirator to the police are not admissible in evidence if they are incriminating. For sec 10, Evidence Act, is not intended to remove those restrictions which the Evidence Act and the Criminal Procedure Code place upon the admissibility of statements made to the police. Sec 10 does not avoid in appropriate cases the operation of either sec 25 Evidence Act, or sec 162, Cr P Code. Secs 14 and 15 RELATION OF SECS 14 AND 15—OPINIONS OF JUDGES. Evidence of the opinions of the other judges on other documents written or attested by the accused in proceedings to which he is not a party is not admissible to prove his intention or knowledge in his suit for giving false evidence in respect of an alleged forged document. 38 IC 723 = 13 N L R 35. See 15 must be read as subject to sec. 34 so far as evidence of knowledge and intention is concerned. (Ibid) See also 1928 Lah 382. It is settled law that under neither of secs 14 and 15 can the evidence of facts similar to but not part of the same transaction as the main fact be received for the purpose of proving the occurrence of the main fact, which must be established by evidence directly bearing on it. But when the existence of that fact has been so established and a question arises as to the state of mind of the person who did it or whether the Act in question was done accidentally or with a particular knowledge or intention evidence of similar acts may under certain conditions be admitted. Sec 14 is wholly inapplicable to a case where the state of mind or feeling of the accused is not a fact in issue or a relevant fact. 1928 L 382 = 112 IC 850

EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS CRIME—ADMISSIBILITY—When a person is charged with an offence, evidence of his participation in an independent crime cannot be received as substantive evidence of the offence on trial but evidence may be given to prove the elements mentioned in sec. 14 such as intention etc. 22 IC 187 = 18 G L J 578. against a person in order to prevent him from delivering speeches likely to create communal tension, in the inquiry, speeches delivered by the same person on prior occasions are admissible in evidence under sec. 14 of the Evidence Act. PREVIOUS DACOTIES—In a charge of dacoity, evidence of other dacoities committed by the accused is admissible either under section 14 or 15. 1912 MWN 49=13 IC 781. Where a man has been tried and acquitted on a charge of being in dishonest possession of property stolen in a dacoity knowing or having reason to believe that the property was stolen in a dacoity, it is open to the Crown to prove that he actually took part in the dacoity, for the latter was not the offence of which he was acquitted. Even if he was acquitted on a charge of dacoity, it is open to the Crown to prove that the day before the dacoity he was seen in the neighbourhood of dacoity. 7 OWN 862=128 IC 739=1930 O 455. In a case where the offence for which the accused are being tried is the particular one of belonging to a gang of dacoits, simple theft or bad livelihood, in which the order for giving security is based on evidence merely that the accused habitually commits thefts (as opposed to dacoity and possibly robbery) is not evidence indicating an intention to commit the particular crime of which the accused is charged. 46 B. 95B=25 Bom L.R. 214, 32 Bom.L.R. 324=1930 B 157.

COUNTERFEIT COINS AND INSTRUMENTS—In the trial of a person for being in possession of counterfeit coins and instruments and materials for counterfeiting in his house in the district where he is tried, evidence of such possession in his house in another district is admissible. 61 IC 647=22 Cr LJ 407.

POSSESSION OF STOLEN CATTLE—In Sind possession of stolen cattle three or four months after theft is sufficient to raise presumption of guilt under this section, but the accused may set up title by lawful origin to rebut the presumption. 38 IC 271=10 SLR 167. The accused was charged under sec. 420, I P Code, for having borrowed money on mortgage, representing himself to be major, though he was minor, held, that the evidence of transactions which took place on the occasion of the loan was relevant to show the intention or knowledge or otherwise of the accused. OFFENCE UNDER SEC 124 A I P CODE—SPEECHES—Previous speeches forming part of a series of speeches or lectures delivered, within a short period of time are admissible. Period of six months not long. 1930 L 867. Other newspaper articles written by the accused at the same time are admissible. 8 Mys LJ 49. A writing made some time after the committing of an offence under sec. 124, I P. Code, is admissible in evidence under sec. 14 of the Evidence Act. But the writing should be within a reasonable time of the particular occurrence. 30 Bom LR 315=1928 B 78. A Court has no concern with the justice or otherwise of the claims of the accused or with the rectitude of his political views, but the Court may take cognizance of the fact that he does hold certain views for as a guide to his conduct and intentions these views are most relevant consideration. 1933 Cr C 833=1933 A. 498.

(e) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B

The fact that previous publications by A respecting B, showing ill will on the part of A towards B is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question

The fact that there was no previous quarrel, between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B

(f) A is sued by B for fraudulently representing to B that C was solvent, whereby B, being induced to trust C, who was insolvent, suffered loss

The fact that at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent by his neighbours and by persons dealing with him, is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good faith

(g) A is sued by B for the price of work done by B, upon a house of which A is owner, by the order of C, a contractor

A's defence is that B's contract was with C

The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's own account, and not as agent for A

(h) A is accused of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he believed in good faith and that the real owner could not be found

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was, is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found

The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith

(i) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him In order to show A's intent the fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved

(j) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved, as showing the intention of the letters

(k) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife

Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty are relevant facts

(l) The question is, whether A's death was caused by poison

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms are relevant facts

(m) The question is, what was the state of A's health at the time an assurance on his life was effected

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question are relevant facts

(n) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use, whereby A was injured

The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage is relevant

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he let to hire is irrelevant

(o) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead

The fact that A on other occasions shot at B is relevant as showing his intention to shoot B

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant

(p) A is tried for a crime

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime is relevant

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class is irrelevant

(a) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured. The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred and after each of which fires A received payment from a different insurance office, are relevant as tending to show that the fires were not accidental.

(b) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive.

The question is whether this false entry was accidental or intentional.

The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false and that the false entry is in each case in favour of A, are relevant.

(c) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfeit rupee.

The question is whether the delivery of the rupee was accidental.

The facts that soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E are relevant as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental.

ADMISSION IN FIRST INFORMATION REPORT IS valuable corroborative evidence it cannot support a conviction when the maker of the report himself is an accused person and cannot therefore be examined as a witness 63 IC 822-22 Cr L.J. 694 (L.) But where such a report contains an admission not amounting to a confession the admission is admissible in evidence against the accused 63 IC 822

SECS 17 AND 31 ADMISSIONS-EVIDENTIARY VALUE-Where a person who is alleged to have made an admission regarding his status in an agreement with the Government files a suit for a declaration as to his status as against others, the Government are neither a necessary nor a proper party to this question which is independent of the validity or invalidity of the agreement As between the parties to the suit, it will be necessary to consider whether the statement in the agreement amounts to the admission claimed and if so to consider its evidential value along with the other evidence, as sec. 31, Evidence Act, expressly provides that admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted Even if it amounts to a clear admission, it will not act as a bar to the suit 63 I.A. 248-60 B 631-71 M.L.J. 691 (P.C.)

See 18 to 21.-It cannot be said that Ss 18 to 21 of the Act do not apply to admissions in criminal cases The illustrations given apply to criminal cases, and there is nothing in the sections to suggest that they apply to civil cases and civil cases only Incriminating statements made by an accused under S. 164, Cr P Code, though not admissible as confessions in evidence will not necessarily be excluded They may be admitted as admissions against interest under Ss 18 to 21 of the Evidence Act The fact that the statement is not a full confession but is only a partial confession or something less than a confession or is of a self-exculpatory nature cannot be made a ground for excluding it either from evidence or from consideration It is true that extra judicial confessions are to be regarded with caution but it does not follow that they are always to be rejected They may be made in such circumstances as to have

Sec 19—On the section see 5 M 239 25 M L.J. 151 25 M.L.J. 329=20 I.C. 792 62 I.C. 417 Secs. 19 and 20 are exceptions to the general rule in sec 18

Sec 20—See also notes under sec. 18 supra
 Sec. 20 contemplates the existences of three parties first the party who refers secondly the party who is referred and thirdly the party to whom the reference is made The principle is that when one party refers another second party to a third party for information the first party is presumed to undertake to adopt as his own the information furnished by the third party. These conditions cannot be said to be fulfilled where a master calls for a report from a servant, regarding the conduct of another servant who is dismissed for misconduct, where there is nothing to indicate that in doing so the master intends to regard the servant's report as conclusive on the matter See 20 cannot apply to such a case and the report of the servant cannot become admissible as against the master in a suit for damages for wrongful dismissal even if such report corroborates the version of the dismissed servant (plaintiff) 40 C.W.N. 865 Unless an express reference has been made to a witness on a certain question his statement will not constitute an admission as regards that question L.R. 2 A. 204 Admission by person named by the parties. 80 I.C. 16=46 A. 710 See also 42 M 625 21 A.L.J. 209=71 I.C. 761 Agreement to be bound by the statement of a referee is an admission. 103 I.C. 34=1927 A. 659 See also 1939 A.W.R. 'ADMISSION AND 'CONFESSION'—DISTINCTION.—Admission is usually applied to a civil transaction, and to those matters in criminal cases which do not involve a criminal intent while the term confession is usually used to Criminal Courts as denoting an acknowledgment of guilt. Admission in a civil suit that a document is genuine cannot in the forgery case be regarded as confession at all 37 C. 467, 1929 C. 539. Under sec. 21 a confession being a species of admission would be relevant and can be proved against the accused unless it can be shown that there is some provision of law which excludes the proof of such a confession 1934 A.L.J. 178, 1934 A. 351—56 A. 720, 1939 Mar L.R. 244 (Civ), 170 I.C. 201—1937 C. 433, 1939 A.L.J. 107 (Admission of guilt in an application to Magistrate is admissible under sec. 21. The admission of one defendant contained in deposition in an earlier suit is not admissible in a subsequent suit against persons who were his co-defendants in the earlier suit. 20 Pat. 825.

ORAL CONFESSION.—An oral confession by an accused to a Magistrate is, as an admission by him, a relevant fact and may be proved at his trial under this section by the evidence of the Magistrate 1929 L. 794.

ADMISSION BY WITNESS.—Where in cross-examination a witness admits that a statement previously made by him is false he ought to be asked in re-examination why he made a statement which was false. The mere fact that the witness acknowledges the previous statement to be false is no justification for rejecting such previous statement, if on other grounds the Court is able to reach the conclusion that the statement is in substance true 51 I.C. 449—20 Cr.L.J. 465. The deposition of an insolvent reduced to writing is admissible as evidence against him to a criminal charge 54 I.C. 478—46 C. 996 [(1896) 2 Q.B. 260, 19 Ch.D. 580 Ref]. Oral and documentary evidence as to the statement of a postman in a departmental enquiry are inadmissible in evidence in his absence 26 I.C. 307 (1)—16 Cr.L.J. 3. A document containing the admission of third persons cannot be used as evidence against the parties, but the document can be admitted in evidence as proof of the fact mentioned therein as evidence of the transaction if it could be shown that it was executed in due course of business to settle disputes between the parties 146 I.C. 937—1934 P. 48. A party cannot use in his favour an admission by his predecessor made in his own interest 41 C. 57—17 C.W.N. 1013—20 I.C. 78. See also 93 I.C. 956—1926 L. 381. Where a woman has described herself as the wife of a person in a contemporaneous transaction it would be admissible in evidence when there is a dispute as to the fact of marriage, because she had the special knowledge in respect of the marriage and it would be proved by her 193 I.C. 161—1941 O.W.N. 249—1941 Oudh 284. As to admission in butwara proceedings, see 1926 C.

(2) An admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, when it consists of a statement of the existence of any state of mind or body, relevant or in issue, made at or about the time when such state of mind or body existed, and is accompanied by conduct rendering its falsehood improbable.

NOTES

290 A confession is evidence for the prisoner as well as against him and must be taken altogether. 52 IC 145=20 Cr LJ 737 (N). But it is only where no other evidence is forthcoming that this can be pressed to the extent of requiring that no part be accepted as true without accepting the whole (Ibid). If other evidence incompatible with a part of the confession is on record, it may be relied on in preference to that part. 53 IC 145=20 Cr LJ 737 (N). DENIALS OF PARTY—Though 'Court' is bound to receive admissions in evidence, no such rule applies to denials. 49 A 482=1927 A 383. Cl (3) of sec 21 is intended to apply to cases in which the statement is sought to be used in evidence otherwise than as an admission, for instance, as part of the res gestae or as a statement accompanying or explaining a particular conduct. Where a purchase is made by a parent in the name of his child the contemporaneous acts of the parent may be admissible but not the subsequent acts and declarations. 7 O W N 683=1930 O 441. An admission by a Hindu father that a house built by him was constructed out of the self acquisition of one of his sons only has the effect of relieving that son from proving that the house was built out of his self-acquisitions, but it does not relieve him from proving what the actual cost of construction was, when he claims that amount out of his father's estate. 62 CLJ 430=40 CWN 75. An admission made by a party is not absolutely binding on him and its only effect is to shift the burden as against him. He is at liberty to prove that his admission was mistaken or untrue and is not estopped or concluded by it unless another person has been induced by it to alter his conduct. 67 CLJ 495. See also 1939 Mar LR 253 (Civil), 15 Luck 191=1940 Oudh 35.

SECS 21-25—Unless it is so specifically stated in the Cr P Code, no rule about the relevancy of evidence in the Evidence Act is affected by any provisions of the said Code. The admission of guilt in an application presented to a Magistrate is admissible under sec 21 of the Evidence Act. It does not become irrelevant under sec 24 or sec 25 of the Act. 1 LR (1939) All 367=1939 ALJ 107=1939 All 242.

SECS 21-27—Secs 21 to 27 of the Evidence Act do not suggest that statements which would be admissible in civil cases as admissions are not admissible in criminal cases. A person who subsequently becomes an accused person might make many admissions which do not implicate itself him in any criminal charge, and these would be admissible under sec 21 of the Evidence Act in a trial on a criminal charge against him. Where in the course of an inquiry into the conduct of certain police officers held by a Magistrate who is deputed for the purpose, the officers who are not even under arrest make certain statements to the Magistrate, such statements are admissible in evidence against them in a trial on a charge against them under secs 348 and 330, I P Code, of wrongful confinement and hurt for the purpose of exhorting a confession. Such statements are not statements recorded under sec 164, Cr P Code. 1941 MWN 505=54 LW 81=1941 Mad 720.

SECS 21 AND 34—Under sec 21, an admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission. Statements in zamindari papers which are entries in books of account regularly kept in the course of business are relevant under sec 34 of the Evidence Act. Such statements can therefore be taken into account though they may be admissions on behalf of the zamindar. 1940 PWN 498=19 Pat. 398=1940 Pat. 622.

A produces a book kept by him in the ordinary course of his business showing observations alleged to have been taken by him from day to day and indicating that the ship was not taken out of her proper course. A may prove these statements, because they would be admissible between third parties if he were dead under section 32, clause (2).

(c) A is accused of a crime committed by him at Calcutta.

He produces a letter written by himself and dated at Lahore on that day, and bearing the Lahore post mark of that day.

The statement in the date of the letter is admissible, because, if A were dead, it would be admissible under section 32 clause (2).

(d) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen.

He offers to prove that he refused to sell them below their value.

A may prove these statements, though they are admissions because they are explanatory of conduct influenced by facts in issue.

(e) A is accused of fraudulently having in his possession counterfeit coin which he knew to be counterfeit.

He offers to prove that he asked a skilful person to examine the coin as he doubted whether it was counterfeit or not, and that that person did examine it and told him it was genuine.

A may prove these facts for the reasons stated in the last preceding illustration.

22 Oral admissions as to the contents of a document are not relevant, unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such document under the rules hereinafter contained, or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question.

When oral admissions as to contents of documents are relevant document produced is in question

23 In civil cases no admission is relevant, if it is made either upon an express condition that evidence of it is not to be given, or under circumstances from which the Court can infer that the parties agreed together that evidence of it should not be given.

Admissions in civil cases when relevant should not be given.

Explanation—Nothing in this section shall be taken to exempt any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil from giving evidence of any matter of which he may be compelled to give evidence under section 126.

24 A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise¹ having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds which would appear to him reasonable for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

Sec 24. CONFESSION WHAT IS—A confession is not defined in the Evidence Act but it has been judicially interpreted as meaning an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime stating or suggesting the inference, that he committed that crime. The statement should however be considered as a whole. It would not be right to take isolated portions of it and to consider whether any of them, regarded separately, amounts to an admission of guilt or not. 1933 CrC 1284=1933 R 326. It is only when an utterance is made with an animus confitendi that it would become a confession, if, therefore, the declaration is made neither with an intention to confess, nor does it amount to an admission of facts from which guilt is directly deducible, the declaration would not amount to a confession. When a statement is not a confession there is no impediment in strict law to use it against the person making it in the capacity of an accused. But the practice of taking a statement on oath as from a witness and then using it at a later stage against an accused is not a commendable one. Further, part of a statement cannot be used to corroborate evidence which includes that statement itself, and which is obviously in much need of corroboration. 1937 N 254 = I L R (1937) N 524, 43 C W N 893 = 1939 Cal 610. A man of sound mind and of full age who makes a statement in ordinary simple language must be bound by the language of the statement made and by its ordinary plain meaning. 159 I C 875 = 1936 O 156. Where the accused in a conversation with the remanding Magistrate stated to the Magistrate that the police wanted him to turn approver, that he had given true facts to the police, that he was in fact guilty and that he had told the police where he had sold the stolen property. Held there was no confession, all that was said to the Magistrate was that the accused had made disclosures to the police on the promise of pardon. 148 I C 400 = 1933 L 987. See also 1941 P W N 653 (mere admission of being present in the company of dacoits is no confession of dacoity). A confession is an admission by an accused person in a criminal case. A statement falling within sec 339 (2) of the Code excludes the operation of sec 24. 59 I C 324 = 22 Bom L R 1247. To constitute a 'confession' under the Evidence Act, it is not necessary that the person confessing should make a full and explicit admission of his guilt so clean as to leave no other hypothesis tenable. It is enough if they lead to an inference of guilt. 43 I C 605, 19 Cr L J 189 (M). But the statement of a man who takes particular care at every stage to show that he did not take part in the offence does not amount to confession. 1935 A W R 48. The words 'accused person' in secs 24 to 26 include any person who subsequently becomes accused provided that at the time of making the statements criminal proceedings were in prospect. (Ibid). There is no provision of law which forbids a Magistrate from recording a confession on a Sunday or any other holiday and at a place other than the Court house. 1930 L 171. See also 165 I C 795 = 38 Cr L J 84.

INADMISSIBLE CONFESSION—Inadmissible confession would be inadmissible wholly. 38 I C 767 = 18 Cr L J 383 (Bur). In a case where there is evidence other than the confession of the accused, the Court is not bound to take the confession as a whole. If it is satisfied that a part of the confessional statement is false, it may reject that part and take into consideration that part of the confession which corroborates the evidence of the witnesses. 188 I C 326 = 41 Cr L J 576 = 1940 Lah 157. The Court is at liberty to disregard any statement in the confession which it disbelieves. 46 I C 705 = 19 Cr L J 785 (N). The circumstances under which a confession is made must always be scrutinized with great care and caution, and in all cases the period of the detention of the accused in police custody before a confession is made is always an important fact to be carefully considered. confession is admitted in a criminal case, that fact that evidence of the confession is admitted is sufficient to make the confession evidence. It is open no doubt to the defence to object to the evidence of confession going in, but till such objection is raised, there is no need for the Court to pronounce a formal decision on the question of the relevancy of the confession. The actual fact of admission of the confession is sufficient for the purpose. 1938 MWN 1120=48 L W 777=(1938) 2 M L J 1065. If a confession is not voluntary in the wider sense of the term, ex hypothesi the person who made it did not do so with the desire to tell the truth. This fact, in itself, introduces an element of suspicion. In such circumstances if facts are proved which suggest, that an inducement of some kind, although outside the terms of sec 24, was in fact given, the Court may well refuse to accept the confession as true. 63 C 1053=1936 C 316. Where the main foundation for the conviction is the confession alleged to have been made by the accused there are three things which the prosecution must establish: (a) that a confession was made, (b) that evidence of it can be given, and (c) that it is true. 152 I C 1032=1934 Sind 172. Where the case against the accused depends mainly upon an alleged confession and there is a conflict as to the manner in which the confession had been obtained by the prosecuting agency, the accused is justified in asking the Court to give him the benefit of the doubt. 119 I C 420=30 Cr L J 1080. No doubt the admission of an accused is to be taken as a whole. But where there is evidence to show that any portion of the exculpatory statements is inherently improbable, the Court is at liberty to reject that portion of the statement which appears to it to be so improbable and to act only upon that part of the statement which is inculpatory. 40 P L R 265=1938 L 850. CONFESSION IN POLICE CUSTODY, INADMISSIBILITY OF.—Question of admissibility of confession comes when statement is made to police officer or while in police custody. 1929 C 539. When a confession was made after being in police custody for several days and protracted consultation between the accused and the investigating officers and was subsequently retracted, the confession is inadmissible. 53 I C 929=23 C W N 886. See also 1937 C 39=41 C W N 183, 5 L L J 128, 21 Cr L J 177=54 I C 881 (P), 18 Cr L J 106=37 I C 314=10 Bur L T 270, 17 Cr L J 402=35 I C 962. Moral exhortation is not objectionable. 5 W R 32. A self-exculpatory statement by an accessory after the fact is inadmissible in evidence. 99 I C 282=30 C L J 503. Sec 24 does not admit as legal evidence an incriminating statement to headman at the latter's suggestion to speak the truth, lest witnesses for the other side may let it out when called. 18 Cr L J 106=37 I C 314.

CONFESSION UNDER INDUCEMENT, THREAT, ETC.—WHAT CONSTITUTES INDUCEMENT.—The expression "you had better tell the truth" has always been held to import a threat or promise unless the words are qualified in some manner. The words do not mean mere exhortation to tell the truth, for the accused had already been questioned by the police. The words are susceptible of the interpretation that the accused was told that it would be better for him if he told the truth and that amounts to an inducement. 152 I C 998=1934 L 417. See also 167 I C 795, 1937 C 39, 41 C W N 183, 1938 P 308=17 P 369, 1940 All 46. 1941 M W N 956. The question whether the words used were intended to convey to accused an inducement, etc., must depend on surrounding circumstances, in which those words were used. The burden is on prosecution to prove that the confession was not improperly induced. 1933 Sind 409. Where accused is told by a person in authority that if he makes a voluntary confession which is considered to be full and true, his prayer for being made an approver will receive due consideration, the confession made under such circumstances is inadmissible. 45 A 633=21 A L J 585=74 I C 529. Sec 24 makes a confession inadmissible if it appears to have been caused by any inducement or promise. 45 A 300=21 A L J 143=1923 A 352, 1929 Sind 245, 1930 A 29. The expression used in sec 24 of the Evidence Act is not "proved" but "if it appears" which is not as strong an expression as "proved." Though the accused has not adduced evidence to substantiate the allegation that the confession was obtained by threat or inducement, it is still open to him to show that the circumstances under which it was made would justify that inference. Quære whether the onus of proving that a confession is voluntary is on the accused or the prosecution 33 CWN 1112=1929 C 726, 61 C 399=38 CWN 659=1934 C 636. Under sec 24, unless it appears to a Court that an inducement, threat or promise was held out by a person in authority a confession would be relevant without any formal proof of the voluntary nature of the statement and formal evidence that the statement was voluntary is not required from the prosecution in practice 54 LW 327=(1911) 2 MLJ 1070. Where the accused whose confession is being recorded informs the Magistrate that he is making the confession under inducement, the confession is not admissible, and cannot be allowed to go to the jury. Whether there was inducement or not is immaterial 45 B 1086=60 IC 1006. A confession by an accused to a Magistrate who did not record or administer any of the necessary warnings or adopt any of the safeguards made after the police had threatened him and retracted at the earliest possible moment after the accused got out of the influence of the police, is inadmissible and insufficient in itself to base a conviction 1933 MWN 723. Where a confession is positively proved by the record of Magistrate that it was voluntary, the mere fact that the accused confessed in the hope of pardon will not justify its rejection as being improperly induced, in the absence of the evidence to suggest that any police officer or other person in authority did or said anything which could possibly be construed into holding out a hope of pardon (8 L 230, Ref) 34 PLR 704=1933 L 388. Where the Magistrate has not put the necessary preliminary questions to the accused with a view to satisfy himself that his statement was voluntary, the irregularity can be cured under sec 533 of the Cr P Code, provided the omission has not injured the accused in his defence on the merits. In other words, the Court is enabled under sec 533 to take evidence to prove that the confession was "duly made," i.e., in accordance with secs 164 and 364. If the questions were not put at all, the confession is not 'duly made.' But it is not necessarily irrelevant. The Court may satisfy itself that there was no inducement or threat and so fulfil the requirements of sec 24, Evidence Act. The weight to be attached to it depends on the facts of each case 1933 ALJ 1551 (FB). The statements made by the accused in the trial of the police officer concerned in the investigation of the case could be admitted in evidence against him on his own trial for murder 59 IC 324=22 Bom.LR 1247. A confession made by an accused person under fear, encouraged by a police officer in a subtle way in the hours that elapsed before the accused reached the Magistrate is inadmissible in evidence 60 IC 417=32 C.LJ 204. A confession made by an accused person on an inducement by a police officer that he would be offered a pardon is inadmissible in evidence 60 IC 417. The evidence of an accomplice, if suspicious, requires corroboration 60 IC 417, 9 P.R. 1911 (Cr)=10 IC 340. The fact that a police-officer got by means of threat an information from a prisoner as to a circumstance incriminating the latter does not render that information inadmissible in evidence 17 Cr LJ 33=32 IC 321. It is not possible for a Court to say that the making of the confession "appears" to it to have been caused by any inducement, threat, or promise, except upon evidence which is before the Court 4 PLT. 186=72 IC 961, 1928 L 676. The influence may be suggested by the confession itself or by the prosecution evidence or by the evidence adduced by accused or by surrounding circumstances which the Court is bound to take into consideration 72 IC 961=4 PLT 186.

Under sec 24 of the Evidence Act there must be something from which the Court can infer that the inducement or promise was given to the accused by some person who had authority to give it. It must be shown that hope was directly inspired by some one who had authority to make the promise 109 IC 225=1928 C 500. An approver's disclosure is in its very nature always the result of an inducement of promise namely, the inducement to confess upon a promise of pardon, but should it appear that it was extorted as the result of undue duress, such as threats of violence, to that extent the provisions of sec 24 would be applicable and the confessional statement would have to be ruled out of evidence 9 L 608=1928 L 320 (2). The mere fact that there was a race for pardon does not detract from the value of the confession, if that race for pardon does not appear to have been caused by an inducement or promise held out by one in authority 113 IC 65=30 Cr LJ 49.

WHO ARE PERSONS IN AUTHORITY FROM WHOM THREAT OR INDUCEMENT PROCEEDS.—There is no statutory definition of the words "person in authority", but it is well settled that the words have reference to a person who has authority to interfere in the matter under inquiry. Generally speaking a "person in authority" is one who is engaged in the apprehension, detention or prosecution of the accused or one who is empowered to examine him 12 P 241=14 PLT 82=1933 P 149 (SB). S 24 refers only to a person in actual authority, the test being the possession of some power or control over the accused with reference to his case 37 IC 42=18 Cr LJ 58. The belief of an accused that the persons to whom he made a confession were 'persons in authority' is not sufficient to bring them within the term. The test is: Had the person authority to interfere with the matter? Whether a certain person is a person in authority would largely depend upon the circumstances of each particular case. Mukhas to whom confession was made by accused were held to be not persons in authority. 132 IC 1032=1934 S 172. The expression "person in authority" has a wider meaning than the actual prosecutor and the test is, has the person any authority to interfere in the matter and any concern or interest in it sufficient to

DUTY OF COURT.—The Judge, with whom the responsibility lies for acting upon the confession, should satisfy himself by putting searching questions to such witnesses as had anything to do with the confession. The first question that ought to strike every judge is "why the accused made the confession?" It is important to ascertain from those in whose custody the accused was, the circumstances in which the question of confession first arose, how the accused expressed his willingness to be placed before the Magistrate and his readiness to make a confession. Similar questions arise as regards retraction. It is only if circumstances make it reasonable to believe that the accused voluntarily made the confession and agreed to make it before the Magistrate that an inquitive mind can be satisfied 55 A 91=1933 A 31. It is for the Judge to decide for himself whether prima facie the confession of the accused appears to him to have been induced by threat or promise and for that reason to be inadmissible. If he comes to the conclusion that it is inadmissible, he must exclude it from the consideration of the jury. It is not the province of jury to decide the question of admissibility of evidence. On the other hand, if the Judge considers the confession admissible, it is his duty to point out to the jury that the fact that he considers the evidence as admissible does not necessarily mean that it is true and it is for jury to make up their minds whether they should accept the confession, and in doing so they should naturally be guided to a large extent by their opinion on the question whether the confession was voluntary or not. 142 IC 639=1933 C 187. Before admitting confessions it is the duty of the Judge to satisfy himself that there has not been any inducement of the nature described in sec 24. If the circumstances are such as to raise a strong suspicion in his mind that the confession has been induced by threats or promises of the nature described in that section, then the confession is irrelevant. It is not necessary for the defence to establish conclusively that there was such inducement or threat. It is sufficient if the circumstances afford reasonable grounds for believing that there was such an inducement or threat 184 IC 222=43 CWN 893=1939 Cal 610. The prohibition contained in S 25 applies only to confessions which are to be proved as against the accused that is, in support of the prosecution case, and does not apply to statements on which the accused himself wishes to rely in connection either with his conviction or his sentence. 43 P LR 672. The prohibition contained in S 25 is of a general nature. It forbids the proof at a trial of a criminal offence of any admission of any offence made by the accused to a police officer, and it makes no difference whether the offence is one of which the accused can be convicted at the trial at which it is sought to prove the confession made to a police officer. The admissibility of a confession does not depend upon the offence charged. A confession made by an accused to the police of an offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder is not admissible in a trial for murder on the same facts. 1941 Sind 134 11 LR (1941) Kar 292. A confession made to the police in the course of the investigation of a crime is inadmissible in evidence though the confession relates to another crime. Confession made before Magistrate of Native State, is within the section. 144 IC 157 = 1933 A 286, 151 IC 311 = 1934 Sind 103. A statement made by the accused at the dock before the Magistrate, if it amounts to a clear confession is certainly admissible in evidence against the accused, its value is not discounted by the fact that the accused was at that time in the custody of the police. 1930 M W N 1249. The mere fact that the Court constable was allowed to remain present while the co-accused were making their confessions before the Magistrate does not involve the total exclusion of the confessions from evidence, but it certainly detracts from their evidentiary value. 152 L C 275 = 14 P L T 111 = 1934 P 586. See also 165 IC 319 = 1936 R 435. The ‘custody’ of a police officer for purposes of sec 26, is not mere physical custody. A person may be in the custody of a police officer though the latter may not be physically in possession of the person of the accused making the confession. Once an accused person is arrested by a police officer and is in his custody, the mere fact that for some purpose or other the police officer happens to be temporarily absent and during such absence leaves the accused in charge of a private individual, does not terminate the custody of the police officer. The accused must be deemed to be still in the custody of the police officer. 17 P 369 = 19 P L T 263 = 1933 P 308, 1941 Pch. 22.

ORAL CONFESSION—A confession to be admissible in evidence need not be recorded. It may be oral, and may be proved by the Magistrate to whom the oral confession was made. 45 IC 843, 11 PR 1918 (Cr), 34 PLR 896=1933 L 513, 1934 A.L.J. 178=1934 A 351. A confession made by an accused to a Magistrate on leave in the presence of a police officer who had the accused under arrest at the time is not admissible in evidence, where no record was made of his statement under sec 164 of the Cr P Code. 118 IC 46=1929 A 855. Where a Magistrate simply accompanies a police officer while the police officer is making the investigation, the evidence of the Magistrate as to what happened is not admissible under sec 26. 34 Cr L.J. 754=1933 A 394. SCOPE OF SECTION—See 45 C 557=22 C.W.N. 213=44 IC 321, 1941 Nag 86. Sec 27 has to be read as a proviso not only to sec 26 but to secs 25 and 26 taken together. 1941 P.W.N. 653. Sec 27 has no application to a confessional statement made to a police officer before the deponent has come into the custody of that police officer. 54 L.W. 136=1941 Mad 765=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 209. The exact information received from the accused must be established before sec 27 can be resorted to. 46 C.W.N. 180. The word "thereby" in 'fact thereby discovered' in sec 27 refers to that portion of the information only which may be held to be the proximate cause of the discovery. In order that this may be admissible against the accused, (1) the information must be the one given by the accused—the statement conveying the information must be his own statement in his own language, and then (2) only so much of the information as is necessary and sufficient to cause the discovery will be admissible. 46 C.W.N. 180. Sec 27 is an enabling section providing an exception to the previous ones which exclude confessions made to or in presence of the police. If the conditions of the section are fulfilled, it allows a confession to be proved. 1 L.R. (1936) N 78=1936 N 200. Sec 27 is in the nature of a proviso relating to the previous sections which lay down the general rules as to the inadmissibility of confessions made in certain circumstances. Whether a confession to which sec 27 applies was induced by promises or not is immaterial. The general ground for not admitting confessions made either to a police officer, or made under any inducement or made by persons while in custody is clearly the danger of admitting false confessions, but the necessity for this precaution disappears when the truth of the confession is guaranteed by the discovery of facts in consequence of the information given. (1936 N 200, Foll.) 1 L.R. (1937) N 268=168 IC 962=1937 N 220. Under sec 27 so much of the information given by the accused as relates distinctly to the facts of the discovery in consequence of the information given by him may alone be proved, whether it amounts to a confession or not. Where the fact discovered was that the grave in which the corpse of the deceased was inferred was dug up with a spade produced by the accused, the only part of the information given by him which can be admitted is that relating strictly to the discovery of the spade with which the grave was dug. It is not possible to admit any statement by him that he murdered the deceased. 1937 M.W.N. 881. See also 1939 A.L.J. 732=1939 All 685. Where facts are discovered by the accused himself combined with a statement, such a statement is not admissible under sec 27. The Court must distinguish between cases where discovery is made in consequence of information given and a disclosure by an accused accompanying a statement. While in the former case a statement of the accused leading to discovery is admissible the statement in the latter case is inadmissible under sec 27. 1940 M.W.N. 1298=52 L.W. 898=1941 Mad 306, 1941 M.W.N. 956. The intention of the Legislature in enacting sec 27 was that the minimum portion of a confession made to a police officer or of information given to him should be admitted into evidence which might reasonably be held to relate distinctly and positively to the fact discovered and which is necessary to be proved in order to adequately explain such discovery. 170 IC 453=1 L.R. (1937) A 710=1937 A 485, 53 L.W. 567=1941 Mad 658. The preamble in a confessional statement which has no relation to the discovery of the facts is not admissible under sec 27. (1939) 2 M.L.J. 487=1939 M 593. Sec 27 refers to a fact being discovered, a fact means and includes according to the definition in sec 3, 'anything, state of things or relations of things capable of being

Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat or promise, relevant

28 If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat or promise has, in the opinion of the Court been fully removed, it is relevant

29 If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant, merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him

Confession otherwise relevant not to become irrelevant because of promise of secrecy, etc

30 When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession

the English Law and must be construed strictly. When once there is no such confession as affects the person making it any statement made by one accused cannot be treated as evidence against the co accused or be taken as affording corroboration of the evidence of the approver. 1929 MWN 698. It would be far too dangerous to consider that a confession of a co-accused amounts to evidence against a person. It is not stated under sec 30 of the Evidence Act and it has long been settled law that a conviction cannot be based on the confession of a co-accused. 150 I C 1036=35 Cr L J 1180.

"CONFESSION" means confession of the very offence for which the accused are being tried, not a confession of any offence connected with that offence nor of any other offence which may be disclosed by the evidence. 59 M L J 471. A statement before the Court of the co-accused, where it is deprecating his own guilt, is a statement seeking to clear himself at the expense of the accused and as such is inadmissible under sec 30. 152 I C 924=1934 C 724. The word 'confession' used in sec 30 clearly means such a confession as is required to be proved at the trial as a part of the prosecution evidence. It cannot therefore signify any matter which comes on the record at the end of the prosecution evidence namely, answers to questions put under sec 342, Cr P Code. Hence the statement made by a co-accused confessing, partially or wholly, his guilt when examined under sec 342, Cr P Code, cannot be taken into consideration under sec 30, Evidence Act, against the other accused. 190 I C 273=41 Cr L J 886=1910 Nag 287. The statement of an accused person which does not amount to a confession cannot be used against his co-accused. 42 P L R. 378. See also 11 O W N 1012=1934 O 418, 176 I C 530=1938 P 352.

CONFESSION—ADMISSIBILITY AGAINST CO-ACCUSED.—A statement of an accused must amount to a confession before it can be considered against his co-accused under sec 30. 35 M 247=22 M L J 490=14 I C 849, 40 C L J 551. MWN 1238=52 L W 898, 185 I C 205; 1939 N L J 442=1939 Nag 295. The principle on which the confession of one accused is used against another is that self-implication is supposed to provide some guarantee of the truth of the accusation made against the other. Where the statement is exculpatory so far as possible, there is no such guarantee. Further, the confession to be admissible must be a confession of the offence for which the accused persons are tried and not of some other offence. 1939 N L J 469=1939 Lah 309. It is not quite clear as to what is the exact meaning of 'tainted evidence', whether it means that the person giving the evidence is tainted morally, or whether it means merely that he is a person on whose word reliance cannot be placed. As regards an approver, there is the fear that he is giving evidence in order to save his skin and therefore that he is liable to make statements which are not true if he thinks they will be for his benefit. But as regards the confession of a co-accused, one cannot call this tainted evidence, for the same reason. A person making a confession does so deliberately and after having been warned solemnly by the Magistrate of the consequences of making a confession and knowledge that he may be convicted thereon, if he still persists in his purpose and makes a confession, the statements that he makes cannot be considered to be tainted statements unless it be that they are tainted because he is an immoral person who has committed criminal offence. But all immoral persons are not necessarily and always liars. But it is not to be supposed that because the confession is admissible therefore, it must be believed. In such case it has to be considered whether the confession is a true one, whether there are any circumstances which suggest that it is false or that some of the statements made therein are also false. The Court may take the confession of a co-accused person into consideration against the other co-accused, that is to say, the Court can only treat a confession as lending assurance to other evidence against a co-accused. 1938 Rang L R 30=174 I C 947=1938 R 92. See also 1939 Rang 402. Where an accused person after he is arrested makes a confession implicating the other accused and the confession is sought to be used against them, it is incumbent on the prosecution to disclose the name of the officer who made the arrest and produce him or any other person who could speak to the circumstances under which the confession was made so as to enable the defence to ascertain by cross examination what inducements were offered to the accused to make it and what generally were the circumstances that attended the confession. 35 M 501=25 M L J 518=40 I A 193 (P C). The confession of an accused in a dacoity case is not admissible in evidence against a co-accused in that case in a proceeding under sec 110 of the Cr P Code. 61 I C 793=25 C W N 239. The statement of an accused made after arrest and not amounting to a confession is not admissible

TEST OF ADMISSIBILITY.—This section introduces a departure from the ordinary rule relating to the admissibility of evidence and must be strictly construed. Before any statement made by one of the accused persons, tried jointly with the others can be taken into consideration against such others, it must fulfil two conditions (a) it must be a confession of guilt affecting himself equally with the others, and (b) it must be proved against those persons who are jointly tried with him. The word "proved" means proved before the prosecution case comes to an end either proved in the course of the prosecution case or proved in some proceedings previous to the trial 1935 L 35. Whether the confession of an accused can be used against his co-accused should be determined on seeing whether the accused can be convicted on that confession of the crime with which he and the co-accused were charged 60 I C 660 22 Cr L J 260 (L). See also 15 C W N 392 38 C 559 50 B 683, 9 N L J 80 1926 N 229 178 I C 130=19 P L T 801, 1938 Sind 94.

WEIGHT OF CONFESSION AGAINST CO-ACCUSED.—Self implication is guarantee for truth of accusation against co-accused 1930 A 29. There is nothing in the terms of sec. 30 to suggest that a confession is not admissible in evidence against a person who is being jointly tried for the same offence with a man who has made the confession if the confession minimises the guilt of him who makes it and exaggerates the guilt of the other. The section only requires that it must affect both equally 1938 A 91=1937 A L J 1253. Where an accused does not implicate himself in his statement in respect of the offence of murder, but implicates himself in respect of the disposal of the dead body, such a statement is not admissible against the co-accused in respect of the offence under sec. 300, I P Code but is only admissible in respect of the offence under sec. 201, I P Code 1937 M W N 1233. The confession of an accused should not carry the same weight as the evidence of the same person if he were examined as a witness 21 I C 166=14 Cr L J 566. The Court must, after the most careful consideration, decide whether the degree of proof prescribed by sec. 30 has been reached or not. 21 I C 166. A confession made by a co-accused must be regarded with suspicion 65 I C 561=1922 N 146. See also 72 I C 497=24 Cr L J 385 1939 Mar L R 19 (Cr). It is not the law that unless a confessing prisoner implicates himself as fully as his co-accused the statement will not be admissible, the principle being that there is no guarantee that the maker of the confession is speaking the truth. All that is required is that the confession shall substantially implicate its maker in regard to the crime with which he and his co-accused are charged 19 W R 67 (Cr), 2 A 444, 4 P L T 505=75 I C 705, 72 I C 497=24 Cr L J 385, 2 P L T 125. A conviction founded solely on the confessions of co-accused cannot be sustained. It must be corroborated in material particulars by independent evidence 21 I C 673=38 B 156 170 I C 201=1937 C 433 (SB). Court has discretion to exclude a confession by an accused altogether from consideration against the co-accused if it is so disposed 1930 N 242 (F B). See also 7 O W N 980=1930 O 502, 146 I C 17 (2)=1933 N 249.

CONFESSION—NECESSITY FOR CORROBORATION.—The Indian Statute differs from the English Law and the effect of the former need not be whittled down. The question of what corroborative evidence is sufficient must depend on the circumstances of each particular case 119 I C 474=1929 M 498. The confessions of a co-accused implicating his co-accused in the crime are of less evidentiary value than the testimony of an accomplice because the man in the dock cannot be cross-examined. They can only be taken into consideration under sec. 30 of the Evidence Act along with such other evidence as there may be. While such a confession may help the Court to decide whether the other evidence is or is not credible, it cannot supply the place of positive evidence regarding the commission of the crime 52 L W 258=1940 M W N 767=1941 M 267. See also 1940 Rang L R 104=1939 Rang 402. When the substantive evidence is not sufficient to establish a prima facie case against the accused it is not permissible to use the confession of a co-accused under sec. 30 as if it were itself substantive evidence, which it is not. It may only be taken to lend assurance to any relevant evidence bearing on the accused's complicity in the crime. It can in no case be used to fill up the gap in the prosecution evidence 188 I C 146=41 Cr L J 553=1940 Nag 230. The statement of a co-accused is admissible in evidence but it is unsafe to accept the tainted testimony of an accomplice so long as it is not corroborated in material particulars. The difficulty enhances where the said accomplice does not adhere to his statement. 1929 A 928. Where the evidence of the approver is eliminated as against one of the accused whose name has been falsely substituted by the approver, it should not be accepted even against the other accused though to some extent it is corroborated by independent testimony 34 P L R 1010=1933 L 671. See also 19 P L T 601=178 I C 159. Confessional statement of accused cannot be used in corroboration of the evidence of the approver inasmuch as the latter's evidence is not made better by being corroborated by other

SESSIONS TRIAL AND MAGISTRAL TRIAL—DISTINCTION Per Full Bench—In considering the question whether the confession of the co-accused who pleaded guilty can be used against the other co-accused under sec. 30, a distinction must be made between summons and warrant cases on the one hand and Sessions cases on the other. In Sessions cases if the accused pleads guilty the Court cannot try him but has forthwith to convict him. His conviction cannot be deferred so as to enable the Court to use his confession against his co-accused. But in warrant cases, it is discretionary with the Magistrate to defer conviction of the accused who pleads guilty and use his confession against the other co-accused under sec. 30 166 IC 582 and 587=ILR (1937) N 315=1937 N 17 (FB)

Secs 30 and 114—A confession of an accused person implicating a co-accused under sec. 30 cannot be considered as the same thing as 'testimony of an accomplice' under sec. 113. Sec. 113 contemplates that the accomplice shall be examined as a witness. This being so, the provision that a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, has no application to the case of an uncorroborated confession taken into consideration as against a co-accused jointly tried with the confessing accused under sec. 30. Therefore an accused person cannot be convicted solely on such a confession made by a co-accused 1928 N 213=109 IC 801 See also 1929 L 338, 38 Bom LR 1122=1937 B 31, ILR (1941) Nag 506. The evidential value of a confession made by a co-accused is not very high. But the confession receives confirmation when it leads to the arrest and identification of the other accused. ILR (1939) L 67. Where, however, there is apart from the confessions a body of evidence and circumstances enough to support a conviction if the evidence is accepted as free from untruth or exaggeration on serious mistake or distortion the Court can take the confessions into consideration and consider together the evidence, the circumstances and the confessions 43 B 739=51 IC 657 See also 4 R 45=1926 R 127. Where the corroboration consisted of statements of witnesses which though giving rise to suspicion were consistent with the innocence of the accused, held, that the corroboration fell far short of what is required to support a conviction 42 C 789=19 CWN 584=28 IC 657. As to what amounts to corroboration, see 95 IC 938=1926 A 603. A conviction based entirely on statements contained in confessions of co-

accused persons is not sustainable 11 IC 1001=12 Cr LJ 465 See also 17 Cr LJ 156=33 IC 636, 73 IC 262=1923 N 248, 1928 N 213

JOINT TRIAL—In a warrant case, although the statement of a co-accused amounts to an unqualified confession, he need not be forthwith convicted and removed from the dock. The co-accused is still to be deemed to be jointly tried with the others and this confession can be used as against the others. A sessions case is to be distinguished from a warrant case for the purpose 1928 L 880. See also 1937 N 17=ILR (1937) N 315 (FB). A statement made by one accused can only be used against another if provisions of sec. 30 of the Act are applicable 20 A LJ 178=65 IC 849=1922 A 24. As to joint trial, see also 45 A 323=1923 A 322, 2 Pat LT 125. Persons, against whom proceedings are being jointly taken under sec. 117, Cr P Code, in one and the same enquiry cannot be said to be on their joint trial for the same offence within sec. 30 41 A 231=49 IC 654. A confession by an accused implicating himself and two others in a charge of dacoity is inadmissible against the others in a proceeding under sec. 110 of the Cr P Code 22 CWN 408=49 IC 649 See also 167 IC 162=1937 C 39. When two persons are jointly tried, one for the offence of rape of a girl and the other for the abduction of that girl, they are not tried for the same offence. Consequently a confession made by one of them affecting himself and the other is not admissible in evidence against the other under sec. 30 176 IC 560=42 CWN 814=1938 C 479. A confession of an accused not being declared relevant by the Evidence Act as against a co-accused cannot be treated as substantive evidence and a judgment cannot be based upon it so far as he is concerned 65 IC 561=1922 N 146. Confessions recorded in the manner provided by the Criminal Procedure Code even though made to Magistrates outside British India if proved against the persons who made them, may be taken into consideration against others who are being tried jointly for the same offence 69 IC 257=17 NLR 113. Where one of the accused pleaded guilty and was examined at the end of the prosecution case, and declined to call any witnesses, the trial was a joint trial, so that his confession could be taken into consideration against the other accused. A conviction under sec. 456, Indian Penal Code, based on the confession of a co-accused who was being tried along with the prisoner under sec. 411, Indian Penal Code, is unsound and must be set aside 20 IC 136=14 Cr LJ 376 volume and certainty to insure conviction. It is wrong to state that when a confession is retracted, it has no value at all as against the co-accused. The retraction of a confession may throw doubt either on the truth of it or on the fact that it was voluntarily made, but it certainly does not follow because a confession is retracted that it was either untrue or involuntary, and the truth or voluntariness of a confession operates equally—where a confession is self-inculpatory—in respect of the person who made it and the person implicated therein. There is no reason to hold that merely because a confession has been retracted in the Court of Session, it was involuntarily made. The motive for making a self-inculpatory confession is the very simple one of an expectation of leniency in the matter of sentence and where a number of people are jointly tried and some have made confession to a Magistrate before the trial and some have not it is again not unnatural that persons who have made confessions should retract them under pressure and persuasion by their fellows who have not confessed. Retracted confessions must no doubt be used with caution but when it is possible to come to the conclusion that the confessions cannot be otherwise than true, they may be taken into consideration in connection with the evidence appearing in the case whether they are retracted or no. 193 IC 263, 42 CrLJ 363=1941 N 145. The confession referred to in sec 30 cannot be restricted to an unretracted confession and there is nothing to prevent a Court from convicting after considering the confession but the rules of practice of the High Courts in India are to be observed when exercising the discretion. 15 Bom LR 975=21 IC 673=38 B 156. secs 32 and 33 RELATIVE SCOPE OF — Secs 32 and 33 Evidence Act give different instances where evidence is relevant. Sec 32 makes relevant statements by a deceased person as to the cause of his death, see 33 makes relevant evidence given by a witness when the witness is dead or cannot be found etc. These are two distinct cases. It cannot be said that sec 33 governs sec 32 1941 Rang L.R. 258 = 1941 Rang 301 A previous statement by a person is not relevant when it is not covered by secs 32, 33 and 145 of the Evidence Act unless it is an admission in which case only it becomes relevant under sec 21 of the Act 1941 A.W.R. Sec 32 — Section should be very liberally construed. See 104 I.C. 209 1927 O. 278 Before statements can be admitted under sec 32 it must be proved that the makers of these statements are either dead or for any other reason are not available as witnesses 1933 R. 212 Sec 32 speaks of statements both written and verbal and a Court cannot refuse to admit oral evidence of a verbal statement which fulfils the requirements of the section merely because the evidence offered is the testimony of a witness who is interested in the result of the litigation 42 C.W.N. 319 There is a difference between the existence of a fact and a statement as to its existence. Sec 31 makes the existence of facts admissible, and not statements as to such existence unless the fact of making that statement is itself a matter in issue. Hence if a statement does not fall within sec. 32, it cannot be admissible even under sec. 31 1934 A.L.J. 318 = 1934 A. 406 (F.B.) Generally speaking a declaration relevant under sec 32 but not made by one in immediate expectation of death and not made in the presence of the accused ought not to be acted upon unless there is some reliable corroboration 35 Bom L.R. 1021 = 1933 B. 479 (2) The value of the evidence admissible under secs 32, 49 and 50 depends on the characters of the witnesses who depose to what they heard from deceased persons and also on the characters of the deceased and whether they were expressing their own opinion or merely repeating hearsay [23 A. 37 (P.C.) Pol.] 1933 S. 213

SCOPE OF — A previous statement which is not made in Court and at the trial can be used only for the limited purpose of corroborating or contradicting a witness and does not become substantive evidence in the case 127 I.C. 850 = 1930 L. 409 When the statement of a witness previously made is used as evidence under the provisions of secs 32 and 33 then any other statement made by that witness can be used by virtue of sec 158 for the purpose of contradicting that witness as if such witness had appeared in Court and was cross-examined on such previous statement and on question being asked had denied the facts mentioned in the same 1930 L. 409

Sec 32 (1) DYING DECLARATION WHEN ADMISSIBLE.—The recording of a dying declaration is a grave and solemn proceeding. The proceeding should be so conducted that the declarant is as free from personal influence in making his declaration as he would be if he were giving evidence in a Court of law. 152 IC 747=1934 A 908. The dying declaration being the most important piece of evidence must be as exact and full as possible. 15 IC 308=22 MLJ 453. See also 1924 L 12, 5 L 205=1924 L 581, 16 P 593=1937 PWN 897, 1937 MWN 333. A statement intended to be proved as a dying declaration under sec 32 need not be recorded by a Magistrate. Law does not require such statements to be made necessarily under expectation of death. 390 IC 322. The value of a dying declaration altogether disappears when parts of it have obviously been supplied to the dying man by other persons, whether interested parties or police officers. A "touched up" dying declaration has no value. 36 PLR 24=1934 CrC 1126=1934 L 805. See also 1941 Pat 409. A dying declaration which names only one person where the killing took place under circumstances where there could be no doubt that the dying man identified his assailant, is the very strongest possible form of evidence. But where a large number of people are implicated, it is a very different matter and in the absence of corroboration of the dying declaration the accused should not be convicted. 43 PLR 598=1941 Lah 368. Statements by deceased as to the cause of his death are admissible, not only as against the person who actually caused the death of the deponent, but also against other persons concerned in the transaction which resulted in the deponent's death in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question. statement regarding witnesses to the occurrence was false, his declaration cannot be relied upon for convicting the accused named by him 1930 M W N 1211 See also 32 L W 910=59 M L J 876 (A dying declaration is relevant evidence under sec 32, but it is not entitled to any peculiar credit.) A statement falling under sec 32 (1) may be made before the cause of death has arisen or before the deceased has any reason to anticipate being killed. A statement by the deceased that he is proceeding to the spot where in fact he was killed later, or as to his reasons for so proceeding or that he had been invited by a particular person to meet him, or that he was going to such person would each of them be circumstances of the transaction, and would be so whether the person, was unknown, or was not the person accused. Such a statement might indeed be exculpatory of the person accused. The "circumstances of the transaction" must have some proximate relation to the actual occurrence, though, as for instance in a case of prolonged poisoning they may be related to dates at a considerable distance from the date of the actual fatal dose. The "circumstances" are of the transaction which resulted in the death of the declarant. It is not necessary that there should be a known transaction other than that the death of the declarant has ultimately been caused, the condition or the admissibility of the evidence being that "the cause of (the declarant's) death comes into question" 66 I A 66=43 C W N 473=1939 P C 47=(1939) 1 M L J 758 (P C). Where the statements are as to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in the death of the person making them, they are admissible under sec 32 (1), in a case in which the cause of that person's death comes into question, and it is immaterial that the person who made them, was not at the time when he made them under expectation of death. The nature of the proceedings in which the death comes into question also does not matter. It need not necessarily be a proceeding on a charge of murder or homicide. It may be even a civil action 190 I C 849=1940 N L J 459=1940 Nag 340.

Under sec 32 it is only statements made by the deceased as to the cause of his death or the circumstances of the transaction that resulted in his death which can be admitted. The circumstances must be circumstances of the transaction, general expressions indicating fear or suspicion, whether of a particular individual or otherwise, and not directly related to the occasion of death cannot be admissible. Statement by the deceased which provide nothing more than grounds for supposing that the deceased suspected the accused of having betrayed a relation of his in a civil suit which are in no way associated with the actual murder cannot be admitted under sec 32 and must be excluded. Even if the accused does not object to such evidence, it must be excluded. At any rate it is the duty of Public Prosecutor to see that such wholly inadmissible evidence is not placed

A statement made by a person who is dead as to the cause of his death is evidence notwithstanding that he was not under expectation of death when he made it. Such a statement does not necessarily require corroboration. It is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule as to when a dying declaration should be accepted, beyond saying that each case must be decided in the light of the other facts and the circumstances, but if the Court, after taking everything into consideration, is convinced that the statement is true, it is its duty to convict notwithstanding that there is no corroboration in the true sense. The Court must, of course, be fully convinced of the truth of the statement I L R (1910) Mad 158=1910 Mad 196=(1910) 1 M L J 124 (T B). See also 1910 M W N 163. It is, no doubt, improbable that a man who has been stabbed and has been able to recognize his assailant would omit to name the actual assailant and instead give the name of some other person. But in cases where the assailant has not been recognized, the Court must not ignore the possible temptation that there may be, if one has grounds for suspecting any person, to name that person as having been actually and positively identified. The danger of this kind of wrong identification has to be borne in mind in dealing with what are called dying declarations. There is no absolute rule that a dying declaration should not be acted on for the purpose of convicting an accused person even if uncorroborated provided that the Court is fully satisfied that it is true. But before so acting on it the Court will apply to it every test of its genuineness and good faith which it is possible in the circumstances of the case to apply. Special caution is needed in dealing with a dying declaration when the prosecution evidence shows signs of attempt to improve and develop it at successive stages, or when there is serious room for doubt as to whether the contents of the dying statement include matter suggested to the deceased by the outsiders 194 I C 186. Where the statement in question was said to have been made months before the alleged murder, held, that it could hardly come within the terms of sec. 32 174 I C 36 66 C L J 196=1938 C 125.

DYING DECLARATION—WHEN NOT ADMISSIBLE—A statement by a dying person not about the circumstances of his death, but about a dacoity that was taking place at the time of his death is not admissible under sec 32 (1) in a trial for the dacoity. Nor can those statements be admissible under sec 32 (3) unless they would have exposed him to criminal prosecution. 20 I C 990=14 C L J 510. A dying declaration which contradicts itself in its various parts is inadmissible. Even if it is admissible its evidentiary value is negligible 108 I C 526. It is not safe to base a conviction on the dying declaration of the deceased, when the other evidence in the case is tainted and has to be rejected 150 I C 819=11 O W N 851=1934 O 405 See also 164 I C 139=37 Cr.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question

L.J. 990=1936 R. 324, 176 I.C. 683=1938 R. 282 A dying declaration which comes under sec 32 (1) of the Evidence Act from the point of view of admissibility, should not be put on a different footing from any other piece of evidence, so far as the appraisement of its evidentiary value is concerned. It is always a question of fact as to whether it should be relied upon or not. Merely because a part of the statement is untrue it does not follow that the rest of the dying declaration also should be discarded and disbelieved. If a tribunal finds that a part of it is concocted it would decline to believe the rest of it without corroboration, but the Court or the jury is not debarred from accepting the rest. Declaration of this type ought to be corroborated. 40 C.W.N. 1377=1936 C. 793, 1938 R. 282, 1941 Mad. 290, 1941 Pat. 409.

DYING DECLARATION, PROOF OF—160 I.C. 597=1936 R. 42 A statement of a deceased person recorded in the absence of the accused is not admissible under sec 33. Nor is it admissible under sec 32 (1) unless it is proved by the Magistrate who recorded it or by some one who heard it made. 20 I.C. 220=14 Cr.L.J. 396 Where a dying declaration has to be proved by a Magistrate it is unnecessary for him to repeat the record verbatim in his evidence if he is satisfied that it was correctly recorded, it is sufficient for him merely to refer to the record and testify to its correctness and that it was made by the person and under the circumstances in question. 1941 Rang.L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301 The dying declarations of a deceased person are admissible under sec 32 (1). The only satisfactory and reliable way of proving the dying declaration of a deceased person is to let the person who recorded it or in whose presence it was recorded directly prove the writing itself. Otherwise the proceedings would be reduced to a farce. No human being can be expected to remember word for word what he had written long ago and either the witness will have to learn the evidence by heart before he enters the witness box or no dying declaration could be proved in a satisfactory manner at all. 176 I.C. 471=1938 Pesh. 33 A dying declaration recorded by a Magistrate is not evidence unless proved by the statement of the Magistrate though he is himself the committing Magistrate in the case. A Court cannot be beyond the rule that every statement placed on the record must be properly proved. Dying declarations are not covered by the provisions of Clap XLII of the Cr. P. Code. 18 I.C. 683=14 Cr.L.J. 131 A dying declaration reduced to writing but not signed by the deponent is not admissible in evidence but must be proved by the oral testimony of the person who heard it. 23 I.C. 105=10 N.L.R. 19. Notes of police officer relating to a dying declaration are not admissible in evidence, unless signed by the deponent, but in testifying to it he can refer to them to refresh his memory (Ibid). Where a statement is relevant under the provisions of sec 32 (1), Evidence Act, it is not inadmissible by reason of the fact that the Magistrate who recorded it was not competent to record of a witness under sec 164 Cr. P. Code. 1941 Rang. L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301 Witnesses should not be allowed to prove a dying declaration as if it is a substantial piece of evidence in the case. The relevant fact to be proved is the statement made and that statement is not the document made by the Magistrate. 67 I.C. 577=1924 L. 12 The only way of proving a dying declaration is by the evidence of some witness who heard it made, the witness being at liberty to refresh his memory by referring to the note made by him and read over by him at or about the time the statement is made. 1924 L. 12 See also 49 C. 358=71 I.C. 685 1930 L. 450 The method of proving a dying declaration is by examining the person who recorded the statement as to what the deceased said or to examine some person or persons who were present at the time and heard the statement being made. Such a statement should go in as a whole or not at all. The Judge cannot admit portions of it, and opportunity should be given to cross-examine the person. 1930 C. 228 A dying declaration recorded by a Magistrate should be proved before it can be accepted as evidence and the fact that the Magistrate was the committing Magistrate makes no difference. 17 P.R. 191 (Cr.)=14 I.C. 417 Dying declarations are not covered by Ch. XLII of the Cr. P. Code to enable them to be admitted without proof (Ibid). A dying declaration made after receiving extremeunction should generally be believed to be true and acted upon. 12 I.C. 206=12 Cr.L.J. 528 See also 1941 Mad. 290. The questions and the signs made in reply by a person unable to speak taken together might properly be regarded as a 'verbal statement' made by a person as to the cause of the death within the meaning of sec 32 and are therefore admissible in evidence. 49 C. 600=26 C.W.N. 414=1922 C. 409 Gestures made before the death by the person murdered are admissible in evidence, but the opinion of the witnesses as to the meaning of such gestures is not evidence, the interpretation of the gestures being for the Court alone. 1 P. 401=71 I.C. 353 See also 38 Bom.L.R. 818 173 I.C. 833=1938 P. 151 (Signs and gestures admissible in evidence). It is safer to rely on the dying declaration rather than on the first information report, for a great sanctity is attached to the former as it is expected that the person who is on the verge of death will tell the truth. 178 I.C. 343=1933 O.W.N. 1103 An injured man who is waiting to be operated on should not be subjected to any-

Such a statement might indeed be exculpatory of the person accused. The 'circumstances of the transaction' must have some proximate relation to the actual occurrence, though as for instance in a case of prolonged poisoning they may be related to dates at a considerable distance from the date of the actual fatal dose. The 'circumstances' are of the transaction which resulted in the death of the declarant it is not necessary that there should be a known transaction other than that the death of the declarant has ultimately been caused, the condition or the admissibility of the evidence being that 'the cause of (the declarant's) death comes into question' 66 LA 66=43 CWN 473-1939 PC 47=(1939) 1 MLJ 756 (PC). Where the statements are as to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in the death of the person making them they are admissible under sec 32 (1), in a case in which the cause of that person's death comes into question and it is immaterial that the person who made them was not at the time when he made them under expectation of death. The nature of the proceedings in which the death comes into question also does not matter. It need not necessarily be a proceeding on a charge of murder or homicide. It may be even a civil action 190 IC 849=1940 NLJ 459-1940 Nag 340.

Under sec 32 it is only statements made by the deceased as to the cause of his death or the circumstances of the transaction that resulted in his death which can be admitted. The circumstances must be circumstances of the transaction general expressions indicating fear or suspicion whether of a particular individual or otherwise and not directly related to the occasion of death cannot be admissible. Statement by the deceased which provide nothing more than grounds for supposing that the deceased suspected the accused of having betrayed a relation of his in a civil suit which are in no way associated with the actual murder cannot be admitted under sec 32 and must be excluded. Even if the accused does not object to such evidence it must be excluded. At any rate it is the duty of Public Prosecutor to see that such wholly inadmissible evidence is not placed before the Court 1910 MWN 937=52 LW 495=(1940) 2 MLJ 715 See also 1911 PWN 255=22 Pat LJ 327=1911 Pat. 362, 1911 Mad 101, 11 R (1911) Nag 110.

A statement made by a person who is dead as to the cause of his death is evidence notwithstanding that he was not under expectation of death when he made it. Such a statement does not necessarily require corroboration. It is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule as to when a dying declaration should be accepted, beyond saying that each case must be decided in the light of the other facts and the circumstances, but if the Court, after taking everything into consideration, is convinced that the statement is true, it is its duty to convict notwithstanding that there is no corroboration in the true sense. The Court must, of course be fully convinced of the truth of the statement 1 LR (1940) Mad 158=1940 Mad 196=(1940) 1 MLJ 124 (TB). See also 1910 MWN 163. It is, no doubt improbable that a man who has been stabbed and has been able to recognize his assailant would omit to name the actual assailant and instead give the name of some other person. But in cases where the assailant has not been recognized the Court must not ignore the possible temptation that there may be, if one has grounds for suspecting any person, to name that person as having been actually and positively identified. The danger of this kind of wrong identification has to be borne in mind in dealing with what are called dying declarations. There is no absolute rule that a dying declaration should not be acted on for the purpose of convicting an accused person even if uncorroborated provided that the Court is fully satisfied that it is true. But before so acting on it the Court will apply to it every test of its genuineness and good faith which it is possible in the circumstances of the case to apply. Special caution is needed in dealing with a dying declaration when the prosecution evidence shows signs of attempt to improve and develop it at successive stages, or when there is serious room for doubt as to whether the contents of the dying statement include matter suggested to the deceased by the outsiders 194 IC 186. Where the statement in question was said to have been made months before the alleged murder, held that it could hardly come within the terms of sec 32 174 IC 36=66 CLJ 196-1938 C 125.

DYING DECLARATION—WHEN NOT ADMISSIBLE.

—A statement by a dying person not about the circumstances of his death, but about a dacoity that was taking place at the time of his death is not admissible under sec 32 (1) in a trial for the dacoity. Nor can those statements be admissible under sec 32 (3) unless they would have exposed him to criminal prosecution. 20 IC 990=14 Cr LJ 510. A dying declaration which contradicts itself in its various parts is inadmissible. Even if it is admissible its evidentiary value is negligible 108 IC 526. It is not safe to base a conviction on the dying declaration of the deceased, when the other evidence in the case is tainted and has to be rejected 150 IC 819-11 O.W.N. 951=1934 O 405. See also 164 IC 139=37 Cr.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question

L.J. 990=1936 R. 324, 176 I.C. 683=1938 R. 282 A dying declaration which comes under sec. 32 (1) of the Evidence Act from the point of view of admissibility, should not be put on a different footing from any other piece of evidence, so far as the appraisement of its evidentiary value is concerned. It is always a question of fact as to whether it should be relied upon or not. Merely because a part of the statement is untrue it does not follow that the rest of the dying declaration also should be discarded and disbelieved. If a tribunal finds that a part of it is concocted it would decline to believe the rest of it without corroboration, but the Court or the jury is not debarred from accepting the rest. Declaration of this type ought to be corroborated. 49 C.W.N. 1377=1936 C. 793, 1938 R. 282, 1941 Mad. 290 1941 Pat. 409

DYING DECLARATION, PROOF OF—160 I.C. 597=1936 R. 42 A statement of a deceased person recorded in the absence of the accused is not admissible under sec. 33. Nor is it admissible under sec. 32 (1) unless it is proved by the Magistrate who recorded it or by some one who heard it made. 20 I.C. 220=14 Cr.L.J. 396 Where a dying declaration has to be proved by a Magistrate it is unnecessary for him to repeat the record verbatim in his evidence if he is satisfied that it was correctly recorded, it is sufficient for him merely to refer to the record and testify to its correctness and that it was made by the person and under the circumstances in question. 1941 Rang. L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301 The dying declarations of a deceased person are admissible under sec. 32 (1). The only satisfactory and reliable way of proving the dying declaration of a deceased person is to let the person who recorded it or in whose presence it was recorded directly prove the writing itself. Otherwise the proceedings would be reduced to a farce. No human being can be expected to remember word for word what he had written long ago and either the witness will have to learn the evidence by heart before he enters the witness box or no dying declaration could be proved in a satisfactory manner at all. 176 I.C. 471=1938 Pesh. 33 A dying declaration recorded by a Magistrate is not evidence unless proved by the statement of the Magistrate though he is himself the committing Magistrate in the case. A Court cannot be beyond the rule that every statement placed on the record must be properly proved. Dying declarations are not covered by the provisions of Chap. XLI of the Cr. P. Code. 18 I.C. 883=14 Cr.L.J. 131 A dying declaration reduced to writing but not signed by the deponent is not admissible in evidence but must be proved by the oral testimony of the person who heard it. 23 I.C. 195=70 N.L.R. 19 Notes of police officer relating to

a dying declaration are not admissible in evidence, unless signed by the deponent, but in testifying to it, he can refer to them to refresh his memory. (Ibid) Where a statement is relevant under the provisions of sec. 32 (1), Evidence Act, it is not inadmissible by reason of the fact that the magistrate who recorded it was not competent to record of a witness under sec. 161, Cr. P. Code. 1941 Rang. L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301 Witnesses should not be allowed to prove a dying declaration as if it is a substantial piece of evidence in the case. The relevant fact to be proved is the statement made and that statement is not the document made by the Magistrate. 67 I.C. 577=1924 L. 12 The only way of proving a dying declaration is by the evidence of some witness who heard it made, the witness being at liberty to refresh his memory by referring to the note made by him and read over by him at or about the time the statement is made. 1924 L. 12 See also 49 C. 358=71 I.C. 683, 1930 L. 450 The method of proving a dying declaration is by examining the person who recorded the statement as to what the deceased said or to examine some person or persons who were present at the time and heard the statement being made. Such a statement should go in as a whole or not at all. The Judge cannot admit portions of it, and opportunity should be given to cross-examine the person. 1930 C. 228 A dying declaration recorded by a Magistrate should be proved before it can be accepted as evidence and the fact that the Magistrate was the committing Magistrate makes no difference. 17 P.R. 1917 (Cr.)=14 I.C. 417 Dying declarations are not covered by Ch. XLI of the Cr. P. Code to enable them to be admitted without proof. (Ibid) A dying declaration made after receiving extremeunction should generally be believed to be true and acted upon. 12 I.C. 206=12 Cr.L.J. 528 See also 1941 Mad. 290 The questions and the signs made in reply by a person unable to speak, taken together might properly be regarded as a 'verbal statement' made by a person as to the cause of the death within the meaning of sec. 32 and are therefore admissible in evidence. 49 C. 600=26 C.W.N. 414=1922 C. 409 Gestures made before the death by the person murdered are admissible in evidence, but the opinion of the witnesses as to the meaning of such gestures is not evidence, the interpretation of the gestures being for the Court alone. 1 P. 401=73 I.C. 353 See also 38 Bom. L.R. 818, 173 I.C. 833=1938 P. 153 (Signs and gestures admissible in evidence) It is safer to rely on the dying declaration rather than on the first information report, for a great sanctity is attached to the former as it is expected that the person who is on the verge of death will tell the truth. 178 I.C. 348=1938 O.W.N. 1103 An injured man who is waiting to be operated on should not be subjected to

The existence of any relationship without the meaning of sec 32 (5) includes the non existence of such relationship. Sec. 32 (5) AND (6) "FAMILY PEDIGREE" —Meaning of 1 Luck 700 As ordinarily understood, a pedigree is an ancient family record handed down from generation to generation and added to, as a member of the family dies or is born, but a statement drawn upon a particular occasion, for a specific purpose, by a member of the family, is not a pedigree in the sense in which it is used in sec 32 (6) and has to be treated as a mere declaration made by the person who made or adopted it 16 Mys L J 137=43 Mys H C R 21 As to the presumption of genuineness of pedigree tables, see 105 IC 81, 1928 N 20 Where there are a number of pedigrees put in by the direct ancestors of parties to the case and they are always the same, a fact which cannot be due to chance There is a design in the way they are prepared and that design can only have been to give the correct order 170 IC 950=1938 O W N 1267=1939 Oudh 17 Entries in Panda's register or note books are admissible in evidence upon a question of family pedigree but they should be received with caution and subjected to severe scrutiny in order to guard against the possibility of fabrication 15 IC 625 [30 A 510, 35 A 166=18 M L J 424=13 C W N 1 (P C)] See also 178 IC 950=1938 O W N 1267=1939 O 17 Pedigree—Admissibility—Proof of —Person making the statement not known See 37 A 600=13 A L J 817=30 IC 505 See also 30 A 510 (P C), 8 IC 728, 21 IC 274, (1937) 2 M L J 772 (P C) Objections to the admissibility of evidence taken at a late stage in litigation are not to be encouraged The proper time to object is at the trial when the evidence is tendered 37 A 600=13 A L J 817, 30 IC 505 See also 30 A 510 (P C), 8 IC 274 Statements of deceased mortgagor in mortgage deed admissible to prove relationship 29 IC 974 Panda's bahis are admissible under sec 32 (5) and (6) and sec 90 only if evidence is led to prove the identity, signature and handwriting of the writer The mere fact that such bahi is old is no justification for admitting it either under sec 32 (5) and (6) or under sec 90 190 IC 597=1940 Lah 245 A purohit's statement regarding relationship is admissible only if it comes within the four corners of sec. 32 (5) and (6) or under sec 50 of the Act 190 IC 597=1940 Lah 245

Secs 32 (2) and 34.—The term "book" as used in secs 32 (2) and 34 of the Evidence Act implies a collective unity of sheets even at the time that the entries come to be made. It connotes an intention that it should serve as a permanent record. But beyond these two ideas it is not necessary that it should consist of a particular number of sheets or that it should be bound in a particular way. A number of sheets of paper stitched into a book before the entries have begun to be made, each entry covering both the sheets, i.e., the entry beginning on the left page and running on into the right page, and kept by a creditor as an account of his cash receipts and disbursements is a "book" within the meaning of secs 32 and 34, judged by the standards prevailing amongst Indians who keep private books of account not meant for trade purposes. Entries in such a book are admissible in evidence under sec 32 (4), and the entries to be admissible need not necessarily be against the pecuniary interest of the persons making the entries 44 L W 467=1936 M. 875.

SEC 34 BOOKS "REGULARLY KEPT IN THE COURSE OF BUSINESS"—MEANING OF—14 Cr. LJ 262=19 IC 531 As to what constitutes "regularly kept" accounts and as to the effect of irregularity in keeping accounts, see 95 IC 128=1926 N 407, 138 IC 716, 9 O WN 932 See also 4 B 576, 13 CLJ 139=8 IC 81, 13 IC 678, 7 IC 1011 Sec 34 cannot be read as meaning that there should be independent evidence, besides the entries in books of account, that such and such articles valued at such and such amount were supplied on such and such date What is necessary to be seen in each case is whether besides the entries in the account books, there is any evidence to prove that the transactions referred to in the entries actually took place In the case of transactions which are numerous and which extend over some length of time it is not reasonable to expect independent evidence to be given to prove each and every particular transaction In such case the genuineness of the account books, if they are regularly kept in the course of business, will be the determining factor But mere proof of the correctness of the entries in the account books would not be enough There must be some evidence to corroborate those entries The evidence of the person who wrote the account books and in whose presence the transactions took place would be the best corroboration Since he cannot possibly have independent recollection of the various transactions, he may, as provided in sec 159 of the Evidence Act, refresh his memory by referring to the account books. But, it is not necessary for him to prove that such and such articles valued at specific amounts were supplied on specified dates If he proves the entries written by him and states that the transactions referred to in those entries actually took place in his presence or to his knowledge, the effect would be the same Where however, the dispute between the parties is confined to some particular items only, specific evidence may be available and should be insisted upon to prove those particular transactions. Mere general evidence to prove that the account books were regularly kept is not enough. 20 Pat 273=22 Pat LT 383=1941 Pat 430. The rule that plaintiff's own statement on oath in support of entries can be sufficient to support the entries in his Bahies so as to fix the defendant with liability is applicable only if it is found that the plaintiff's books are regularly kept in the course of business and free from any doubt. It is essential that entries of all the available Bahies (e.g.) Rokar, Pakk and Kachi, Nakal and Khata relating to the money claimed should be filed along with the plaint. The tendency on the part of creditors to base their claim solely on entries in Khata Bahi is to be strongly deprecated. 1939 MLR 216 (Civ). It is only the account books that are properly kept that are admissible in evidence as relevant. 51 A 519=27 ALJ 115=1929 A 170. A book of account may be said to be regularly kept although the book is not entered up from day to day or from hour to hour as the transactions take place. 38 CWN 861. Account prepared at considerable intervals from memory or possibly inadequate materials cannot be treated as proof of the actual income and expenditure of the estate to which they relate although they may be useful in cases where they corroborate other evidence. 51 M 291=45 MLJ 703. It is a matter of intrinsic evidence as to whether the books in question were books of account and kept regularly in the regular course of business. The only limitation imposed by the statute is that the statement, contained in the account books "shall not alone be sufficient to charge any one with liability." The value of the entries is corroborative and cannot be used as independent evidence to charge any person with liability. 51 A 864. 1930 A 38. See also 1930 ALJ 987, 1936 CWN 582, 16 Luck 36. Entries in account books unless corroborated not sufficient to fasten liability. 1930 ALJ 987. Proof of accounts see 100 IC 803=1937 N 177. Under sec 34, the production of account books alone is not enough to make a person liable. But it is a question of fact as to how much evidence is required to create the liability when taken together with books of account. Every case shall have to be decided on its own merits. In a case where the witness, who produces the account books, is reliable and has personal knowledge, the Court may accept his statement as enough proof combined with the books of account. In cases however in which the witness is not reliable at all, the Court would require more proof. 1937 Pesh 103. If in addition to the production by the plaintiff of account books regularly kept in the course of business, there is evidence of witnesses who prove a number of items claimed by the plaintiff, the requirements of sec 34 are fulfilled. 35 PLR 539. "Books" mean sheets of paper permanently bound. Unbound sheets are not books of account. 15 Cr LJ 241=23 IC 193. It is hardly proper to stigmatise the books of a respectable firm as books which it is not difficult to fabricate without coming to a specific finding that the books produced were as a matter of fact fabricated and without giving reasons therefor. 14 PLT 61=1933 P 145. Where a number of blank spaces are left in the rokar bahi in different places the conclusion by the Court that it is unreliable is fully justified. 41 PLR 295.

As to what constitutes being kept in the regular course of business, see 4 B 576. Although the actual entries in books of account are relevant, the book itself is not relevant to disprove an alleged transaction by the absence of any entry concerning it. 10 C 1024, 30 C 24. LETTERS PASSING BETWEEN OFFICIALS BEFORE FINAL DECISION IS REACHED.—ADMISSIBILITY.—The very wording of sec 35 conveys the idea of a duty imposed upon the maker of the entry by law or his official position to record the information he possesses or has gathered in an official document of the nature described therein. It further imports that the entry will be of a permanent nature and thus excludes all such writings as are merely of an ephemeral character, and in so far as they do not incorporate the result of personal inquiries they are not intended to be used for reference in future. Another idea which runs underneath this section is that the person making the entry should be such as is invested with authority to record a decision which, so far as the matter before him is concerned, will be final. It thus excludes all views expressed before the final stage is reached and makes only those decisions relevant which constitute the final word in the matter. Hence letters which have passed between the various officials cannot be admitted under sec. 35 so as to make the remarks made therein as legal evidence in the case, and if the final conclusions arrived at are recorded in the settlement papers, those are the only documents which can be admitted in evidence. 38 P.L.R. 748=1936 L. 37. ILLUSTRATIVE CASE LAW.—Entries in public records consequent upon a decree are admissible under sec. 35. 16 P. 258—18 P.L.T. 257—41 C.W.N. 577=1937 P.C. 69=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 631 (P.C.). The depositions of witnesses in an heirship inquiry under sec. 71 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code are inadmissible as substantive evidence relating to title but they might be used as corroborating or contradicting the witnesses examined in the case. 35 Bom.L.R. 118=144 I.C. 442=1933 B. 126. So also family traditions recorded by settlement officer. 163 I.C. 770=1936 O. 340. R. 72 of the Madras Registration Rules requires the Registrar to place on record a summary of the evidence taken by him when enquiring under sec. 41 (2), Registration Act, into the execution of a will or authority to adopt. This summary would be admissible, quantum valet, under sec. 35, Evidence Act. 1933 M.W.N. 1148. Where a deposition of a witness had been recorded in the ordinary way, that record and not an abstract of the evidence in the judgment, is the proper evidence of the statement, but where the Court has acted upon an oral admission and recorded in its judgment which constitutes the only official record of it, it is admissible in evidence under sec. 35. 1933 M. 184=142 I.C. 518, 40 L.W. 310. 41 A final judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction, which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specific thing, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is relevant when the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such thing, is relevant that any legal character, which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation, that any legal character, to which it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment, '[order or decree] declares it to have accrued to that person, that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment, '[order or decree] declared that it had ceased or should cease, and that anything to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment, '[order or decree] declares that it had been or should be his property

Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof—

Sec 41—On this section, see 2 MHC R 276 14 MIA 367 6 B 703 7 WR 338 (FB) The section applies to the foreign judgments of a competent Court no less than to domestic judgments Secunderabad is for the purpose of insolvency a foreign Court and an order of adjudication passed by the Court at Secunderabad is operative in British India 54 M 727 61 V LJ 774 See also 43 LW 75=1936 M 197 A declaration of a legal right is a different thing from a declaration of a legal character The word character means status it is something more than a mere right The declaration of a person's right operates against a particular person or group of persons against whom the right is claimed whereas a man's status is something which defines his position not in relation to any particular person or group of persons but in relation to the rest of the world his status distinguishes him from the rest of the world To say that a person is not a partner of a firm is not to declare his status or legal character it is merely to declare his position with respect to the particular firm Therefore, a finding of the Insolvency Court that a certain person is not a partner of the insolvent firm does not confer upon or take away from him any legal character within the meaning of sec. 41 and hence is not a judgment in rem 190 IC 337=1940 Cal 225

JUDGMENT IN REM AND IN PERSONAM—There is a broad distinction between the effect of a judgment in rem and a judgment in personam The point adjudicated upon in a judgment in rem is always as to the status of the res and is conclusive against the world as to that status, whereas in a judgment in personam the point, whatever it may be which is adjudicated upon

(it being as to the status of the res), is conclusive only between the parties or privies 22 S L R 105=1928 Sind 121

JUDGMENT IN REM—No Court can pronounce a judgment in rem outside the state in which the Court exercises jurisdiction unless such judgment affects either a thing situate, or a person domiciled, within such state. Where the Court of a state gives a judgment affecting the status of a person domiciled within its territory, such judgment is treated by the comity of nations as analogous to a judgment in rem and as such binding all the world over. There is no rule of law under which, by the comity of nations, the Courts of one country are bound to accept as conclusive, on a question as to its own law and in a matter upon which it is called upon to adjudicate, the judgment of a foreign Court. There is no rule of international law which requires a British Indian Court to accept the judgment of the Supreme Court of His Britannic Majesty, Alexandria as the law of domicile of a deceased, which is the domestic law of British India, as binding outside the limits of that Court's jurisdiction. See 41 of the Evidence Act cannot be read as going further than the rule of international law applicable elsewhere. The section clearly deals with what are known as judgments in rem though that expression is not used in the section. The words 'competent Court' in sec 41 mean the Court of any country which is competent to pass a judgment in rem. I L R (1938) B 529=1938 B 394 Hadia, J—In order to be a judgment in rem binding on the world, there must be a finding on status which is not only the foundation of the judgment but is necessary for it. It cannot be conclusive if it relates to a matter which need not have been controverted or which was not material or which only came collaterally into question or which was only incidentally cognizable. The only judgment in rem as to status absolutely is the judgment pronounced not only according to the law of domicile but by the Court of domicile. I L R (1938) B 529=40 Bom L R 571=1938 B 394. See also (1939) 1 M L J 499. No judgment except that passed by a Court in the exercise of probate matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction upon any matters indicated in sec 41, can have the effect of a judgment in rem and therefore a judgment holding that A is not the adopted son of B is not conclusive against the whole world. 26 A L J 797. 1928 A 395. In order that declaration of title to specific thing should have the conclusive character as against the whole world, it is not enough to show that under the judgment of the Insolvency Court one has become entitled to a specific thing but his title to such a thing must have been declared not as against any specified person but absolutely. A decree declaring that A is entitled to a debt is not an absolute declaration but only made against a specified person, so it is not conclusive proof of title to a debt. 54 M 601=1931 M 341=61 M L J 229 (S B). The legal characters that can be conferred or taken away in the exercise of the jurisdiction mentioned in sec 41 do not include the state of being a partner. 22 S L R 105=110 I C 730 (2). A decree granted by a Court not exercising matrimonial jurisdiction, in a suit under sec 42 of the Specific Relief Act, that the plaintiff in that suit was no longer the wife of the defendant is not a judgment in rem to which sec 41 of the Evidence Act will apply. Such a decree is one which falls under sec 43, Specific Relief Act. 36 Bom L R 1021. So also a division in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. 11 R 198=1933 R 250. So also an order in lunacy. 56 M 904=1933 M 624=65 M L J 279. But it is still relevant and binding upon the parties thereto and those who claim under them just like any other judgment of a Civil Court. 65 M L J 279. A judgment inter partes in a heirship proceeding is not a judgment in rem so as to be binding on a stranger. 1933 B 126=35 Bom L R 118. Decision as to custom—Relevancy. See 40 P L R 29=1938 L 309.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION—Judgment in Probate Court is a judgment in rem and binding on all parties and is final. 9 P 698. As to the finality of order granting letters of administration on condition of appellant executing bond, see 43 C W N 824. A judgment of the Probate Court is inadmissible in evidence in a proceeding under sec 193, Penal Code, for perjury committed in a testamentary suit. 76 I C 417=1924 C 104, 8 P L T 510=1927 P 61, 5 Mys L J 107. Such grant is no bar on matters not in issue in administration proceedings. 1924 C 104.

The decision of the Admiralty Court restoring the certificate of an officer of a ship which had been suspended is a judgment in rem so far as the status and certificate of that officer is concerned. The decision is not binding on a person who was not a party to that suit. 1939 Sind 349.

ORDER OF INSOLVENCY COURT—An order adjudicating a person as an insolvent and vesting his property in the Official Receiver no doubt operates as a judgment in rem, but the grounds on which the order is based have no such effect. 110 I C 730 (1)=1928 Sind 121. Refusing to adjudicate a person a bankrupt is not a judgment in rem. See 46 M L J 589=1924 M 622. So also order vacating order of adjudication against one partner. 1928 Sind 121. But an order of adjudication is a judgment in rem. 46 M L J 589. A foreign judgment declaring that a person is the adopted son of a Hindu widow is binding on the Courts in British India in a suit relating to immovable property in British India belonging to that widow. It is true that the judgment of the foreign Court declares the party to be the adopted son is not a judgment in rem under sec 41, but inasmuch as the Courts of British India recognise the validity of the declaration of status by a foreign Court in a matter of succession to movable property in British India, because the personal law applies, the same should be recognised in a matter of succession

Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in sec 41

42 Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in sec 41 are relevant if they relate to matters of a public nature relevant to the enquiry; but such judgments, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they state

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a trespass on the same land, in which C alleged the existence of the same right of way, is relevant, but it is not conclusive proof that the right of way exists proved by the adverse party. It cannot be said that it applies only in a suit for revocation. A judgment in a probate suit is no doubt a judgment in rem but it can be contested on the ground of fraud or collusion. A stranger to a suit in which a decree in rem has been passed may impeach that decree for fraud and have it set aside if the fraud be proved. Value of expert opinion as to signature in language which expert cannot read or write 1933 P 559. See also 1936 A L J 317=1936 A 135. In a case of forgery the only chief evidence being an expert's examination of the forged documents as compared with the other documents alleged to be in the handwriting of the accused the other documents must be strictly proved to be in his handwriting 36 M 159=22 M L J 770. A mere statement therefore by a witness that it is in the handwriting of the accused is no evidence if he is not able to say how long ago they were written 36 M 159. In arriving at a conclusion of the authorship of the forged document, the expert should show marked peculiarities in the handwriting of the accused which are reproduced in the forged document and when the writing has no such peculiarities the comparison is of no consequence and cannot be relied on. Also the fact that the disputed samples are put separately from the standard ones for the examination lessens its usefulness 36 M 159. A conviction cannot be based on an expert's comparison if it is not supported by corroborative evidence 36 M 159. Where the statement of a person does not show that he is an 'expert' in the art of handwriting his evidence can be ruled out as being inadmissible 31 Punj L R 109=1930 L 336. Where a handwriting expert was privately consulted by a party before he was produced in Court and he was produced as his opinion was favourable to that party much importance cannot be attached to his evidence 39 PLR (J & K) 54.

FINGER PRINT—If a finger print expert has not been cross-examined as to the grounds of his opinion and as to the test to which he had put a particular finger print the weight to be attached to such witness's evidence cannot be diminished by applying to it, considerations to which the witness's attention was never directed 21 Cr L J 257=55 IC 273 (P), 35 C W N 863=1931 C 441. See also 97 IC 335=1926 P 575, 30 C W N 373=1926 C 531. A court is not bound to accept the evidence of an expert, such as a finger print expert, even though there are no special reasons for not accepting it. The expert, however, must be given an opportunity of explaining to the Court the reasons for his opinion, as it is only after hearing the expert's reasons and elucidation that the Court would be in a position to express a sound opinion whether or not the expert's opinion is satisfactory 53 L W, 396=(1911) 1 M L J 475. The value of the expert evidence depends largely on the cogency of the reasons on which it is based. In general, it cannot be the basis of conviction unless it is corroborated by other evidence 1936 A L J 317=1936 A 165. If in a case of denial of the execution of a document the direct evidence of the witnesses is of a very unsatisfactory nature, the Court can rightly rely on the opinion of a finger-print expert 42 PLR (J & K) 343. Conviction based on the sole testimony of finger print expert though not safe yet legal 1928 P 120=6 P 305. It is going too far to say that the Court must insist upon corroboration of the evidence of a finger print expert. On the other hand the Court must be careful not to delegate its authority to a third party. The Court has to be satisfied that the accused is guilty, and the Court cannot hold him guilty merely because an expert comes forward and says that in his opinion the accused must be guilty. The Court must satisfy itself as to the value of the evidence of the expert in the same way as it must satisfy itself of the value of other evidence. The Court has to rely on the expert upon two distinct points, first of all, on the question of similarity between the marks, which is a question of fact on which the Court can, and should with the assistance of the expert satisfy itself, and secondly on the point which is one for expert opinion, whether it is possible to find the finger prints or thumb impressions of two individuals corresponding in as many points of resemblance as are shown to exist between the impressions found in the case before the Court and those of the accused. When the expert tells the Court that it is impossible to find so many characteristics identical in the finger prints of two persons as are found in the case, and when that statement entirely agrees with what one has read on the subject in scientific books, the Court need not hesitate in accepting the opinion 60 B 187=38 Bom L R 160=1936 B 151. Where the defendant is illiterate and the genuineness of a paper said to have been executed by him in dispute and the decision of the question depends upon the genuineness of the finger print the parties should be allowed if they want to examine experts 141 IC 767=1933 P 159. It is quite clear that the science, if it could be so called of foot prints has not yet progressed very far. But there is no doubt whatever that evidence of similarity of the impressions of the foot, shod or unshod, given by a foot print expert is admitted by the Courts. Such evidence comes under the head of circumstantial evidence. It is not the opinion of the expert that is of any importance but the facts that the expert has noticed. A person who has made a study of the prints made by the human foot is better

(a) The question is, whether the death of A was caused by poison.

The opinion of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died, are relevant.

The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by A commonly show unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the acts which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or contrary to law, are relevant.

(c) The question is, whether a certain document was written by A. Another document is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

FOOT PRINT EXPERT—The opinion of a footprint expert should not be taken as conclusive. The Judge must form his own opinion with regard to the identity of the foot prints. It is not proper for a Judge to be guided in such matters entirely by the evidence of an expert. The expert's opinion is valuable but it must be supported by statements of facts, the accuracy or otherwise of which can be verified by the Judge. 1940 M W N 761=52 L W 198=1941 Mad 88. See also 1942 Sind 11 cited under S 57, supra.

THUMB IMPRESSION—The question of identity of thumb mark is a question of fact and the evidence of the expert is only a guide to the discretion of the Court. 9 Mys LJ 444. If the finger prints are clear enough to sustain an argument there is no reason why an argument by way of deduction should not be as sure a foundation for a conclusion and it may be a better one than any based on direct evidence. There is nothing in the so called science of finger print or the qualifications of an expert in it which need deter a Court from applying its own eyes and its own mind to the evidence and verifying the results submitted to it by the witness. 46 M 715=69 IC 374. 9 P R (Cr) 1914. 27 IC 203. If a Court wishes to admit in evidence a report of a thumb-impression expert then the Court should insist on the production of the expert as a witness in the case in order that his examination and cross examination be conducted in open Court and unless this is done the report does not by itself become evidence in the case. 1935 A W R 76=1935 A 142. Taking thumb-impression of accused in Court for purpose of comparison is legal. 50 M 462=53 M L J 597.

SECS 45 AND 49 GAMBLING—Gambling cannot be considered to be either an art or a science within the meaning of sec 45 so as to entitle a police officer to go into the witness box and speak as an expert that in his view, based on experience in other cases certain harmless documents such as slips, which he calls betting slips are instruments of gaming. It may be that under sec 49 a police officer might give evidence that he had had a long experience amongst people who indulged in satta gambling in a particular district, and from that experience supported by instances which he should be prepared to give so as to establish his means of knowledge, he was satisfied that a system or code prevailed among such persons, and he might then express an opinion (which would be relevant under the section) that the slips in question were prepared in accordance with that system or code and had a certain meaning. But he is not entitled merely to express the opinion that unintelligible documents found in the room of a man charged with gambling must be records of gambling transactions. It is for the Court to decide what the documents mean. 39 Bom L R 613.

Explanation—A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when in the ordinary course of business, documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him.

D is B's broker, to whom B habitually submitted the letters purporting to be written by A for the purpose of advising with him thereon.

NOTES

Sec 47—See also Notes under secs 45 and 46. As to sufficiency of evidence, see 1934 N 204. Where a witness deposes that a certain document is in the handwriting of the accused, the degree of his acquaintance with that handwriting will affect the value, though not the admissibility of his evidence. 1936 A.L.J. 317. 1936 A 165. When a witness says that a particular document is in the handwriting of a certain person whom he knows, it is evidence of a fact. The fact that the witness does not also say that he knows and is acquainted with the handwriting of the person concerned does not render that evidence inadmissible. That is legal evidence of the handwriting of that person. The witness need not say in the first instance that he knows the handwriting. It is the duty of the opposite party to explore in cross-examination the sources of his knowledge, if he is not satisfied with the testimony of the witness as it stands. Nor would the fact that the document is not before the Court render such evidence inadmissible. 178 I.C. 324=1938 P.W. 403=1938 P 497. Although it is true that under the Evidence Act comparison of handwriting is legitimate enough and the view of persons competent to express opinions may be in many cases of considerable value, the opinions of those who have not carefully studied the art of calligraphy is not as a rule of very great utility. Indeed so uncertain and inexact is the science of the study of calligraphy that it has been for some years past the tendency to regard evidence, even of experts as of somewhat inconclusive character. The mere fact that there is a resemblance between the signature alleged to be false and a signature admitted to be genuine does not carry great weight. NOTES given in this section of the facts of which the Court shall take judicial notice is far from complete and Anglo-Indian Courts take judicial notice of the ordinary course of nature the meaning of English words and all other matters which they are directed by any other Act to notice such as in Bengal lists of land holders who have not made road cess returns (Beng Act IV of 1880 Sec 19) in Madras by laws framed by the Commissioners of Police (Mad Act III of 1866 sec 4) in Bombay notifications in the Gazette (Bom Act V of 1866 sec 4) in Oudh the list of talukdars and grants published by the Chief Commissioner (Act I of 1868 sec. 10) (Whiteley Stokes Vol II p. 837) See also 1937 P. 463 (Sifton's Settlement Report) In 10 C.L.R. 469 the Court refused to take judicial notice of the seal of a Kazi or Sudr Amin whose appointment said to have been made about 1870 was not proved. Though Courts take judicial notice of judgments it does not follow that all statements of facts contained in judgments must be taken judicial notice of 19 S.L.R. 576=1926 Snd 161 The Courts cannot take judicial notice of theft on Railways 1928 L. 837 The Court can take judicial notice of the fact that the present political movement is in fact a movement prejudicial to the public safety or peace 36 C.W. 1138

SIGNATURE OF A GAZETTED OFFICER—The Court can take judicial notice of the signature of gazetted officer of the British Government and therefore the genuineness of his signature is not a matter which unless the Court deems it necessary need be proved. The applicability of the sub-section is not contingent on the exhibition of a copy of the Fort St. George Gazette containing a notification of his appointment as such officer 44 M.L.J. 507 72 I.C. 515=1923 VI 600 As to judicial notice of power-of-attorney given under seal of notary public, see 41 Bom L.R. 530

(13) the rule of the road ²[on land or at sea]

In all these cases³ and also on all matters of public history, literature, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference

If the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact, it may refuse, to do so, unless and until such person produces any such book or document as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so

58 No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which,

Facts admitted need not be proved before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule or pleading in force at the time they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings

Provided that the Court may, in its discretion require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions

OF ORAL EVIDENCE

Proof of facts by oral evidence 59 All facts, except the contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence

Oral evidence must be direct 60 Oral evidence must, in all cases whatever, be direct, that is to say—if it refers to a fact which could be seen, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it, if it refers to a fact which could be heard, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he heard it, if it refers to a fact which could be perceived by any other sense or in any other manner, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he perceived it by that sense or in that manner, if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds

Provided that the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinions are held, may be proved by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable

Provided also that, if oral evidence refers to the existence or condition of any material thing other than a document, the Court may, if it thinks fit, require the production of such material thing for its inspection

Primary evidence

62 Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court

Explanation (1)—Where a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document

Where a document is executed in counterpart, each counterpart being executed by one or some of the parties only, each counterpart is primary evidence as against the parties executing it

Explanation (2)—Where a number of documents are all made by one uniform process, as in the case of printing, lithography or photography, each is primary evidence of the contents of the rest, but, where they are all copies of a common original, they are not primary evidence of the contents of the original

Illustration

A person is shown to have been in possession of a number of placards, all printed at one time from one original. Any one of the placards is primary evidence of the contents of any other, but no one of them is primary evidence of the contents of the original

Secondary evidence

63 Secondary evidence means and includes—

- (1) certified copies given under the provisions hereinafter contained¹,
- (2) copies made from the original by mechanical processes which in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy, and copies compared with such copies,
- (3) copies made from or compared with the original,
- (4) counterparts of documents as against the parties who did not execute them,

Sec 62—One specimen of a newspaper is not a copy of another specimen of the same newspaper of the same date. There is no relation between them of copy and original. They are all counterpart originals each being primary evidence of the contents of the rest. 1930 L 371. To bring document under Expl II to sec 62, the whole document, together with the signature thereto, if any, must be made by one uniform process. Where a letter together with several copies are prepared by one process namely, typing on a typewriter, and one of them alone is afterwards signed separately, but the rest were only installed, it cannot be said that the signature on the one and the initials on the rest have been made by one uniform process. The copies therefore cannot be held to be a primary evidence of the letter. 1937 M 806=(1937) 2 M L J 381

CI (3)—See 1924 N 375, 20 L W 719. A printed copy of the depositions of a party to the former suit made in English, which depositions came up to the Madras High Court in 1900 on appeal is admissible in evidence as it is the practice of the Madras High Court since 1900 after Government Press took up the printing of the High Court papers that before giving the final order for striking off, it would be compared with the original. An abstract translation which does not purport to be a 'copy' or even a full and complete translation of the document but is merely a summary of its terms is inadmissible. 39 P L R 602=1937 L 370.

An uncertified copy of a deposition can be used as secondary evidence only if it can be regarded as a copy made from or compared with the original. (c) A copy transcribed from a copy, but afterwards compared with the original is secondary evidence, but the copy not so compared is not secondary evidence of the original, although the copy from which it was transcribed was compared with the original

(d) Neither an oral account of a copy compared with the original, nor an oral account of a photograph or machine copy of the original, is secondary evidence of the original

There is nothing in S 54 of the Income tax Act which prohibits a party from putting in evidence a certified copy of an income-tax return if that return is a public document. It would be putting an unwarranted restriction on the words "documents forming the act or records of the acts" in S 74 (1) of the Evidence Act to say that they should be confined to those parts of an income tax record which the Income tax Officer has himself prepared and to exclude documents, which he has himself called for or which have been admitted to the record for the purposes of the assessment. Where though a person purports to be an attesting witness and is called at the trial for the purpose of proving the execution of a mortgage deed, but his evidence has not been accepted as evidence upon which any reliance could be placed in such case, the contention that the provisions of S. 68 had been complied with and that no further evidence of due execution and attestation of the mortgage was necessary, cannot be accepted 43 C.W.N. 669=1939 P.C. 117=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 762 (P.C.).

PRACTICE—Attestation being a mixed question of law and fact cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal 97 I.C. 611=1926 M.W.N. 559. Where in spite of the best efforts of the plaintiff, the attesting witness could not be served with summons and by the time of the appeals the witness was dead Held, that whether under the amendment to S. 68 or S. 69, it was open to the plaintiff to prove the document by other means. His own evidence held in the circumstances sufficient for the purpose 144 I.C. 89=1933 M. 612. No doubt only one attesting witness need be called, if that attesting witness speaks to attestation by the attesting witnesses. But if he does not do so it is necessary to prove that the deed was properly attested by those other attesting witnesses. Where it is impossible to call any attesting witnesses and where all that can be proved is their hand writing it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that the persons who purported to have signed were in fact attesting witnesses 1941 R. 122. Where the executant of a mortgage deed, the writer of a deed and the attesting witnesses have all died, having regard to the new definition of attestation in S. 3, T.P. Act, and to the varied mode of proving a registered document as amended by S. 68, Evidence

Act, it is sufficient to satisfy the Court that the execution which was not specifically denied was so probable that a prudent man ought under the circumstances of the case to act upon the supposition that it was so executed. 1929 S. 235. No attempt to prove attestation of mortgage deed—Document cannot be used as evidence 1929 A. 389. Execution of mortgage deed not specifically denied—Need not be proved 30 Bom. It is not the law that a plaintiff in a suit on a mortgage bond should call all the attesting witnesses to the bond who are alive before he can take advantage of S. 71. Defendant admitting execution of mortgage deed but denying attestation—Duty of plaintiff to prove due attestation. 1936 A.L.J. 297=1936 A. 169. Where on the production of a certified copy of a registered deed of gift, the party challenging it does not specifically deny that it is the copy of the deed, according to the proviso to S. 68 the production of attesting witnesses to prove execution and attestation of the deed is not essential 1939 L. 414. Where execution of a document is not denied, the execution and attestation of the document can be proved by other evidence, and it is unnecessary to call any of the attesting witnesses 190 I.C. 413=1940 R. 184. See also 1941 R. 122. Where the defendant not only denies the execution of the suit mortgage deed but also states in his written statement that it is not genuine, the execution of the mortgage is "specifically denied" and the proviso to S. 68, Evidence Act, becomes applicable and it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to produce at least one of the attesting witnesses 1941 O. 89=1940 O.W.N. 1077. A deed of relinquishment is not a document required by law to be attested, so it can be proved by the unchallenged evidence of the alleged writer thereof 14 L.R. 466 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 637. A document executed in England and requiring to be attested under the English law but not requiring to be attested under Indian law, relating to property in India may be proved only by proving the signature of the executant. 7 P. 520=111 I.C. 57=1928 P. 304. The proviso to S. 68, Evidence Act, only removes the necessity of calling an attesting witness to prove the execution of the documents therein referred to and does not purport to relieve the party of the necessity of proving a mortgage in the form prescribed under S. 59, T.P. Act 11 R. 26=1933 R. 6 (1929 P. 422, Diss.). The word "execution" as used in the proviso to S. 68 of the Evidence Act in the case of mortgage bonds which the law requires to be attested by witnesses means and includes all the series of acts which would give validity to the instrument qua mortgage, i.e., the word "execution" used in that section not only means signing by the borrower but the attestation of the signature by the witnesses as required by S 59 of the T P Act. If, therefore, in a suit on a mortgage bond the defendant admits the signature but denies the attestation, it must be taken that he denies the execution of the mortgage bond and thus denial requires the plaintiff to prove the mortgage bond by examining one of the attesting witnesses, if available. I L R (1937) 1 C 507=41 C W N 306. See also 43 C W N 1025=1939 C 688. The word 'execution' as used in the proviso to S 68 Evidence Act in the case of a mortgage bond means and includes not only the signature of the executant, but the whole series of acts or formalities which are necessary to give the document validity as a mortgage deed, like attestation, etc. 1940 O W N 1077=1941 O 89. See also 43 C W N 1025=1939 C 688.

Sees 68 and 70—The execution contemplated in S 70 is not a mere signing of the document, but a due execution or execution in accordance with what the law requires for a particular document. In the case of document required to be attested, there can be no execution unless there has been a signing by the executant in the presence of the attesting witnesses, and execution is not complete unless the deed is attested by two witnesses. If a question of attestation is put in issue, it is incumbent on the plaintiff to prove that the document has been duly attested before S 70 can be relied on, and the plaintiff is not relieved of the obligation of calling an attesting witness under S 68 of the Act. A statement by the executant that when he signed the deed there were no alterations or erasures and there were no attesting witnesses to the document etc., is not an admission of execution at all but a denial of execution. 46 L W 610=1938 M 43=I L R 1938 M 523.

Sees 68 and 72—The definition of bond in S 2 (5) of the Stamp Act is not exhaustive, nor is it proper to infer from the definition in an Act which deals with stamp matters only that it means that such a document is required by law to be attested. Therefore it is S 72 which applies to the case of a bond and not S 68, and examination of the attesting witnesses to prove execution is not necessary. 188 I C 638=1940 N L J 70=1940 N 240.

See 69 MORTGAGE—PROOF OF IN CASE OF DEATH OF ATTESTING WITNESS.—See 24 A 615=10 A L J 217, 11 N L R 9=27 I C 866, 35 A 364=11 A L J 379. Where a mortgage deed was produced regularly signed and attested and it was proved that the signature of all attesting witnesses who were dead were in their handwriting and that of the mortgagor was in his handwriting, held, that there was a presumption of its due execution and it lay upon the other side to rebut it. 39 A 112=15 A L J 167. See also 41 I C 171. Admission of execution recorded in registration endorsement is not admissible to prove execution. 20 O C 18=38 I C 605. See also 13 N L R 197, 1928 N 244. It must be proved that "no attesting witness can be found." The party must ask the Court to exhaust all processes of the Court as by adopting the procedure in O 16, r 10, C P Code, for the arrest of the witness and for the attachment of his property. 7 P 312=1928 P 356 (Ruling before the amending Act XXXI of 1926).

See 70—See I L R (1938) M 523=1938 M 43. The admission here spoken of does not include admissions made before the suit and sought to be proved by witnesses in the suit. 27 C 190. The "admission" contemplated under S 70 of the Evidence Act is an admission made for the purpose of or having reference to the suit, made either in the pleadings or during the course of the trial. The admission of execution contained in some other document such as a power-of-attorney cannot be availed of for the purpose of dispensing with the citation of the attesting witness. 46 L W 610. Where a mortgagor merely does not admit the execution or attestation of the mortgage document and puts the mortgagee to proof, such as by saying that the validity of the mortgage, if any 'is not admitted,' the plea is not one of specific denial of the execution or attestation of the document. In such a case proof of one attestation is quite sufficient. It is only in a case where there is not only a want of an admission but a specific denial of the validity of the mortgage that the mortgagee is called upon to prove attestation of two witnesses. I L R (1937) A 723=1937 A L J 710=1937 A 616. Section applies only to document which is duly attested. 5 R 461=1927 R 233. execution of the mortgage deed (Contra, Jack, 7) 1929 C 441

ADMISSION—MEANING OF—S 70 applies only to an admission made in the course of the proceedings in which the attested document is produced 1928 N 244 Admission of execution at the registration of the document is no admission under this section 1928 N 244

Sec 71—S 71 is applicable only where the attesting witness 'denies or does not recollect the execution of the document' Their Lordships were doubtful whether the description would be applicable to the case of a witness whose evidence was considered unreliable but were willing to assume that the discrepancies were due to deficient recollection It was held on the fact that even assuming that it would be legitimate in the above circumstances to look at the proceedings relating to the registration of the mortgage deed for the purpose of proving its due execution and attestation the plaintiffs had failed to prove the material facts necessary to comply with the provisions of the T P Act 43 C W N 669=1939 P C 117=(1939) 2 M L J 762 (P C) S 71 of the Evidence Act cannot be construed as meaning that the evidence of the executant of a deed required by law to be attested is not admissible unless the attesting witnesses denied or did not recollect the execution of the document There is nothing in the Evidence Act which precludes a party from adducing as a witness to the execution of the deed any person who happened to be present when the deed was executed and actually saw it signed by the executant and by the attesting witnesses The section, while permitting the evidence of the executant of the deed in certain circumstances does not have the effect rendering his evidence or that of other witnesses inadmissible in different circumstances 1937 A L J 161=1937 A 273 S 71 has no application to a case where the attesting witnesses are not before the Court If, therefore the plaintiff takes out summons on one of the attesting witnesses and the witness does not appear in Court that is not enough to let in further evidence under that section In such a case it is the duty of the plaintiff to exhaust all the processes of the Court in order to compel the attendance of any one of the attesting witnesses and when the production of such witnesses is not possible either legally or physically the plaintiff can avail himself of the provisions of S 69 of the Act 69 C L J 454=43 C W N 1025=1939 C 688 The 'other evidence' referred to in S 71 cannot refer to the statement of witnesses who had seen the attesting witnesses sign in the presence of the executant It only means any evidence that may be considered satisfactory by the Court seized of the matter 1941 A M L J 75 The word 'execution' in S 71 not only means signing by the executant but it means and includes attestation as well If, therefore, an attesting witness called by the plaintiff turns hostile, the plaintiff is entitled to prove attestation of the instrument by other evidence as laid down in the section This other evidence includes his own evidence as well, although he is the grantee of the instrument 43 C W N 1084 Under S 50 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) witnesses must sign their names and not merely affix their marks See 3 B 382, 11 C 429, 5 C 738 But initials will be sufficient 15 M 261 A statement of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage deed that they signed the blank paper and not the completed deed is sufficient to attract the operation of this section and entitles the mortgagee to prove execution by evidence other than that of the attesting witnesses 48 I C 724 See also 5 O L J 667=48 I C 538 Where in a mortgage suit the plaintiff called one of the attesting witnesses then alive and when that witness resided he proceeded to prove the document by other evidence, held, that there was a full compliance with the provisions of Ss 68 and 71 of the Act S 71 has no application to a case where the attesting witnesses are not before the Court If, therefore, the plaintiff takes out summons on one of the attesting witnesses and the witness does not appear in Court, that is not enough to let in further evidence under that section In such a case it is the duty of the plaintiff to exhaust all the processes of the Court in order to compel the attendance of any one of the attesting witnesses and when the production of such witnesses is not possible either legally, or physically the plaintiff can avail himself of the provisions of S 69 of the Act 69 C L J 454, 33 C W N 248=1929 C 188 Mortgage suit—Two out of four witnesses dead—Third turning hostile—Fourth witness summoned but refusing to depose—Admissibility of other evidence to prove attestation 1929 C 441

in another judicial proceeding as to the age of a person is very little (Ibid). Before a previous admission can be used against a party it must be put to him and an opportunity afforded to him to explain if it is capable of explanation 12 L.L.J. 161. The presumption mentioned in S 80 could not arise in a case where the statement of a person as to the cause of his death is recorded by a magistrate not authorised by law to record it, and it has to be proved. But where it is recorded as authorised by law, it is not necessary that it should be proved by the magistrate who recorded it when the statement is not made in the presence of the accused. All that is required is that there must be proof of the identity of the person who made the statement 1941 Rang L.R. 258=1941 R. 30. If a person whose dying declaration is recorded by a Magistrate in hospital dies subsequently, the statement made by him in hospital can only be proved by the Magistrate who has recorded it or some one else who heard that statement. But when that person survives and gives evidence at the trial his statement is admissible in evidence for the purpose of corroborating or contradicting him. It is not necessary that the recording Magistrate should be called as witness to prove the statement. A statement recorded by a Magistrate under S 164 Cr P.C. in the course of an investigation is evidence in a judicial proceeding which under S 80 of the Evidence Act can be proved without calling the person recording the same 1941 P.W.N. 622.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—A statement not read over to or corrected by the witness in accordance with law is not admissible against the person making the same 13 Cr.L.J. 569=15 I.C. 985. See also 21 Cr.L.J. 500=56 I.C. 160, 142 I.C. 653=1933 C. 190. As to depositions before Commissioners, see 63 P.L.R. 1900. A deposition not read over to the witness in the presence of the presiding officer does not prove itself under S 80 18 N.L.R. 192=68 I.C. 36=1923 N. 39. Presumption under S 80 can be raised if the deposition is read over by the witness himself in Court 46 C. 893=50 I.C. 660=23 C.W.N. 661 93 I.C. 978=1923 L. 605 (See also C. P. Code, O.VIII r 5). The absence of a certificate by the Judge at the foot of the deposition of its having been read over, etc., does not deprive it of the presumption under S 80 46 C. 893

=50 I.C. 660. The presumption under S 80 that the circumstances under which a document appears to be taken are true, applies to a dying declaration to which a certificate is appended by the Magistrate who recorded it, that it was read over to him and declared to be correct 40 B. 97=31 I.C. 361=17 Bom.L.R. 881. See also 17 Cr.L.J. 23, 9 P.R. 1900 (Gr.), 11 Bom.L.R. 247, 152 I.C. 249=1934 A. 340. Under S 80 confession by any prisoner or by any accused taken in accordance with law and purporting to be signed by the examining Magistrate shall be presumed to be so made. The officer who recorded the confession may be examined as a witness 38 I.C. 100=2 P.L.J. 80. Though a confession duly recorded by a Magistrate may be presumed to be voluntary and as such admissible such admissibility is subject to the restrictions imposed by S 24 61 C. 399=38 C.W.N. 629=1934 C. 636. The statement of an accused person recorded by a Magistrate in a Native State is inadmissible unless the Magistrate himself deposes to it in person 24 I.C. 169=16 Bom.L.R. 261. Sec 85. SECTION IS MANDATORY—See 33 C 625=9 C.W.N 986, 16 C 776. The provisions of S 85 are mandatory and it is open to the Court to presume that all the necessary requirements for the proper execution of the power of attorney have been duly fulfilled. But S 85 is not exhaustive, for there are different legal modes of executing a power of attorney. Under S 57 (6) of the Evidence Act, the Court

86 The Court may presume that any document purporting to be a certified copy of any judicial record of any country not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions is genuine and accurate, if the document purports to be certified in any manner which is certified by any representative of Her Majesty or of the ¹[Central Government] ²[in or for] such country to be the manner commonly in use in that country for the certification of copies of judicial records

³[An officer who, with respect to any territory or place not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions, is a Political Agent therefor, as defined in section 3, Cl. 87. The Court may presume that any book to which it may refer for information on matters of public or general interest, and that any published map or chart, the statements of which are relevant facts, and which is produced for its inspection, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place, by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published

88 The Court may presume that a message, forwarded from a telegraph office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, corresponds with a message delivered for transmission at the office from which the message purports to be sent, but the Court shall not make any presumption as to the person by whom such message was delivered for transmission

89 The Court shall presume that every document, called for and not produced after notice to produce, was attested, stamped and executed in the manner required by law

See 88—TELEGRAM—PROOF THAT IT EMANATED FROM GOVERNMENT—The sanction of Local Government to prosecute a person for an offence under S. 154 A, Penal Code, communicated by telegram must be proved to have emanated from the Government. The Court is forbidden by the express provisions of S. 88 to make any presumption as to the person by whom the telegram was sent. 42 M. 885=37 M.L.J. 81. See 89—Where a party produces an unstamped copy of an instrument by way of secondary evidence the Court may, in the absence of contrary evidence, presume that the original was stamped. 1932 M.W.N. 432. In a suit for redemption, the question was whether the plaintiff was the mortgagor and the defendant the mortgagee. The plaintiff alleged that the mortgage was executed 50 years ago and that the entry as regards mortgage was made in

90 Where any document, purporting or proved to be thirty years old, is produced from any custody which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person, is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested

Explanation—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which, and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be; but no custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable.

This explanation applies also to section 81

the mortgagee's bahi and called upon the defendant to produce it. The defendant denied that he possessed any such bahi. The plaintiff's evidence showed that the entry was made in ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper though required by law as such. Moreover there was no evidence by plaintiff to show that the defendant was in possession of the bahi and was withholding it though called upon to produce it. Held, that no presumption under S 89 could be drawn under the circumstances and as the entry was made in the ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper, no question of presumption arose in such case 1938 L 90

Sec 90—PRESUMPTION—WHEN ARISES—Under S 90 documents more than thirty years old coming from proper custody prove themselves, but there is no presumption that the contents of the documents are true. 40 Bom L.R. 1262 = 1 L.R. (1939) Bom 97—1939 B 59. The presumption under S 90 with regard to documents 30 years old arises in the case of copies as well as originals. If the copy is proved to be a true copy, a presumption may be made in favour of the genuineness of the original. 46 M. 92, 6 O.W.N. 880 = 1929 O 483 (2), 152 I.C. 861 = 11 O.W.N. 1435, 30 N.L.R. 155—1934 N 67. But see also 162 I.C. 527 = 1936 O.W.N. 619—1936 O 298, 1937 R.D. 133, 41 P.L.R. 376 = 1939 L 458, 20 N.L.J. 209. See also 17 Mys L.J. 510, 1939 L 458, 1940 M 273, 1940 A 74. The presumption contained in S 90 cannot apply to a copy that is not itself 30 years old. 1940 N.L.J. 437 = 1940 N 382. See also 1939 L 458, 1939 L 273. The presumption under S 90 is a rebuttable one to be made at the discretion of the Court. It is based on the rule of expediency, and unless the surrounding circumstances satisfy the Court that the document tendered has been produced from proper custody, it would be unsound to admit the document. The Court must insist on a satisfactory account of the origin of the possession being given by the party relying upon the document. The custody may not be in the strictest sense legal custody, but, whether it originated in right or wrong, the origin must be explained. The soundest policy even upon the rule of expediency necessitates circumspection and scrutiny in the examination of the surrounding circumstances before raising the presumption. The Court must therefore examine the surrounding circumstances tending to establish the connection of the party producing the document with the person with whom the document should naturally have been. 40 Bom L.R. 202. S 90 confers no right on any party to compel the Court to draw a presumption as regards any document purporting to be thirty years old and produced from proper custody. 175 I.C. 361 = 40 Bom L.R. 202 = 1938 B 257. When a document is suspicious on the face of it as when an important word is erased and re-written presumption under S 90 does not arise. 95 I.C. 261 = 1926 A 537. Repeated assertions of title in ancient documents being mere recitals are no evidence of what is there recited though actual possession in conformity therewith would constitute prima facie title. 56 C.L.J. 369. The Court is not bound to make the presumption merely because of the alleged age of the document. 31 Bom L.R. 1279, 110 I.C. 415. The Court "may presume". The section does not say that the Court must presume the document to be genuine. 7 Mys L.J. 57, See also 175 I.C. 594 = 1938 A 345, 40 P.L.R. (J & K) 51. The Court can presume the genuineness even of an unregistered document thirty years old from a copy of such document, if the original is proved to have been duly executed, and further it is also proved that the original is lost. 1929 A 561. As to presumption of genuineness of pedigree tables, see 105 I.C. 81. Where a person executes a will and deposits it with the Registrar and the endorsement by the Registrar shows that the will was so deposited by the executant on being identified by two persons, a presumption under S 90 as to execution arises. The presumption however does not cover the question of disposing mind. 1933 L 53, 145 I.C. 241. Presumption not drawn by trial Court—Appellate Court refusing to draw inference—Genuineness of documents decided on evidence—Proper. 108 I.C. 412. Court may presume genuineness of signature authenticating a copy. 56 I.A. 146 = 1929 P.C. 115 = 56 M.L.J. 730 (P.C.). As to the extent of presumption regarding old documents, see 6 L.L.J. 97 = 75 I.C. 57, 82 I.C. 487, 77 I.C. 472, 1924 A 869 = 22 A.L.J. 857, 41 P.L.R. 108. the document is over 30 years old. 61 C. 525=38 C.W.N. 753=1934 C. 772. Apart from S. 90 the Court can make a presumption of fact about the valid execution of a will from a certified copy of the will obtained from the Registration Office, if such presumption is justified by the proved facts and circumstances of the case. 172 I.C. 882=1938 O.W.N. 67=1938 O. 69. The period of 30 years, under S. 90 of the Act, is to be reckoned not from the date upon which the deed is filed in the Courts but from the date on which it having been tendered in evidence, its genuineness or otherwise becomes subject of proof. (5 C.L.R. 135 Foll.) 63 I.A. 85=40 C.W.N. 226=1936 P.C. 15=70 M.L.J. 206 (P.C.), 169 I.C. 402=39 P.L.R. 340.

PROPER CUSTODY—Whether "custody" is proper is a question of fact. 126 I.C. 19. As to proper custody see 94 I.C. 814, 1926 C. 370, 164 I.C. 494=1936 O.W.N. 768. Where a document is written 55 years ago by a licensed stamp-vendor and comes out from proper custody it can claim the benefit of S. 90. 1934 L. 885. As regards the question of possession it is for the Court, to decide in each case whether the custody from which the document is produced is or is not proper and if it considers the custody to be proper it can raise the presumption. Where the lower Court draws the presumption after considering the circumstances of the case the High Court will not interfere in second appeal. 32 P.L.R. 626=134 I.C. 296. See also 38 P.L.R. 322, 152 I.C. 861=11 O.W.N. 1435, 1933 L. 347=142 I.C. 13=34 P.L.R. 356, 1938 A.M.L.J. 63, 1939 O.W.N. 1=1939 O. 96. And where the appellate Court is constrained to do so, the party producing the document should be given an opportunity of supporting the presumption. 145 I.C. 147=1933 A.L.J. 907=1933 A. 443. Where a sale has been made nearly 30 years before the suit is brought and all the parties to the transaction have died it is impossible to expect full and detailed evidence of all the circumstances that gave rise to the transaction and presumptions are permissible to fill in the details which have been obliterated by time. 30 N.L.R. 192=148 I.C. 1033=1934 N. 106. In cases where documents more than 30 years old are being produced only as instances of a particular custom and not as foundation of title, such documents may be admitted in evidence irrespective of the fact whether they come from proper custody or not. 1939 L. 152.

See 91—SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY—Where the terms of a contract have been reduced to writing at the same time as it is made, the document only, or if permissible, a secondary evidence of its contents can be the only evidence available to prove the document under S. 91 the parties are debarred from adducing oral evidence to prove such contract. 22 Pat.L.T. 666, 33 M. 413=11 Cr.L.J. 716, 13 R.D. 68, 5 P.L.T. 45=1940 P. 245. S. 92 only excludes oral evidence to vary the terms of the written contract, and has no reference to the question whether the parties had agreed to contract on the terms set forth in the document. So also S. 91 only excludes oral evidence as to the terms of a written contract. Oral evidence is admissible therefore to show that a document executed by a person was never intended to operate as an agreement but was brought into existence solely for the purpose of creating evidence about some other matter. Even if there were no provisos to Ss. 91 and 92, there is nothing in either section to exclude oral evidence in such a case to show that there was no agreement between the parties and therefore no contract. 63 I.A. 126=59 M. 446=1936 P.C. 70=70 M.L.J. 232 (P.C.). Ss. 91 and 92 do not apply to a will as it is neither a contract, nor a grant nor a disposition of property until the death of the testator makes it operative. S. 92 (4) does not prevent the revocation of a registered will by an unregistered document. 1938 M.W.N. 699=1938 M. 616=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 444. The provisions of S. 91 are not applicable to a permission granted by a Municipal Committee. 120 I.C. 221=1930 N. 130. Having regard to the terms of S. 91, what the Court has got to do is to find out the real contract between the parties. 1928 M. 459. The term "in proof of such matter" must carry with it the term "in disproof of it," because if evidence were to be admitted on one side, it would have to be admitted on the other. Therefore, a Court which allows evidence to prove that a payment endorsed on a promissory note had not been made, violates the provisions of S. 91 of the Evidence Act. 1935 A.L.J. 304=1935 A. 58.

of property, have been reduced to the form of a document, and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, no evidence shall be given in proof of the terms of such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or of such matter, except the document itself, or secondary evidence of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible under the provisions hereinbefore contained

Exceptions—(1) When a public officer is required by law to be appointed in writing, and when it is shown that any particular person has acted as such officer the writing by which he is appointed need not be proved

(2) Wills ¹[Admitted to probate in British India] may be proved by the probate

Explanations—(1) This section applies equally to cases in which the contracts, grants or dispositions of property referred to are contained in one document, and to cases in which they are contained in more documents than one

(2) Where there are more originals than one, one original only need be proved

(3) The statement, in any document whatever, of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section, shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence as to the same fact

C 689 (viii) Warrant it should be produced in a case of assault of process server L.B.R. (1872—1892) 572 A statement made by an accused at a departmental enquiry is not within S 91, as it is not required by law to be reduced to the form of a document. Such confession can be proved at the time of the prosecution 35 A 222=25 IC 321. The confession of an accused made to a Magistrate holding an enquiry is a matter which must be reduced to the form of a document within the meaning of S 91 35 A 260=19 IC 307. Witnesses should not be allowed to prove a dying declaration as if it is a substantial piece of evidence in the case 67 IC 577=1924 L 12. The only way of proving a dying declaration is by the evidence of some witness who heard it made the witness being at liberty to refresh his memory by referring to the note made by him or read over to him at or about the time the statement is made 1924 L 12. The record by Court of deposition is the only evidence admissible of the statement alleged to have been made by the witness and if it is not shown to have been read out to the witness he can't be convicted of perjury 42 M 561=36 M.L.J. 296. S 91 even if it covers a deposition merely excludes oral evidence of its contents but does not make the document itself inadmissible nor prevent its being otherwise proved 74 IC 445=1923 O 119. Where a deposition is not taken in accordance with S 360, Cr P Code, it is inadmissible in evidence and other evidence is shut out by S 91 18 Cr.L.J. 966=42 IC 576. S 91 has no application to matters entered in a special diary under S 172 of the Cr P Code. Oral evidence is admissible to prove statements made to the police by witnesses who heard them made 18 Cr.L.J. 1022=42 IC 766. Unregistered sale-deed and partition deed can be used as evidence to establish the nature of the possession of the person who claims under the deeds. The fact of possession and partition of property can also be proved by oral evidence 98 IC 940=28 Punj.L.R. 88. See also 100 IC 153, 98 IC 448, 92 IC 1028=1926 M 402 (partition deed), 95 IC 584=1926 M 872 (sale-deed), 103 IC 281=1927 M 830, 30 C.W.N. 254=1926 C 705. Where the rent note is one that requires registration and has not been registered it is inadmissible not only to prove the terms of the contract but also to prove the fact that it contained all the terms of the contract. There is no bar, therefore, under S 91 to the reception of other evidence consisting of an entry in the record-of-rights to prove the nature of the tenancy 58 B 419=150 IC 555=36 Bom.L.R. 359=1934 B 194. See also 1938 O.A. 785=1938 O.W.N. 1080, 1939 A.M.L.J. 148. An unregistered patta cannot be admitted in evidence in a suit for possession of land for the purpose of proving the plaintiff's title. Nor can the plaintiff be allowed to prove his title by the production of rent receipts or by the general circumstances of the case. S 49 of the Registration Act and S 91, Evidence Act are a bar to such proof and the plaintiff is not entitled to prove his title and his right to recover possession in that way 18 P.L.T. 1012. Ejectment suit—Permanent occupancy claimed in defence—Compromise not stamped or registered—Decree merely dismissing suit—Held, that the compromise was not admissible to prove the recognition of occupancy rights 14 L.R. 513 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 660. Lease by public authority of agricultural land for 7 years—Defendants bid accepted and he continued in possession for 4 years—Plaintiff's suit in ejectment alleging subsequent agreement of lease for one year in writing. Note by reason of its being insufficiently stamped does not preclude proof of the pre-existing liability by oral evidence 1936 N. 225 When however, the loan is contemporaneous with the execution of an inadmissible P. Note, the debt can be proved by oral evidence independently of the P. Note only if the parties intended at the time of the execution of the P. Note that it was collateral to an oral contract by way of giving security for the loan or making conditional payment of the debt antecedent or contemporaneous 1936 N. 225 See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 37 If, in such a case the defendant repudiates the P. Note as being merely a colourable document, and neither party relies on the document as embodying the substance of the contract, S. 91 does not apply, and the P. Note can be used as corroborative evidence on the point of the actual payment of the money 1936 N. 225 In any event, the plaintiff would be prevented from claiming interest as per terms of the P. Note and interest at best can be allowed only under S. 73, Contract Act, by way of damages 1936 N. 225 See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 37 Where a pronote turns out to be inadmissible for want of proper stamp duty it is open to the party who has lent money on terms recorded in the note to recover his money by proving orally the advance of the loan 1933 N. 57 (2)=144 I.C. 175=59 N.L.R. 131, 139 I.C. 298=1932 O. 235 (F.B.) Note, which is inadmissible in evidence owing to defect in the stamping can sue to recover the debt apart from the note, depends on the circumstances under which the instrument was executed If the note was given in respect of an antecedent debt, or as collateral security or by way of conditional payment or if the note does not embody all the terms of the contract the true nature of the transaction can be proved But if the promissory note embodies all the terms of the contract no suit on the debt will lie as S. 91 of the Evidence Act and S. 35 of the Stamp Act bar the way The fact that the execution of the P. Note is contemporaneous with the borrowing cannot, however, exclude the possibility of the instrument having been given as collateral security or by way of conditional payment I.L.R. (1938) 2 M. 933=1938 M. 782=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 189 (F.B.) Although a loan and a promissory note for the loan form part of the same transaction a suit will lie on the original consideration If there is a loan, that itself gives a cause of action, and the fact that there is a loan can never be a term of the contract contained in the promissory note, it is therefore open to the creditor to prove that there was a loan independently of S. 91 of the Act It does not matter whether the loan was made at the same time as the promissory note which is the evidence of it or whether it is not properly stamped and therefore inadmissible in evidence 40 Bom.L.R. 174=175 I.C. 540=1938 B. 286 But see 53 A. 114=1931 A. 183 (F.B.), 144 I.C. 130=1933 A. 280, 152 I.C. 370=1934 A.L.J.

Sec. 92, Prov. 2—A separate oral agreement on a distinct and collateral matter, although a part of the same transaction would come within proviso (2) of S. 92, if the original instrument is silent on the point which is the subject matter of the agreement. 41 C.W.N. 1053=1937 C. 619. The parties to a conveyance are not in view of the second proviso to S. 92, prevented from proving the existence of a separate oral agreement to the effect that the vendee would proceed no further in the prosecution of his claim for certain money debts not specified in the deed of conveyance and the vendor cannot be prevented from attempting to prove that there was such an agreement. 18 Pat. 518=181 I.C. 184=1939 P. 411. Sec. 92, Prov. 3—It is necessary to distinguish a collateral agreement which alters the legal effect of the instrument from an agreement that the instrument should not be an effective instrument until some condition is fulfilled, or to put it in another form, it is necessary to distinguish an agreement in defeasance of the contract from an agreement suspending the coming into force of the contract. Where a P. Note is, by its express terms, payable on demand that is, at once, the obligation under the note attaches immediately. A collateral oral agreement not to make demand until certain specified condition is fulfilled has the intention and effect of suspending the coming into force of that obligation which is the contract contained in the P. Note. Thus the oral agreement constitutes a condition precedent to the attaching of the obligation and is within the terms of Proviso 3 of S. 92. 40 Bom. L.R. 1075=1938 P.C. 198=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 469 (P.C.). S. 92, Proviso (3) presupposes that in a case to which it could be applied the contract, grant or other disposition of property itself remains intact, but that the condition precedent pleaded must in its very nature be extraneous to the contract, grant or disposition itself and as agreed must come into existence before the obligation attaches thereunder. 41 Bom. L.R. 1263. The words any obligation mean any obligation whatever under the contract and not some particular obligation which the contract may contain. 1932 C. 328=59 C. 106. As to scope of the proviso see ibid. In a suit on a P. Note an agreement suspending the coming into force of the contract contained in the P. Note constituting as it does a condition precedent within the meaning of proviso 3 to S. 92 of the Evidence Act, may be proved. Where the defendant in the suit pleads that the note executed by him which is sued on was only a receipt for the earnest-money for a contract of purchase by the plaintiff, that the purpose of the receipt of money has been wrongly stated in the P. Note, and that it was not intended to attach any obligation to the instrument as such, he is entitled to adduce oral evidence in support

(4) The existence of any distinct subsequent oral agreement to rescind or modify any such contract, grant or disposition of property, may be proved, except in cases in which such contract, grant or disposition of property is by law required to be in writing, or has been registered according to the law in force for the time being as to the registration of documents

(5) Any usage or custom by which incidents not expressly mentioned in any contract are usually annexed to contracts of that description, may be proved

SECS 101 AND 102.—It is on the person who asserts that a transfer is in contravention of S. 12 of the C.P. Tenancy Act, that the burden of proving it lies, for it is his application that would fail, if no evidence at all were given.

SECS 101 105-106.—Per Durrley, J.—The phrase "burden of proof" is used in two distinct meanings in the Indian Evidence Act, viz., the burden of establishing a case and the burden of introducing evidence. In a criminal trial the burden of proving everything essential to the establishment of the charge against the accused lies upon the prosecution, and that burden never changes. This principle is enacted in S. 101 of the Evidence Act and in this section the term "burden of proof" is used in the first of its meanings namely the burden of establishing a case. But it would clearly impose an impossible task on the prosecution if the prosecution were required to anticipate every possible defence of the accused and to establish that each such defence could not be made out, and of this task the prosecution is relieved by provisions of S. 105 and its closely allied section, S. 106. In S. 105 the phrase "burden of proof" is clearly used in its second sense, namely, the duty of introducing evidence. The way of the accused under S. 105 is to introduce such evidence as will displace the presumption of the absence of circumstances bringing the case within an exception in the Penal Code, and will suffice to satisfy the Court that such circumstances may have existed. The burden of the issue as to the non-existence of such circumstances is then shifted to the prosecution which has still to discharge the major burden of proving on the whole case the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The conclusion, therefore, is that if the Court either is satisfied from the examination of the accused and the evidence adduced by him or from circumstances appearing from the prosecution evidence that the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the exception or exceptions pleaded by the accused has been proved or upon a review of all the evidence is left in reasonable doubt whether such circumstances do exist or not the accused, in the case of a general exception is entitled to be acquitted, or in the case of a special exception, can be convicted only of the minor offence. 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83 (F.P.). See also 1931 A.L.J. 619=1931 A. 402 (F.B.). The test is not whether the accused has proved beyond all reasonable doubt that he is innocent, within any exception to the Indian Penal Code, but whether in setting up his defence he has established a reasonable doubt in the case of the prosecution and has thereby earned his right to an acquittal. Per Goodwin Estlin, C.J., 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83 (F.B.).

Secs 102 and 103—SCOPE OF BURDEN OF PROOF ON THE PROSECUTION AND ACCUSED—The burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the 'exception' or 'proviso' is no doubt cast on the accused by S 105, but this does not in any way absolve the prosecution of the burden laid on it by S 102 The burden of proof, so far as the entire 'proceeding' is concerned, remains on the prosecution, even though the burden of the 'fact in issue' pleaded by the accused is cast upon him Hence it is manifest that even in cases to which S 105 applies the prosecution has to prove the guilt of the accused. 1941 O.A. (Supp) 885 (1)=1941 A.L.J. 619=1941 A 402 (FB) See also 1937 R 83

Even in a case to which S 105 applies an accused may rely upon an exception in his defence and fail to prove it, and yet be entitled to an acquittal, for the prosecution may have failed to prove all the necessary elements in the offence of which the accused has been charged, or the accused may by his statement, read with the other evidence on record, have raised a reasonable doubt in the mind of the Court and so have entitled himself to an acquittal. 1939 S 209=194 IC 474. "Burden of proof" has two meanings: (1) the burden of establishing a case, and (2) the burden of introducing evidence. 14 R 666=168 IC 193=1936 R 83 (FB). (Burden of proof in criminal cases). Burden of proof that case comes within exceptions of the Penal Code. See 6 A 220, 1898 A WN 209. See also 1 LR (1940) Kar 240=1939 S 209, 1940 P WN 705. The rule laid down in S 105 of the Evidence Act is a general provision which imposes the burden of bringing himself within an exception upon the person who relies upon the exception, there is no distinction between a case in which the exception is contained in the body of the statute imposing the prohibition and a case in which it is not so included. 43 Bom LR 510. It is for the accused to prove the facts essential for the purpose of bringing his case within any of the exceptions. 144 IC 420=1939 R 14. See also 163 IC 408=1936 O WN 1013. Even though the accused denies in toto the facts alleged, if it appears from the evidence for the prosecution that there are reasonable grounds for holding that the case falls within one exception, the presumption enacted in the last line of S 105 of the Evidence Act does not arise at all. The burden is on the prosecution to establish guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, and if upon a review of all the materials on the record there appears a reasonable doubt as to whether the case falls within any exception, the prosecution has failed to discharge that burden, and the accused must be acquitted or convicted only of the minor offence, as the case may be. 14 R 666=1937 R 83 (FB). Proof of right of private defence. 1 CLR 60. An accused setting up a plea of self-defence in answer to a charge of murder has the burden on him to prove it. In the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self-defence although the accused is shown to have had severe injuries on his person after the crime. 52 L W 834, 1941 M 280=(1940) 2 MLJ 1018. Per Jagaj, C J—There appears in some quarters to be the opinion that where an accused person has admitted participation in a fight, in which one of the other party is killed or injured, but pleads that he acted in the exercise of the right of self-defence, it lies heavily upon him under all circumstances to prove under S 105 of the Evidence Act, the facts necessary to establish his plea. It must be remembered that in the vast majority of such cases in this country the accused persons are usually the only persons who could appear as witness in their own self-defence and they are barred from doing so by the law of procedure. The Courts, therefore, must be prepared to take their statements into consideration. In a case where the prosecution evidence is wholly unreliable and there is no other evidence to suggest that that part of their statements in which

SEC 106 SCOPE OF SECTION—Per Mama-tullah, J—S 106 of the Evidence Act contemplates facts which in their nature are such as to be within the knowledge of the accused and of nobody else, and has no application to cases, where the fact in question, having regard to its nature, is such as to be capable of being known not only by the accused but also by others—if they happened to be present when it took place It cannot be invoked to make up for the inability of the prosecution to produce evidence of circumstances pointing to the guilt of the accused Per Allsop, J—S 106 obviously refers to cases where the defence of the accused depends on his proving a certain fact, that is, cases where his guilt is established on the evidence produced by the prosecution unless he is able to prove some other facts especially within his knowledge which would render the evidence for the prosecution nugatory 1936 A 833=1936 A L J 1124 Section applies only to parties to the suit 37 C W N 657=1933 P C 87 64 M L J 413 (P C), 38 P L R 427 See 14 R 666=1937 R 83 S 106 was never intended to be used to place upon the accused the burden of proving their innocence S 106 is not a proviso to the rule that the burden of proving the guilt of the accused is upon the prosecution, but on the contrary, the section is subject to that rule The burden of proving a particular fact or a particular defence is a different matter S 106 does not enable the Judge to say to the jury that the accused must explain this and that he must satisfy him on this point or that of be found guilty 1939 S 209=ILR (1940) Kar 249. The burden of proof referred to in S 106 is that of introducing evidence merely. This section does not cast any burden on an accused person to prove that no crime was committed by proving facts specially within his knowledge, nor does it warrant the conclusion that if anything is unexplained which the Court thinks the accused could explain he ought therefore to be found guilty 14 R 666=168 IC 193=1937 R 83 (FB). The burden of proving facts peculiarly within the knowledge of any person is on that person. See 9 WR 190, 1 PLJ 168, 47 M 800, 20 IC 600=6 Bur LT 129. See also 2 R 549=1925 R 143, 1942 N 39, 1939 M WN 883, 40 C W N 938 (knowledge of plaintiff's right in design and user by defendant in trademark suit). It is the duty of a party who has certain facts relating to his case within his personal knowledge to appear before the Court at a very early stage of the case as a witness and to give evidence relating to cross-examination by the other side 139 IC 712=33 PLR 906. Where a party does not go into the witness box to support his allegations regarding facts which are within its special knowledge there arises a strong presumption against him 138 IC 525=33 PLR 207. A party's failure to go into the witness box raises a strong presumption against the truth of his or her case. The fact of a party being a pardanashin lady is not a sufficient cause for not getting into the box in as much as she could get herself examined on commission 187 IC 317=1940 O W N 375=1940 O 266. S 106 of the Evidence Act cannot be utilised to help persons who are representatives of other parties and who step into their shoes 30 L W 568. An accused person is always entitled to hold his tongue, but when the only alternative theory to his guilt is a remote possibility, which, if correct, he is in a position to explain the absence of an explanation must be considered in determining whether the possibility should be disregarded or taken into account 43 IC 604=19 Cr L J 189. Though in cases alleging negligence against a public body the burden of proving negligence lies on the plaintiff, yet the provisions of S 106 must be borne in mind. satisfy him on this point or that of be found guilty 1939 S 209=ILR (1940) Har 249. The burden of proof referred to in S 106 is that of introducing evidence merely. This section does not cast any burden on an accused person to prove that no crime was committed by proving facts specially within his knowledge, nor does it warrant the conclusion that if anything is unexplained which the Court thinks the accused could explain he ought therefore to be found guilty 14 R 666=168 IC 193=1937 R 83 (FB). The burden of proving facts peculiarly within the knowledge of any person is on that person. See 9 WR 190, 1 PLJ 168, 47 M 800, 20 IC 600=6 Bur LT 129. Where a party does not go into the witness box to support his allegations regarding facts which are within its special knowledge there arises a strong presumption against him 138 IC 525=33 PLR 207. A party's failure to go into the witness box raises a strong presumption against the truth of his or her case. The fact of a party being a pardanashin lady is not a sufficient cause for not getting into the box in as much as she could get herself examined on committal 187 IC 317=1940 O W N 375=1940 O 266. S 106 of the Evidence Act cannot be utilised to help persons who are representatives of other parties and who step into their shoes 30 LW 968. Where the question is whether plaintiff is authorised by the Managing Committee of an institution to institute a suit on its behalf and the proof of the minutes of the meeting of the Managing Committee constituting such due authority is available it is sufficient to discharge any burden on the plaintiff under S 106 65 IA 106=ILR (1938) L 63=1938 PC 73=(1938) 1 MLJ 359 (PC).

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—When the goods are solely under the control of the bailee, the fact as to when loss destruction or deterioration occurred is a matter specially within his knowledge and therefore the burden of proving that the loss occurred at a particular time and not subsequently must be on him 1932 ALJ 788=1932 A 584. Where an instrument hired by a person was for all practical purposes in his exclusive possession it is for him to explain how it came to be damaged. If an accused after a case has been proved against him withholds evidence in disproof, inferences unfavourable to him may be drawn 43 IC 241=19 Cr L J 81=21 C W N 1152. An accused person is always entitled to hold his tongue, but when the only alternative theory to his guilt is a remote possibility, which if correct he is in a position to explain the absence of an explanation must be considered in determining whether the possibility should be disregarded or taken into account 43 IC 604=19 Cr L J 189. See also ILR (1940) Har 547=1939 S 209. The burden of proving the exact date of a mortgage transaction entered into orally being not peculiarly within his knowledge does not lie on the mortgagee 115 IC 451=1929 A 209. In a suit for mesne profits, if the defendant asserts that a particular amount and no more was received by him, the duty of establishing it affirmatively rests upon him, that fact being especially within his own knowledge. Though in cases alleging negligence against a public body the burden of proving negligence lies on the plaintiff yet the provisions of S 106 must be borne in mind. The fact that the burden of proving negligence may be on the plaintiff does not necessarily preclude the burden of proving any particular fact being upon the defendant public body 1940 S 254. This section raises a presumption of death at the end of a continuous absence of seven years and not at the time when the question is raised or the suit is instituted. The party on whom the burden of proving the life of the absentee lies cannot get rid of that burden by admitting the absentee's death at some subsequent time. 8 IC 55, 35 C 25, 37 C 103, 33 C 173 (PC). The parties to marriage were in touch with each other, residing for a short period in reasonable proximity the wife being in the house of a relative of the husband. There was nothing to suggest that she was unfaithful or that the parties were on terms of personal hostility. Held that if the child could have been begotten during this period his legitimacy was undemable. 66 M L J 288 (P C). Nature of presumption under the section explained. 1934 M 310=66 M L J 279. See also 1934 M 318=66 M L J 283. The terms of S 112 must be given their due effect, and any evidence to the effect that a wife has been leading an improper life, even if the Court should be prepared to accept it as true, will not rebut the presumption enacted in that section. A statement by the husband that a child in the womb of his wife was not his child and must have been procreated by somebody else is not entitled to any weight nor does it amount to such proof, even assuming it to be true, as will displace the effect of S 112. The fact that the parties are governed by the Mahomedan Law makes no difference so far as the application or effect of the presumption under S 112 is concerned. The fact that under that law there may be a divorce of a wife by the husband making oath accompanied by an imprecation as to his wife's fidelity, and that if he denies the parentage of the child with which the wife is then pregnant, it will be bastardised, cannot override the presumption enacted in S 112. 1937 M W N 957. See also 1937 L 266. The presumption under S 112 applies quite irrespective of the fact whether the mother was married or not at the time of the conception. 1937 L 784. In a divorce case where the paternity of the infant is in question, neither husband nor wife is permitted to give evidence of non-intercourse after marriage to bastardise a child born in wedlock. 39 P L R 262=1937 L 176. S 112 merely requires proof to the satisfaction of the Court that the parties had no access to each other, not that there was no possibility of access. A finding that there was no access is a pure finding of fact. 150 F C 306=1934 N 124. As to when the presumption is rebutted see 1937 R 67. A statement by a deceased person merely containing an assertion that child born to his wife during the continuance of a valid marriage between them is not his child is not sufficient under S 112 to establish illegitimacy of the child when it is not established that the husband had no access to his wife during the period in which the child could be begotten. 1937 L 266. A child born during the continuance of a valid marriage is deemed to be legitimate and it throws on any person who is interested in making out the illegitimacy the whole burden of proving it. The presumption regarding legitimacy cannot be rebutted by circumstances which only create doubts and suspicions. 39 P L R J & K 51. See also 54 L W 411. Where the question of paternity is one of evidence only, the case is governed by S 112 and not by the personal law of the parties. 26 F C 996. 16 Cr L J 84. A legal presumption in favour of legitimacy will arise only if it is proved that there was a valid and lawful marriage between the parents of the person whose legitimacy is in question. But the burden of proving such a lawful marriage is on the person who claims to be legitimate, and if he does not establish that, he cannot rely on the presumption so as to shift the burden of proving the contrary on to those who allege illegitimacy. 1935 O W N 25=1935 O 80. The presumption of legitimacy created by S 112 can be rebutted only by proof of non-access leaving no room for doubt. If the husband has had access the wife's adultery will not justify a finding of illegitimacy—Proof of impotence would be equivalent to proof of non-access. 26 F C 996. 16 Cr L J 84. In order to fulfil the requirements of S 112 it is necessary to prove that during the period there was no occasion for the wife to meet her husband. 1937 L 266. Cr L J 994=1934 R 80. A presumption under Ill (a) is one which can be rebutted by the accused giving a reasonable explanation of his possession of the property in question. But that cannot have the effect of throwing the onus upon the accused of proving affirmatively that he had no knowledge of the property being stolen property. By reason of the illustration (a), the accused must give a reasonable explanation of his possession and an explanation which may well be true. He is not bound to establish beyond all reasonable doubt that he obtained the property innocently. There is no question of the onus of proof being shifted on to the accused. ILLUSTRATION (b)—[See also Notes under S 133.] As to who is an "accomplice," see 1934 S 185=28 S L R 336, 38 C W N 777=1934 C 678 (FB), 1934 L 171. It has long been a rule of practice for a Judge to warn the jury of the danger of convicting a prisoner on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, and it is in the discretion of the Judge to advise them not to convict upon such evidence, but the Judge should point out to the jury that it is within their legal province to convict upon such unconfirmed evidence. This rule of practice, which has virtually become a rule of law has arisen in consequence of the danger of convicting a person upon the unconfirmed testimony of one who is admittedly a criminal. What is required as corroboration is some additional evidence rendering it probable that the story of the accomplice is true and that is reasonably safe to act upon it. It is not necessary to require confirmation of all the circumstances of the crime. It is sufficient if there is confirmation as to a material circumstance of a crime and of the identity of the accused in relation to the crime. 31 S L R 82=1937 S 162=169 I C 716. See also 42 P L R 67, 1941 L 82, 198 I C 78. An accomplice is a person who is a guilty associate in crime or who sustains such a relation to the criminal act that he could be jointly indicted with the defendant (principal). The act of a detective in supplying marked money and placing bets with the accused for detection of a crime has not the element of mens rea and so cannot be treated as that of an accomplice and hence his evidence does not require corroboration. 1936 N 245. But see 48 L W 322=1938 M 893. A person who knowingly aids in the disposal of stolen property is an accomplice. 40 L W 873=1934 M 721=67 M L J 693. Even where the object of the person who instigates another to commit a crime is to catch him in the act of committing the crime, e.g. police decoys the instigation amounts to an abetment of the offence, and the abettors must be regarded as accomplices when the object of the instigation is to make the offender commit the crime and the person who is instigated actually commits the offence. Even if they are not accomplices in the strict legal sense, their evidence has to be viewed with caution, and it is not safe to act upon their evidence without material corroboration. 48 L W 322=1938 M 893. CONSENT DECREE—ESTOPPEL—TEXT—The test for determining whether there is an estoppel in any particular case in consequence of a decree passed on a compromise must depend upon the answer to the question "Did the parties decide for themselves the particular matter in dispute by the compromise and was the matter expressly embodied in the decree of the Court passed on the compromise or was it necessarily involved in, or was it the basis of, what was embodied in the decree?" (35 M 75, Relon) 1941 L 116.

A compromise in contravention of provisions of law cannot operate as estoppel 1936 R D 565. But where in a deed, the term which is in contravention of the statute is separable, the deed is void in respect of that party only, and the rest being severable, estoppels may arise in respect of the parts which are good 63 C L J 52=1936 C 774. Silence may amount to acquiescence if it is an omission to act according to the circumstances of a particular case. DOCTRINE OF ESTOPPEL AND ACQUIESCENCE, DISTINGUISHED—The doctrine of acquiescence is only another phase of estoppel. The foundation of the doctrine of estoppel and acquiescence is that one party has made to the other representations which were intended to be and were in fact acted upon by that other spending money or doing an act which he would not have otherwise done, which involved expenditure or a change of position. In the case of estoppel the material representations are active, while in the case of acquiescence the representations are to be inferred from silence. The doctrine of acquiescence also goes by the name of the doctrine of standing by. If an owner of land finds another person trespassing upon his land and building on it, mere silence or inaction on his part at the time will not be sufficient to support a case of acquiescence. Mere silence or mere inaction cannot be construed to be a representation. To support a case of acquiescence there must be something more than mere silence or inaction. Inaction or silence in circumstances which acquire a duty to speak is the foundation of the doctrine. When inaction or silence would amount to fraud or deception, then and then only can the doctrine of standing by or acquiescence be applied. The party seeking the aid of the doctrine has to prove (1) that he made a mistake of his legal rights, (2) that he expended money or did some act on the faith of the mistaken belief, (3) that the legal owner or possessor of the legal right knew of his own right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by the party relying on the doctrine, (4) that the possessor of the legal right knew of the mistaken belief of the other, and (5) that the legal owner encouraged the other party in his expenditure of money or in the other acts, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal rights. 40 CWN 1370 = 1936 C 711. Acquiescence which will deprive a man of his legal rights must amount to fraud. Sec. 116 does not deal or profess to deal with all kinds of estoppel or occasions of estoppel which may arise between landlord and tenant. It deals with one cardinal and simple estoppel and states it first as applicable between landlord and tenant and then as between licensor and licensee, a distinction which corresponds to that between the parties to an action for rent and the parties to an action for use and occupation

beard to deny that that particular landlord had at that date a title to the property. In the ordinary case of a lease intended as a present demise, the section applies against the lessee, any assignee of the term and any sub-lessee or licensee. What all such persons are precluded from denying is that the lessor had a title at the date of the lease and there is no exception even for the case where the lease itself discloses the defect of title. The principle does not apply to disentitle a tenant to dispute the derivative title of one who claims to have since become entitled to the reversion, though in such cases there may be other grounds of estoppel, e.g., by attornment, acceptance of rent, etc. In this sense it is true enough that the principle only applies to the title of the landlord who 'let the tenant in' as distinct from any other person claiming to be reversioner. Nor does the principle apply to prevent a tenant from pleading that the title of the original lessor has since come to an end. There is in English case law some authority for the view that a tenant is only estopped from denying his landlord's title if at the time when he took his lease he was not already in possession of the land. But in sec 116 the Indian Legislature has formulated no such condition. 41 C.W.N. 1233 = 1937 P.C. 251 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 286 (P.C.). The mere fact that the lease in favour of a lessee of land has expired does not disentitle him to sue his sub-lessee and to claim rent or damages for use and occupation from him when neither the lessee nor the sub-lessee have surrendered possession after such expiry. A lessee of land is under an obligation to surrender possession of the premises demised to his lessor from whom he derived possession and until he fulfils that obligation, he is bound to pay his lessor either rent or damages for use and occupation. It is no doubt open to the sub-lessee to show that his title having expired he has surrendered possession to the original landlord from whom his lessor derived possession or to a person claiming by title paramount. In such cases no question of estoppel would arise, but when he is unable to plead a valid defence his obligation to surrender possession, it would not be open to him to resist his lessor's demand for damages for the use and occupation during the period he has been in possession until he surrenders possession to the lessor. Even though, therefore, the original lessee's title may have expired, by the expiration of the term of his lease, until the sub-lessee shows that he has renounced the obligation of surrendering possession to him by commencing to hold under some other person either the landlord of the original lessee (i.e., his lessor) or a person claiming by title paramount or by delivering possession to him, the mere fact that the original lessee's title has expired is no defence to a suit by him against the sub-lessee for arrears of rent or damages for use and occupation. 1937 M. 478 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 366. Ejectment suit by landlord—Adverse rights claimed by tenant—Independent suit as the remedy. 1928 C. 546 35 C.W.N. 632. Sec 116 presupposes a provable contract of tenancy. When there is no denial of the landlord's title but only a denial of a contract of tenancy, the section is not a bar. There can be no estoppel on a matter of law. 164 I.C. 357 = 19 N.L.J. 179 = 1936 N. 174. If once the relation of landlord and tenant is established between the parties, the tenant would be estopped from disputing the landlord's title. There are no words in sec 116 to show that the tenant must be put into possession by the landlord in order to estop the tenant from disputing the landlord's title. 30 Bom.L.R. 741 = 1908 B. 263, 139 I.C. 46 = 33 P.L.R. 799 (2), 36 Bom.L.R. 1074. Sec 116 does not estop a tenant from denying the right as his landlord, of person who claims to have succeeded to the landlord who put the tenant in possession. 1939 L. 49. Where the rent suit is brought by the daughters claiming to be heirs to the leasehold rights alleged to be the stridhan of their mother, though the tenants cannot dispute the title of their mother at the commencement of the lease they can dispute the derivative title of the plaintiffs. It is in such a case incumbent upon the plaintiffs to prove that the leasehold rights in question were the stridhan of their mother and they are entitled to inherit the said rights according to Hindu Law. 1940 Lah. 341. See 116 of the Evidence Act only estops a tenant from disputing his landlord's title during the continuance of the tenancy. Where the tenancy originated in a lease the estoppel continues even after the expiration of the period of the lease, unless the tenant has openly surrendered possession or has at least given notice to his landlord that he claims under his own title. But in the absence of evidence to prove that the tenant paid rent to the landlord after the expiry of the lease, or that the landlord assented to the possession of the tenant after the determination of the lease or that the tenant accepted the title of the landlord after that, it cannot be inferred that the relationship of landlord and tenant continued after such determination, and Art 139 of the Limitation Act bars any suit to recover possession from the tenant after the expiry of twelve years from the date when the tenancy was determined. When the tenant has proved that the tenancy has been determined by efflux of time it is for the landlord to prove that any tenancy was created or arose after such date. 176 I.C. 84 = 46 L.W. 848 = 1938 M. 73. A tenant is not estopped merely because by the tenancy he acknowledges the title of his landlord, and a tenant may always explain and thereby render inconclusive acts done through mistake or misapprehension. It is permissible to a tenant to deny his lessor's title if it is shown that he executed the lease in ignorance. 177 I.C. 599 = 1938 R. 227. Sec 118 SCOPE OF SECTION—Sec 118 suggests that in India the rule generally is in favour of the admission of all the evidence of doubtful character though the weight to be attached will be a matter for the Court's discretion. 34 IC 976=18 Bom LR 266 Where a young child is called as a witness the first step for the Judge or Magistrate to take is to satisfy himself by questioning the child that it is a competent witness within the meaning of sec 118 1939 Rang 402 Sec 118 tests in the Court the discretion to decide whether an infant is or is not disqualified to be a witness by reason of understanding or lack of understanding, but this discretion must be exercised in a judicial manner. No doubt the proposition that the competency of the witness to understand and give rational answers should be tested by Court by interrogating him before his examination is commenced, is not quite justified by the provisions of the section. But such a course should be pursued where the circumstances of the case make it plainly desirable. 43 CWN 1117 Witness may be competent without being compellable. See Field p 402 (6th Ed.) Test of competency is that witness should be able to understand questions put to him. 102 IC 349=8 PLT 594 1928 L 903 1930 Sind 120 (understanding is the sole test of competency) Evidence of child or minor of tender years though taken without solemn affirmation is admissible in evidence though such evidence must be received with the due care and caution. But the Court must be satisfied before receiving the testimony, if the witness is capable of understanding the nature and obligation of an oath. 45 IC 497=20 Bom LR 365 See also 15 Myl LJ 217=42 Myl CR 295 The absence of such examination does not invalidate the trial. 41 C 406=14 Cr LJ 485 As to competency to testify, see also 25 A 60, 11 A 180. Notwithstanding sec 5 of the Oaths Act a child's evidence is not inadmissible merely on the ground that no oath was administered to it. Sec 13 of the Oaths Act governs such cases. 22 IC 737=38 M 550 When two persons though accused of complicity in the same offence are tried separately, each is a competent witness at the trial of the other, though the case could be different if they are tried together. 45 C 720=22 CWN 405 Evidence of husband to disprove access on the question of legitimacy of child born during wedlock. Sec 119—See 5 OC 246 S 119 applies to the case of a witness who has taken a religious vow of silence and gives his evidence in writing to questions put to him. It is not the practice of the Courts to force any man to act contrary to his religious convictions so long as his acts are legal and if a witness's religious faith hinders him to speak the Court will not compel him to speak and he must be deemed 'unable to speak' within the meaning of S 119. The evidence of such a witness given and taken in writing in open Court is properly taken and is not inadmissible. 20 Pat 848 WL A witness is so deaf and dumb that he is unable to make him understand the questions put to him, in cross-examination he is a competent witness and his evidence is admissible. 102 IC 349=8 PLT 594 As to competency to testify, see also 25 A 60, 11 A 180. Parties to civil suit, and their wives or husbands

Husband or wife of person under criminal trial

120 In all civil proceedings the parties to the suit, and the husband or wife of any party to the suit, shall be competent witnesses. In Criminal proceedings against any person, the husband or wife of such person, respectively, shall be a competent witness.

121 No judge or Magistrate shall, except upon the special order of some Court to which he is subordinate, be compelled to answer any questions as to his own conduct in Court as such Judge or Magistrate, or as to anything which came to his knowledge in Court as such Judge or Magistrate, but he may be examined as to other matters which occurred in his presence whilst he was so acting.

122 No person who is or has been married shall be compelled to disclose any communication made to him during marriage by any person to whom he is or has been married, nor shall he be permitted to disclose any such communication, unless the person who made it, or his representative in interest, consents, except in suits between married persons, or proceedings in which one married person is prosecuted for any crime committed against the other.

Sec 120 ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where the husband in divorce proceedings relied on the birth of a child as evidence of adultery, under secs 118 and 120, Evidence Act, his evidence as to non access was admissible 38 M 466=25 M L J 594. A child born 11 months after the marital intercourse between its parents had ceased, is illegitimate (Ibid). A person against whom are launched proceedings for order for maintenance under sec 488, Cr P Code, is competent witness on his own behalf in such proceedings 18 A 107. APPLICATION OF SECTION.—Before admitting evidence under sec 122, the Court should ask the party against whom the evidence is to be given whether he or she would consent to the evidence being given. The consent must be express 27 P R (Cr) 1913=19 I C 1004. The restriction in sec 122 is not one that can be waived or that a Court can relax, so that disclosure by a widow of certain communications made to her by her husband immediately before his death cannot only be not compelled but should not be permitted at all 23 I C 511=40 C 891. Under sec 122, the consent to the evidence being given cannot be implied. It is incumbent upon the Court to ask a party against whom the evidence is to be given whether he or she should consent to the evidence being given and not to admit it unless such consent is given 171 I C 529=38 Cr L J 1089=1937 R 347. No statement of an incriminating nature made by the appellant as to her guilt under sec 302 to her husband could be received in evidence 1923 L 40 (10 P R 1914, Foll). See also 27 I C 664=34 P R 1914 (Cr), 14 Cr L J 273=19 I C 705. A woman's confession to her husband is inadmissible in view of sec. 122. An offence against a person in the section does not include an offence against a son though it may cause grief to the father 10 P R (Cr) 1914, 25 I C 525. Communication by an arbitrator to his wife shortly before his death that he accepted bribe from a party can be permitted to be disclosed only if sec 122 is fulfilled 1930 I 280 (2). On a trial for breach of trust by a public servant, a letter of the accused to his wife found by the police was held admissible against him in evidence 22 M 1.

Secs 122 and 123.—See 45 L W 470= (1937) 1 M L J 613.

123 No one shall be permitted to give any evidence derived from unpublished official records relating to any affairs of State, except with the permission of the officer at the head of the department concerned, who shall give or withhold such permission as he thinks fit

NOTES

See 123—The privilege in respect of official and State documents from production in Court is a narrow one, most sparingly to be exercised. Scope of privilege pointed out 35 C.W.N. 1121—61 M.L.J. 913 (P.C.) For the purpose of sec 123 the Court cannot be invited to discuss the question if a particular document falls within the description of "an unpublished official record." The decision of the public officer concerned is final on that question (8 Q.B. 253, 48 C. 304 1930 M. 342, Foll.) 8 Mys.L.J. 474. Departmental enquiry papers are not unpublished documents relating to affairs of State. See 161 I.C. 668—1936 N. 25.

Sees 123 and 124. PUBLIC OFFICER CLAIMS NO PRIVILEGE—DUTY OF COURT—Where a public officer declines to produce certain document, claiming privilege under secs 123 and 124, it is for the Court trying the suit in which the documents are required, in the first instance to satisfy itself that the documents relate to any State affair or that their production will be detrimental to public interests and it is not for the public officer to decide whether the documents are privileged. The privilege regarding production of documents is a narrow one and the mere fact that their production is likely to prejudice the Crown's case is no reason for their non production 161 I.C. 668—1936 N. 25. Statements made to and recorded by a Forest Range Officer in the course of an investigation into an offence under the Madras Forest Act do not relate to any affairs of State nor can they be said to be communications made in official confidence the disclosure of which would be injurious to public interests. No privilege can be claimed in respect of such statements under secs 123 and 124 and there is no reason why the record of such investigation should not be made available to the Court which tries the offence under the Act. It will be for the Court after perusing the statements and considering the objections as to their admissibility whether they are admissible or not 1937 M.W.N. 322—45 L.W. 470—(1937) 1 M.L.J. 613. Where the State is not a party, the following rules govern the question of production of records claim of privilege etc—(1) All documents called for must be produced (2) In case of State documents the privilege should be claimed by the witness who is summoned to produce them. (3) When objection is taken the Court cannot inspect the document but can take other evidence to determine its nature. (4) Ordinarily it is enough if the head of the department certifies that it refers to an affair of state. (5) The Court need not accept it as final but may require further evidence. (6) If the Court decides that it is not privileged, the document should be tendered in evidence. (7) If the Court considers it a State document, it cannot be admitted in evidence unless with the permission of the head of the department, 1938 N. 358. The accidents register kept by a medical practitioner is not a privileged document, and a Magistrate cannot therefore refuse to cause production of the same 1939 M.W.N. 1128 (2)—50 L.W. 796—1940 Mad. 240. Under sec 123 it is only when the document deals with affairs of State that privilege can be rightfully claimed under the section. The diary of a foot constable who was shadowing the movements of a suspect could not possibly become an affair of the State within the accepted meaning of the words 188 I.C. 717—42 P.L.R. 484—1940 Lah. 217.

Sees 123 124 and 162—Sec 162 deals with the production of documents in answer to summons and it is obligatory on a witness so summoned to produce the documents called for by the Court. He has no right to determine whether the documents shall be produced. When producing them it is for him to claim privilege, if the documents are privileged and it is the duty of the Court to determine whether the documents shall be admitted and exhibited. Secs 162 and 123 protect the discovery of documents relating to matters of State. There is difference between a private witness called upon to produce documents and a public officer summoned to produce public record. Sec 124 is more particular and lays down the rule of public policy and the limits within which the production can be withheld in other words, the character and quality of the privilege. The condition precedent to or the test of privilege under sec 124 is that the communication was made to the public officer in official confidence. The question is primarily to be decided by the Court before whom the privilege is claimed. It should be claimed at the earliest opportunity, and it is futile to claim the privileges at a late stage when there has already been a disclosure of the document given in charge of the Court 41 Bom.L.R. 391—1939 Bom. 237. See also 1 L.R. (1940) Nag. 280.

Sees 123 125. SCOPE OF SECTIONS—Questions referred to in secs 123 and 125 should be disallowed by the Magistrate 10 I.C. 917—12 Cr.L.J. 277. Where the accused's demand for permission to peruse the complaint merely to ascertain the name of the informer is denied, the non-production of the complaint is not improper but privileged under sec 125. The disclosure of the name of the informer will be contrary to sec 123 37 I.C. 54—18 Cr.L.J. 70. Statements in departmental enquiry into bribery case 16 C.W.N. 431—13 Cr.L.J. 415. Where letters addressed by the head of a department reach the addressee those letters would not be unpublished documents within the meaning of sec 123 and the Court would be entitled to see the documents and decide under sec 11, as to their admissibility 1933 L. 157—14 I.C. 683. NOTES

'accomplice' has not been defined by the Act and should therefore be presumed to have been used in its ordinary sense. An accomplice means a guilty associate or partner in crime, or who, in some way or other, is connected with the offence in question, or who makes admissions of facts showing that he had conscious hand in the offence. An accomplice confesses himself a criminal who has been concerned in the commission of a crime, participes criminis whether he is concerned in the strict sense legal propriety as principal in the first or second degree, or merely as accessory before or after the fact. Persons to be accomplices must participate in the commission of the same crime as the accused persons in a trial are charged. 1941 AWR (CC) 402 = 1941 OA 1018. One who deposes that he only helped the accused in disposing of the body of the deceased after he was killed by the accused is no accomplice. 73 IC 506 = 1923 I 345. See also 161 IC 289 = 63 Cr LJ 289 = 1936 C 121, 45 GLJ 581, 99 IC 979, 146 IC 240 = 1933 R 199, 1937 R 513 (accessory after the fact). An accomplice is a witness and not an accused person. 9 PR (Cr) 1011 = 10 IC 340 = 12 Cr LJ 267. The rule of law says that an accomplice is competent to give evidence, and the rule of practice says that it is almost always unsafe to convict upon his testimony alone. But the rule of law to this extent triumphs over the rule of practice that if special circumstances exist which render it safe in an exceptional case to act upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice and upon that alone the Court will not merely for the reason that the conviction proceeds upon such uncorroborated testimony say that the conviction is illegal. This is the plain meaning of sec. 133. There is no difference between the law in India and the law in England in this respect. 1937 Rang LR 110 = 169 IC 705 = 38 Cr LJ 783 = 1937 R 209. Evidence of accomplice and confession of co-accused—Distinction between. See 38 Bom LR 1122 = 1937 B 31. A suspected participant in the crime appearing as a prosecution witness is on the same basis as an accomplice and a conviction cannot be based upon his uncorroborated testimony. 15 Cr LJ 440. 24 IC 146. Persons taking part in negotiations for bribe cannot be said to be independent witnesses and their evidence is not free from doubt but persons merely present are not accomplices. 20 Cr LJ 258 = 50 IC 18, 34 PLR 836. Person having knowledge of commission of offence and keeping quiet for some days is no better than accomplice. 30 CWN 816. But see contra 38 CWN 777 = 1934 C 678.

ACCOMPLICE AND DETECTIVE—DISTINCTION—The detectives and accomplices are distinguished clearly when a conspiracy contains persons of both the character. The former enter with a design of detecting or betraying it while the latter do concur fully with other accomplices till they are alarmed or they turn upon their associates and expose them. In the case of those, corroboration equal to that of others is necessary. 16 IC 257 = 16 CWN 1105.

WHO IS NOT AN APPROVER—Where a person was not granted a formal pardon but was examined under sec. 10, Gambling Act, he is not an approver and therefore his evidence can be accepted without corroboration. LR 1 A (Cr) 101. One who is already convicted of a different offence could not be considered as an accomplice as he has nothing to gain or lose by the evidence he gives in Court. 14 IC 607 (2) = 15 CIJ 962.

ACCOMPLICE AND INFORMER—DISTINCTION—If at the time when a person joined the conspiracy he had no intention of bringing his associates to book but his sole object was to partake in the commission of the crime, he cannot be called an informer but is an accomplice, and his position is not modified simply because later on he turns round and carries information to the police. (1928 L 193, Rel on) 110 IC 676 = 1928 L 647. See also 9 L 550 = 1928 L 193.

VALUE OF ACCOMPLICE'S OR APPROVER'S EVIDENCE—The evidence of an approver, if believed, is sufficient foundation whereon to repose a conviction, but in practice the Court ex majori cautela insists upon corroboration of the approver's statements in material particulars. 69 IC 462 = 1925 L 153, 151 IC 473 = 1934 C 719 (FB). See also 1938 Rang LR 213, 1937 AMLJ 123. This rule is not rendered inapplicable by the personal conduct and antecedents of the approver or by the absence of motive on his part or on the part of the investigating agency to implicate individual accused. 148 IC 745 = 1934 L 503. The confession of an accomplice should be subjected to the most anxious scrutiny in so far as it incriminates others, and received with caution as it is not sifted by cross examination. 14 Cr LJ 179 = 19 IC 179, 16 Cr LJ 233, 27 IC 905 = 8 SLR 203, 103 IC 49 = 1927 L 581, 24 ALJ 1050, 99 IC 929. The evidence of an approver should not be believed without material corroboration and in order to see whether there is such corroboration, the Court should scrutinize and marshal out very carefully the facts. 9 IC 232 = 12 Cr LJ 35. The statement of an approver, veracious though it may appear to be, and though the truth of a large part of it be established, beyond all doubt nevertheless requires corroboration. 34 IC 993 = 17 Cr LJ 273. Evidence of approver may, in exceptional cases and for reasons stated, be admitted though uncorroborated. 17 Cr LJ 220 = 31 IC 332. There should be direct and material corroboration of the statement of an approver who is of very bad character. 32 IC 843 = 17 Cr LJ 107. Where the complicity of a person is due solely to coercion and his evidence cannot be ascribed to any desire to escape legal consequences, the discredit attaching to his evidence is practically negligible. 19 IC 207 = 1912 MWN 1108.

WHAT IS GOOD CORROBORATION AND WHAT IS NOT—Corroborative evidence should confirm in some material particulars not only the evidence that the crime has been committed but also that the accused committed it. 1931 L. 100, 1933 Cr.C. 314. The nature of corroboration necessarily varies according to the particular circumstances of the offence charged. The corroboration need not be such as to confirm the accomplice in every detail of the crime, nor need it be by direct evidence that the accused committed the crime. It is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connection with the crime (P.). In all cases depending upon inferior's evidence the degree of proof required for the evidence depends in each case upon the individual's credit. 15 I.C. 67-116 C.W.N. 67-116. All persons coming technically within the category of accomplices cannot be treated as precisely on the same footing. 13 P.L.T. 802-1013 P. 66. An approver's evidence supported by the retracted confession of a co-accused behind the back of the accused is not sufficient to convict the accused. Such a retracted confession is not a corroboration of a high value. 18 I.C. 672-11 A.L.J. 73. It is unsafe to rely upon the uncorroborated testimony of the approver; the corroboration must be of the same nature connecting the accused with the offence. 12 I.C. 513-12 Cr.L.J. 537 (A). 1029 M.W.N. 704. There is no law in sec. 133 to suggest that the statement of one approver cannot be regarded as corroborating that made by another approver. An accused should not be convicted on the statement of an accomplice unless each statement is strongly corroborated and the corroboration does not implicate the accused with crime committed. 40 I.C. 67-10 P.W.R. In cases where a police officer combines the functions of a judge and jury, he is bound under law to scrutinise the accomplice's evidence with the same degree of care and caution, which is required of him in a trial by jury, and, just as he is bound to give a warning to the jury, he must warn himself that it is unsafe to convict a person on accomplice evidence in the absence of substantial corroboration by independent evidence. 114 I.C. 457-1029 N. 215 1933 C. 114 37 C.W.N. 931. It is mainly the duty of the prosecution to bring the accomplice character of the evidence to the notice of the Court and then invite it to believe it by reference to the corroborative evidence on record. An accused is under no legal obligation to do so. (H.C.) See also 1021 O.A. 1018-1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 472. An accomplice is a competent witness against an accused and a conviction will not be illegal if it proceeds upon his uncorroborated testimony, but this absolute rule of law as regards the evidence of accomplice is subject to a rule of guidance contained in III. (b) of sec. 114 of the Evidence Act that an accomplice is unworthy of credit.

Number of witnesses

OF THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES

135 The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated by the law and practice for the time being relating to civil and criminal procedure respectively, and, in the absence of any such law, by the discretion of the Court

unless it is corroborated in material particulars 114 IC 609—1929 N 233. The foremost essential condition for accepting the approver's statement is that it must be a true and worthy statement 114 IC 623—1929 N 222. Where the accomplice's evidence is found to be truthful, there is no need for corroboration 9 PLT 672, 1930 M W N 169. Credibility of approver's testimony depends upon the extent of removal of "taint" in his evidence 1929 L 850. Where the evidence of an accomplice is corroborated only as regards some accused, conviction of others is bad 1929 M 222. See also 146 IC 934—1933 P 112. Corroboration may be circumstantial 1930 N 97, 1933 L 294. If the evidence of an approver is discarded, it must be discarded as a whole and the defence cannot base arguments on it any more than the prosecution 1930 P 164. The rule in sec 114, illus (b), that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless, he is corroborated in material particulars has become a rule of practice of so universal application that it has now almost acquired the force of law 120 IC 721—1930 N 97. See also 184 IC 545—1939 Rang 361.

RETRACTED STATEMENT IS ADMISSIBLE—A retracted statement of an approver is admissible as evidence against an accused person 61 IC 528—12 L W 385. May be sufficient corroboration of the approver's story as against himself but not against a co accused 20 Cr L J 188—49 IC 604. If there is no other reliable evidence in corroboration, the evidence of the approver, coupled with the retracted confession of a co-accused, is not sufficient for conviction 55 A 91—1933 A 31.

DELAY IN MAKING STATEMENTS—Long delay in making their statements would make their evidence liable to grave suspicion 67 IC 828 (2)—2 L L J 296.

Sec 135—Order of examination of witnesses generally left to discretion of counsel 5 CWN 15. Where at the trial the prosecution witnesses who had been summoned were present in the Court as also the complainant and though the accused for certain reasons of his own wanted to cross examine the witnesses before the complainant the Court insisted on the complainant being examined first on the ground that his state of health necessitated that course. Held, that the Magistrate should have acceded to the request of the pleader of the accused and directed the cross-examination of the witnesses before the complainant 37 CWN 288—1933 C 189. Where the witnesses are not summoned at the instance of the accused for cross-examination, but are summoned for examination in a de novo trial, the order in which these witnesses are to be examined in chief rests at the discretion of the prosecution (1933 C 189 Dist) 151 IC 236—1934 N 209. Power of Court to regulate order of examining witnesses 39 C 245—16 CWN 265. See also 8 B 200, 12 B 459, 7 CLR 274. Witness present during examination of previous witness—Power of Court to exclude the witness—C P Code, sec 151, 1934 A I J 750—1934 A 840. Effect of Judge's suggestion that further evidence need not be given 6 Bom LR 636. "No matter how often the same case comes before Court, if the accused persons be different on each occasion the witnesses for the prosecution must be examined de novo." See WR 1864 (Cr) 38, ibid 1, 13, 18, 22 WR (Cr) 38, 1 BLR (O Cr) 37, 9 M 83. Omission to do this, though illegal, yet if it has not occasioned a failure of justice a new trial need not be ordered 9 M 83. Where a party to a suit was present in Court when his witnesses were examined and later on claimed to be examined as a witness in support of a contention put forward by him and it was disallowed, it was held that there was no doubt a practice to refuse to allow such a person to give evidence, but that there was no rule of the Court to that effect, nor was there any provision of law in the C P Code or in any other statute. S 135 did not authorise a Court of law to refuse the examination of a witness who might have done something which was not very desirable. It was also held that the inherent powers of the Court were very wide and undefinable, but at the same time the exercise of such powers should not be made in an arbitrary and capricious manner 1941 O A (Supp) 586—1941 A L J 345—1941 All 314.

136 When either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask the party proposing to give the evidence in what manner the alleged fact, if proved, would be relevant; and the Judge shall admit the evidence if he thinks that the fact, if proved, would be relevant and not otherwise.

If the fact proposed to be proved is one of which evidence is admissible only upon proof of some other fact, such last-mentioned fact must be proved before evidence is given of the fact first mentioned, unless the party undertakes to give proof of such fact, and the Court is satisfied with such undertaking.

If the relevancy of one alleged fact depends upon another alleged fact being first proved, the Judge may, in his discretion, either permit evidence of the first fact to be given before the second fact is proved, or require evidence to be given of the second fact before evidence is given of the first fact.

Illustrations

(a) It is proposed to prove a statement about a relevant fact by a person alleged to be dead, which statement is relevant under section 32.

The fact that the person is dead must be proved by the person proposing to prove the statement, before evidence is given of the statement.

(b) It is proposed to prove, in a copy, the contents of a document said to be lost. The fact if at the original is lost must be proved by the person proposing to produce the copy, before the copy is produced.

(c) A is accused of receiving stolen property knowing it to have been stolen. It is proposed to prove that he denied the possession of the property.

The relevancy of the denial depends on the identity of the property. The Court may, in its discretion, either require the property to be identified before the denial of the possession is proved, or permit the denial of possession to be proved before the property is identified.

(d) It is proposed to prove a fact (A) which is said to have been the cause or effect of a fact in issue. There are several intermediate facts (B, C and D) which must be shown to exist before the fact (A) can be regarded as the cause or effect of the fact in issue. The Court may either permit A to be proved before B, C and D is proved, or may require proof of B, C and D before permitting proof of A.

Examination-in-chief

137 The examination of a witness by the party who calls him shall be called his examination-in-chief.

NOTES

Sec 136—See notes under sec 135. Where in cross-examining a witness for the prosecution, questions are disallowed by the Court on the ground of irrelevancy or other grounds, the evidence should show what the questions are and the reason for disallowing them. 55 IC 593=1 PLT 632.

Secs 137-138 APPLICATION OF SEC 138.—It is certainly implied by sec 138 that the party should have an opportunity to cross-examine and does not mean that merely a right to cross-examine a witness without an opportunity being offered for cross-examination is sufficient compliance with the requirements of the law. 73 IC 339=24 Cr LJ 595. Sec 138 deals with order of proceedings and not with rights of parties. 129 C 822. Unfinished testimony, when admissible. 144 IC 331=1933 L 561.

SCOPE OF CROSS EXAMINATION.—The right of cross-examination given by sec 138 is not fettered by the fact that there are police papers which are not referred to by the prosecution, and the cross-examination can be made on all matters allowed by the Evidence Act. The cross-examination is not limited to matters raised in evidence elsewhere. 10 IC 917=4 Bur LT 113. Court should generally leave cross-examination to the parties. See 82 IC 154=1924 O 361. The questions put in cross-examination must be either relevant and pertinent to the matter in issue or calculated to elicit answers affecting the witness's title to credit. 6 Mys LJ 551 (FB). Read in this connection the observations of Sir John Wallis in 1932 PC 69=62 MLJ 457 (PC).

LIMITS OF CROSS EXAMINATION.—2 Jur N S 161, 7 BLR (App) 88, 9 WR 586, 12 MIA 381, 3 BLR (AC) 273. Where the same witness is cross-examined on behalf of different parties and during the course of it he makes a statement damaging to the case of one of the parties who had already cross-examined him, then the latter party is entitled to cross-examine the witness with reference to the statement so made. 189 IC 757=1910 All 553.

USE OF CROSS EXAMINATION.—See 6 WR 181, 21 C 401, 6 C 279. Object of cross-examination. 30 C 625. There is no hard and fast rule as to the right of a counsel to demand in cross-examination the repetition of the whole story told in the examination in chief. 15 Cr LJ 148=22 IC 724. Right of party to cross-examine hostile witnesses. See 1937 ALJ 1214=1937 A 754. A witness was cross-examined and re-examined. In re-examination fresh matter was introduced. The Counsel asked for cross-examination of the witness again. The Court granted only three minutes. Held, the object of re-examination was to clear ambiguities in cross-examination and that if new and important matter was allowed to be introduced in

The examination of a witness by the adverse party shall be called his cross-examination

Re examination

The examination of a witness, subsequent to the cross examination by the party who called him, shall be called his re-examination

138 Witnesses shall be first examined in chief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined

Order of examination

The examination and cross examination must relate to relevant facts but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination in chief

The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matters referred to in cross examination, and, if new matter is, by permission of the Court, introduced in re-examination, the adverse party may further cross examine upon that matter

Direction of re examination

Cross examination of person called to produce a document

139 A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross examined unless and until he is called as a witness

Witnesses to character

140 Witnesses to character may be cross examined and re examined

Leading questions

141 Any question suggesting the answer which the person putting it wishes or expects to receive is called a leading question

When they must not be asked

142 Leading questions must not, if objected to by the adverse party, be asked in an examination in chief, or in a re examination, except with the permission of the Court

re examination the other party has a right to cross examine the witness as regards the matter introduced. Therefore the time of three minutes given for cross examination was insufficient 176 I C 515—38 Cr L J 416 (2)—1937 A 171

SCOPE OF RE EXAMINATION—After the cross examination of the witness on behalf of the accused the re examination would ordinarily be directed to the explanation of the matter referred to in the cross examination 3 P L T 32 See also 44 I C 343

Sec 138—The object of re examination is to clear the ambiguities in cross examination and if new and important matter is allowed to be introduced in re examination by the prosecution the accused has a right to cross-examine the witness as regards the matters so introduced 1936 A W R 967=1937 A 171 Where the cross examination of a witness begins on one day and is completed only the next day the party calling the witness is entitled to re-examine the witness on the whole field covered by the witness and not merely on the matters arising in the cross examination on the second day. The law does not contemplate the placing of any such restriction on the right of re examination conferred by S 138 and it is not open to the Court to take it away. If the matter elicited in re examination gives rise to any suspicion that it has been the result of tutoring with regard to any matter covered on the first day of the cross-examination it would be open to the

Judge to draw the attention of the jury to the fact that the lapse of time may have given an opportunity for preparation but this would not be a ground for refusing to let questions in re examination being put 195 I C 107=1947 P W N 255—22 P L T 327—1941 P 362 To tender a witness for cross examination in a Sessions trial is a very irregular course. The practice of tending a witness for cross examination is inconsistent with S 138. Such a course should if at all be adopted only in the cases of witnesses of secondary importance. Where the prosecution have already got sufficient evidence on a particular point and do not want to waste time by examining a witness who was examined in the lower Court but at the same time do not want to deprive the accused of his right of cross-examining such witness they tender him for cross examination. But the witness should, strictly speaking be asked by the prosecution with the consent of the accused's pleader and the leave of the Court whether his evidence in the lower Court is true. If he gives a general answer as to the truth of his evidence in the lower Court he can be cross examined on that. But he must in some way be examined in chief before he can be cross examined. In any case the practice of tending a witness for cross examination certainly should not be employed in the case of an important witness 43 Bom L R 916 See also 44 Bom L R 27 (F B)

Sec 142—A leading question to the prose

The Court shall permit leading questions as to matters which are introductory or undisputed, or which have, in its opinion, been already sufficiently proved

When they may be asked

143 Leading questions may be asked in cross-examination

144 Any witness may be asked, whilst under examination, whether any

Evidence as to matters in writing contract, grant or other disposition of property, as to which he is giving evidence, was not contained in a document, and if he says that it was, or if he is about to make any statement as to the contents of any document, which, in the opinion of the Court, ought to be produced, the adverse party may object to such evidence being given until such document is produced, or until facts have been proved which entitled the party who called the witness to give secondary evidence of it

Explanation—A witness may give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts

Illustration

The question is, whether A assaulted B

C deposes that he heard A say to D "B wrote a letter accusing me of theft and I will be revenged on him." This statement is relevant as showing A's motive for the assault, and evidence may be given of it though no other evidence is given about the letter

145 A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing, and relevant to matters in question, without such writing being shown to him, or being proved, but, if it is intended to contradict him by the writing, his attention must, before the writing can be proved, be called to those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him

Questions lawful in cross-examination 146 When a witness is cross-examined, he may, in addition to the questions hereinbefore referred to, be asked any questions which tend—

- (1) to test his veracity,
- (2) to discover who he is and what is his position in life, or
- (3) to shake his credit, by injuring his character, although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to criminate him or might expose or tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture

When witness to be compelled to answer 147 If any such question relates to a matter relevant to the suit or proceeding, the provisions of section 132 shall apply thereto

148 If any such question relates to a matter not relevant to the suit or proceeding, except in so far as it affects the credit of the witness by injuring his character, the Court shall decide whether or not the witness shall be compelled to answer it, and may, if it thinks fit, warn the witness that he is not obliged to answer it. In exercising its discretion, the Court shall have regard to the following considerations—

- (1) such questions are proper if they are of such a nature that the truth of the imputation conveyed by them would seriously affect the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies,
- (2) such questions are improper if the imputation which they convey relates to matters so remote in time, or of such a character, that the truth of the imputation would not affect, or would affect in a slight degree, the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies,
- (3) such questions are improper if there is a great disproportion between the importance of the imputation made against the witness's character and the importance of his evidence,
- (4) the Court may, if it sees fit, draw, from the witness's refusal to answer, the inference that the answer if given would be unfavourable

Question not to be asked without reasonable grounds 149 No such question as is referred to in section 148 ought to be asked, unless the person asking it has reasonable grounds for thinking that the imputation which it conveys is well founded

(b) A pleader is informed by a person in Court that an important witness is a dakait. The informant, on being questioned by the pleader gives satisfactory reasons for his statement. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dakait.

(c) A witness, of whom nothing whatever is known is asked at random whether he is a dakait. There are here no reasonable grounds for the question.

(d) A witness of whom nothing whatever is known being questioned as to his mode of life and means of living gives unsatisfactory answers. This may be a reasonable ground for asking him if he is a dakait.

150 If the Court is of opinion that any such question was asked without reasonable grounds, it may, if it was asked by any barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney, report the circumstances of the case to the High Court or other authority to which such barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney is subject in the exercise of his profession.

151 The Court may forbid any questions or inquiries which it regards as indecent or scandalous, although such questions or inquiries may have some bearing on the questions before the Court, unless they relate to facts in issue, or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed.

Questions intended to insult or annoy appears to it to be intended to insult or annoy, or which, though proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form.

153 When a witness has been asked and has answered any question which is relevant to the inquiry only in so far as it tends to shake his credit by injuring his character, no evidence shall be given to contradict him, but, if he answers falsely, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Exception 1.—If a witness is asked whether he has been previously convicted of any crime and denies it, evidence may be given of his previous conviction.

Exception 2.—If a witness is asked any question tending to impeach his impartiality and answers it by denying the facts suggested, he may be contradicted.

(a) A claim against an underwriter is resisted on the ground of fraud. The claimant is asked whether in a former transaction he had not made a fraudulent claim. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he did make such a claim.

The evidence is inadmissible.

(b) A witness is asked whether he was not dismissed from a situation for dishonesty. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he was dismissed for dishonesty.

The evidence is not admissible.

(c) A affirms that on a certain day he saw B at Lahore. A is asked whether he himself was not on that day at Calcutta. He denies it. Evidence is offered to show that A was on that day at Calcutta. The evidence is admissible, not as contradicting A on a fact which affects his credit but as contradicting the alleged fact that B was seen on the day in question in Lahore.

In each of these cases the witness might, if his denial was false, be charged with giving false evidence.

(d) A is asked whether his family has not had a blood feud with the family of B against whom he gives evidence.

154 The Court may, in its discretion, permit the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party.

NOTES

See 154—See 27 C 591, 13 C 29, 12 M.L.A. 30. The circumstances in which a witness may be cross-examined by the party calling him are not laid down in S. 154 which leaves the matter entirely to the discretion of the Court. The mischief begins when the grant of permission itself is considered to be equivalent to an adjudication or to an expression of opinion by the Court adverse to the veracity of the witness instead of being treated merely as a permission to test veracity of a witness a permission which can hardly be refused when any witness makes an unexpected statement a hurdle to the case of the prosecution. 141 I.C. 936—1933 P 483, 106 I.C. 726—37 C.L.J. 271—1937 P 34. See also 14 P.L.T. 491—1933 P 517. As to the evidence of hostility and principles governing discretion of Court see 1933 N 381, 152 I.C. 1021—1935 P 1033. When a witness becomes hostile it would in certain cases be unsafe to accept any portion of the testimony which he has rendered in examination-in-chief. To pick and choose between the statements which such a witness makes in examination-in-chief would sometimes be an unsound proceeding. But it would be quite wrong to hold that a Court is entirely debarred from bringing its judicial discretion to bear on materials which cross-examination elicits and of deciding whether the truth lies there. 44 C.W.N. 939—1930 C. 536. It is not settled that the evidence of a witness who is cross-examined by the party calling him is still evidence and can be relied on by either party, the credibility of the facts deposed being a matter for the jury. There is no legal objection to permission to treat a witness as hostile being granted freely although it is preferable to avoid the use of the words "declared hostile" which by association have come to carry by implication a misleading significance. 19 P. 369—1930 P 289—22 P.L.T. 98. The power given by S. 154 is a discretionary one and will not be reviewed by the appellate Court provided there was some material on which such discretion can be exercised. The mere fact however that a witness does not adhere to or subsequently makes a statement different from his previous statement does not of itself justify the employment of the power given by S. 154. 11 R. 4—1933 R 57. See also 166 I.C. 726—1937 P 34. That the answer of the witness is in direct conflict with other evidence is no ground to treat him as hostile and allow cross-examination. 55 M. 904—1936 M. 516—71 M.L.J. 231. Hostile witness, who is a witness is not necessarily hostile because in an absent minded moment he admits the truth. Before a prosecution witness can be declared hostile, there must be good ground for believing that the statement he made in favour of the defence is due to enmity to the prosecution. 44 I.C. 33—3 P.L.J. 419. See also 61 C. 399—38 C.W.N. 659—1934 C. 636. A witness who is unfavourable is not necessarily hostile, a hostile witness is one who from the manner in which he gives his evidence shows that he is not desirous of telling the truth. 40 C. 47, 1922 C. 267 (47 C. 1913 Ref.) 31 C.W.N. 526—1930 C. 276. Where a witness has been tendered but not examined by the prosecution in the prosecution cannot cross-examine that witness. S. 154 does not authorise such cross-examination. 7 P. 55—1937 P. 203. A prosecution witness who was declared hostile and permitted to be cross-examined by the prosecution in the committing Court cannot be treated at once as a hostile witness and cross-examined by the prosecution in the Sessions Court without being examined in-chief. 10 I.C. 439—45 C.W.N. 763—1941 C. 533. Where a witness turns hostile and is cross-examined by the party calling him the evidence of such a witness need not be rejected in toto. It is a question for the Judge to decide whether in spite of the witness having been discredited on one point his testimony may be considered on another. 1933 M. 137, 56 M. 7—64 M.L.J. 208. Before a party calling a witness can cross-examine him it is not necessary that the witness should first of all be declared hostile. In this respect S. 154 of the Indian Evidence Act gives an unqualified discretion to the Judge quite apart from any question of the hostility or otherwise of the witness. It is, however, necessary before the procedure of S. 154 can be adopted, either for permission of the Court to be obtained or for it to be given by the Court without its being sought. Such permission should be signified if not in words, by some other action of the Court indicating its permission during the cross-examination of the witness by the party calling him. 56 M. 7, 1933 N. 389. See also 58 C. 3404. A party is allowed to cross-examine his own witness because the witness displays hostility and not necessarily because he displays untruthfulness. The fact that the witness is being cross-examined does not imply an admission that all the witness's statements are falsehoods. On the other hand, the main purpose of cross-examination is to obtain admission. Consequently the prosecution is entitled to rely on a part of the witness's evidence even though he has turned hostile. 9 P. 474—1930 P. 247. Per Lord Williams, J.—Ss. 143 and 154 do not give power to the prosecution to put leading questions to their own witnesses even with the assent of the Judge. The meaning of S. 154 is that they may with the permission of the Court, treat a witness as hostile and cross-examine him. The wording of S. 154 shows that the legislature did not intend to distinguish the law in this country from the law which obtains in England. 50 C.L.J. 467—1930 C. 139. It must be understood that a witness should be cross-examined to be discredited altogether and not merely to get rid of part of his testimony. 71 I.C. 657—37 C.L.J. 173—1923 C. 463. Result of cross-examining one's own witness. 53 C. 372, 33 C.W.N. 872.

155 The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways by the adverse party, or, with the consent of the Court, by the party who calls him —

(1) by the evidence of persons who testify that they, from their knowledge of the witness, believe him to be unworthy of credit,

(2) by proof that the witness has been bribed, or has ¹[accepted] the offer of a bribe, or has received any other corrupt inducement to give his evidence,

(3) by proof of former statements inconsistent with any part of his evidence which is liable to be contradicted,

(4) when a man is prosecuted for rape or an attempt to ravish, it may be shown that the prosecutrix was of generally immoral character

Explanation—A witness declaring another witness to be unworthy of credit may not, upon his examination-in-chief, give reasons for his belief, but he may be asked his reasons in cross-examination, and the answers which he gives cannot be contradicted, though, if they are false, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence

Secs 158 and 159 LIST OF STOLEN THINGS GIVEN BY INFORMANT—ADMISSIBILITY OF.—Per 159 A witness, may, while under examination, refresh his memory by referring to any writing made by himself at the time of the transaction concerning which he is questioned or so soon afterwards that the Court considers it likely that the transaction was at that time fresh in his memory.

Goldstream, J.—A list of the stolen things given to supplement the first information report is admissible and can be referred to under S. 159 and proved under S. 159. The fact that a copy of such a list had been given to the police would not affect the admissibility of the informant's list. 1933 Cr. C. 1303—1933 L. 67.

Sec. 159. REFRESHING MEMORY.—A witness can be allowed to refresh his memory by reference to any memorandum or other writing prepared by the witness, if there is a lapse of memory on a point asked of the witness. On this section, see also 8 C. 732, 19 C.W.N. 809, 11 B.H.C. 123, 11 B. 657, 32 M. 384, 1926 L. 51, 1930 N. 24 (1). Where the writing brings to the mind of the witness neither any recollection of the facts mentioned in it or any recollection of the writing itself but which nevertheless enables him to swear to a particular fact from the conviction of his mind on seeing a writing, which he knows to be genuine, the witness may refresh his memory by referring to the writing. 49 C. 573—26 C.W.N. 680—35 C.L.J. 279. S. 159 does not render the notes of a speech inadmissible in evidence. 1930 L. 867. For purposes of S. 159 it is not requisite that the writing used to refresh memory of a witness should have been admitted in evidence. Accordingly, a document not produced in Court within the proper time and in consequence regarded as evidence under the provisions of O. 13, r. 2, C.P. Code, may nevertheless be referred to by the party producing it or his witness to refresh his memory of the document if otherwise within the purview of S. 159, Evidence Act. "The weight of the evidence, the objection to the document upon the ground that it not having been produced at the proper time, renders its authenticity, the subject of suspicion and all other grounds upon which a document can be successfully impeached still remain open but refusal to permit a man to refresh his memory by proper relevant contemporaneous documents might lead to a grave injustice." 55 I.A. 107—7 P. 305—32 C.W.N. 565 (P.C.). Memo-randa kept by a witness can be used in evidence not by itself but as corroborating a witness or refreshing his memory. (10 N.L.R. 44, at p. 47, Rel. on.) 120 I.C. 224—1930 N. 24 (1). When a witness wants to refresh his memory under S. 159 he is to do so by referring in Court to the document which he had read at or near the time of the transaction, and it is the fact that he had known it to be correct when he read it that is the justification of his doing so. It is quite immaterial that a document to which the witness refers in Court was not printed by the witness himself or in his presence. It is essential only that he should have read it at or soon after the transaction, to which it relates. 120 I.C. 798—1930 L. 371. The word "writing" used in S. 159 includes also printed matter (Ibid.). There is a common practice in the Punjab of referring to statements in the first information reports, medico-legal reports and so forth as if they were evidence. This is not justified by law. The proper course is for the witness to refer to the document which he has prepared at the time under S. 159 and state in Court everything which the prosecution or counsel for defence or the trying Magistrate, or Judge considers material. 39 P.L.R. 290—1937 L. 475.

HOROSCOPE—ADMISSIBILITY.—A horoscope is admissible in evidence in proof of age, and though it may not be relied on as a probative document in itself, it can be used for the purpose of refreshing the memory of the witness under S. 159, Evidence Act. 12 Mys. L.J. 133—39 Mys. H.C.R. 406. There is no provision in the Evidence Act by which parichaynamahs prepared by the police for the recovery of articles on information given by the accused can be used as substantive evidence. If they are prepared at the time, they can be used by the witnesses for the purpose of refreshing their memories in the witness box under S. 159 but in themselves they are not evidence. 1939 M.W.N. 465.

POST MORTEM REPORT.—Ss. 159 to 161 permit a limited use being made of post mortem notes of Medical Officer, namely, that they may be used by the witness who made them for refreshing his memory or by a party for the purpose of contradicting the witness. It is extremely undesirable that such notes of post mortem examination be put in evidence through the Medical Officer en bloc as it is prejudicial to both parties. Per Rupchand A.J.C., 1930 S. 225.

SECS 159 AND 160. POLICE INVESTIGATION.—ADMISSIONS MADE BY ACCUSED IN PRESENCE OF MAGISTRATE.—ORAL EVIDENCE OF MAGISTRATE.—USE OF MEMORANDUM.—Where during the investigation of a criminal case a Magistrate is associated with the investigating officer, and in the presence of such Magistrate, the accused points out places alleged to be connected with the crime and makes admissions which do not lead to the discovery of any fact and the Magistrate does not record the admissions in accordance with the provisions of S. 164 of the Cr. P. Code but makes a memorandum of the conduct and admissions of the accused, the oral evidence of the Magistrate is admissible to prove the admissions of the accused. Ordinarily the written memorandum of the Magistrate is not admissible though the Magistrate under the provisions of S. 159 of the Evidence Act can refresh his memory when under examination by referring to the memorandum. In such a case the memorandum must be shown to the adverse party and the witness may be cross-examined on it. Where the Magistrate has, however, no specific recollection of the facts themselves but he is sure that the facts were correctly recorded in the document, both the testimony of the witness and the contents of the memorandum are admissible under S. 160 of the Evidence Act, the two being the equivalent of a present positive statement of the witness affirming the truth of

The Court, if it sees fit, may inspect the document, unless it refers to matters of state, or take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility

If for such a purpose it is necessary to cause any document to be translated, the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct the translator to keep the contents secret, unless the document is to be given in evidence, and, if the interpreter disobeys such direction, he shall be held to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code

ENACTMENTS REPEALED

THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ACT (XV OF 1940)

[Amended by Acts XI II of 1940 VII of 1941, XI of 1941 and XXIV of 1941]

PREFATORY NOTE. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—"The outbreak of war while it has necessitated greatly increased expenditure by the Government on defence and other services has simultaneously created opportunities for the earning by companies and persons engaged in business of abnormally large profits. The object of this Bill is to secure for the Government a considerable portion of the additional business profits which accrue as a result of the conditions prevailing during the war."

The Bill seeks to impose a tax of 50 per cent. of the excess of the profits made in any accounting period after the 1st day of April 1939 over what in the Bill is called "standard profits." The standard profits are in respect of businesses in existence prior to the 1st day of April 1936 the average of various accounting periods from 1935 to 1938, subject to certain adjustments. The tax payer is given the option of choosing between several periods or averages and provision is made for a reference to a Board of Referees for special relief if the profits during each of the periods which could otherwise have been chosen are abnormally low. The standard profits for businesses started after the 1st day of April 1936 are computed by reference to a percentage of the capital employed in the business.

The Bill contains necessary provisions for computing profits and capital and these provisions follow closely those of the excess profits tax imposed in the United Kingdom by the Finance (No. 2) Act of 1939.

It is intended that the Bill should come into force on a date to be determined by the Central Government and should remain in force until repealed. In this respect the imposition of this tax differs from that of income tax which is imposed afresh each year by the annual Finance Act.

The Bill provides for the Act to be administered by officers of the Income tax Departments under the Central Board of Revenue and contains provisions for assessment collection appeal reference to the High Court on a point of law penalties for false statements etc. which closely correspond to those in the Indian Income tax Act 1922" (Fort St. George Gazette Part III A dated 6th Feb. 1940).

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—"We hold the view that it is desirable that legislation of this kind should be subjected to periodical review by the Legislature. We considered various expedients which might secure this end without involving the re-enactment annually of the elaborate provisions relating to machinery. We have adopted the expedient of altering the definition of 'chargeable accounting period' so that at the end of March 1941, unless by an amending Act that date is extended the taxing provisions cease to have effect, and of making a change in clause 4 to secure that before that date and thereafter annually at the time the Finance Bill is before the Legislature the Legislature shall have an opportunity of reconsidering the rate at which the tax is charged. We have also received an assurance, which we desire to record in this Report that Government will promote any further legislation which is in its opinion necessary or desirable to remedy short comings which may reveal themselves in the working of the Bill when passed. We have further received an assurance that when the Act is repealed any right privilege obligation or liability acquired accrued or incurred under the Act will not be affected and that therefore assesses will have secured to them the payment of any refunds to which they are entitled."

GROUND ON WHICH REVIEWS AND RE HEARINGS HAVE BEEN ALLOWED OR NOT.—[See C P Code,

Ss 114 115 and O 48 supra] In second appeal the finding of the lower Courts cannot be interfered with however erroneous they may appear to be unless there be an error or defect in procedure provided they had before them evidence proper for their consideration in support of their findings. But a finding without evidence to support it is a substantial error in the proceedings and a good ground for second appeal. 14 C 740=14 IA 101 (P C). 17 C 297=16 IA 243 (P C), 18 C 23 19 C 240=19 IA 1 (P C) 20 C 93 9 C 309, 17 C 875=17 IA 65 (P C).

The Committee was assured that steps will be taken to ensure that such refunds will be duly made

Having regard to the professed objects of the Bill, to tax additional business profits which accrue as a result of the conditions prevailing during the war, we consider that the preamble should contain a definite reference to this aspect of the proposed legislation. We have therefore, amended the preamble to indicate clearly that this new taxation is related to war conditions and we have altered the date on which excess profits become liable to taxation from the 1st day of April to the 1st day of September, 1939

Clause 2—The change made in sub clause (2) corrects a printing error. In sub-clause (5), as drafted it is not clear that the first proviso relates to the word 'profession' where used for the second time in the definition of 'business'. We have accordingly re-drafted the sub clause to clarify this point. The change made in sub clause (6) has been explained in the general remarks made at the opening of this report. The effect of the change is that there can be no accounting period after the 31st day of March 1941 and, if the Act is to continue to have effect after that date, steps must be taken to alter the wording of this sub clause by an amending Act. In the definition of 'company' in sub clause (8) we have inserted a reference to companies formed in pursuance of legislation in Indian States. The change made in sub clause (22) is for the purpose of mitigating the hardship that might be suffered by new businesses which had no standard period owing to their recent origin. In sub clause (23) we have rejected the definition of 'written down value' and have substituted for it the definition contained in the Indian Income tax Act, 1922. The definition in the Bill had the effect of excluding the concession given by the second proviso of section 10 (5) of the Income tax Act. The definition we now adopt is more favourable for those concerns which had any considerable amount of unabsorbed depreciation owing to an insufficiency of profits in past years.

Clause 3—The changes made in sub clause (4) are intended to secure that the Boards of Referees and Appellate Assistant Commissioners in the exercise of their appellate functions shall not be subject to any control by the Central Board of Revenue. In sub clause (5) we have altered the wording to correspond with that used in the provisions relating to tribunals in the Indian Income tax Act 1922. In sub clause (6) we have transferred the power to make rules regulating the formation composition and procedure of Boards of Referees from the Central Board of Revenue to the Central Government.

Clause 4—The first two changes made in this clause are intended to bring the rate of tax imposed by the Bill under annual review. The alteration made in the proviso excludes the profits of life insurance business from the purview of the Bill. These are usually the subject of triennial or quinquennial valuation and cannot be determined annually, and there is a reasonable presumption that life insurance will not make additional profits in conditions arising out of the war. The profits of other forms of insurance are not affected by these considerations and are ascertainable from year to year.

Clause 5—Where a person carried on two businesses during the standard period and discontinued one of them before the chargeable accounting period it is necessary to secure that the profits loss and capital of the discontinued business should be left out of account in determining the standard profits. While it is arguable that a business which has been discontinued before the chargeable accounting period is not a business to which the Act applies we have considered it desirable to clarify this point by the insertion of the words 'during the chargeable accounting period'.

Clause 6—We have by our amendment of sub clause (2) provided as an additional option that the previous year as determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1940 combined with that for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1939 may be taken as a standard period thus affording a considerable advantage to those businesses which made good profits during that period. Our amendment of sub clause (1) is intended to provide that a business started after the 31st day of March 1936 may at its option take as the standard profits either the profits of a standard period where it has been in existence long enough to have a standard period or the statutory percentage of the capital employed in the business. The first change made in sub clause (3) has the effect of extending the right of applying to the Board of Referees to any business which has been in existence long enough to have a standard period. We have also substituted the words 'at the beginning of that time referred to' for the word then which did not indicate with sufficient definiteness the point of time for the fixed percentage on share capital as the measure of the relief which may be granted. In sub-clause (4) we have raised the exemption limit from twenty thousand to thirty thousand rupees.

We have inserted a new sub clause (5) to provide that profits made in Burma during the period when Burma was included in British India should not be included in the standard profits unless they are also included subsequently in the profits of the chargeable accounting period which of necessity falls within a time when Burma is no longer a part of British India.

Clause 7—Sub-clause (b) as drafted did not clearly cover the case where a deficiency of profits occurs in the first chargeable accounting period and we have redrafted the sub-clause to secure this end

Clause 8—The changes made in sub-clauses (2) (3) (4), (5) and (6) of the word 'April' to the word 'September' are consequential on the decision referred to in our opening remarks. We have made the provisions of sub-clause (6) mandatory. We have added a new sub-clause (7) to provide for the carrying over of a deficiency of profits where a change takes place in the persons carrying on a business by reason of the death of a partner after the 1st day of September, 1939, a contingency not provided for by sub-clause (1) or elsewhere in the clause

In connection with sub-clause (1) we are assured that on the discontinuance of a business and the commencement of a new business under the provisions of the sub-clause a new chargeable accounting period will be deemed to have commenced

We considered the desirability of adding an explanation to sub-clause (6) of clause 8 to emphasise that the sub-clause applies where two or more businesses were amalgamated after the 1st day of April 1936 and before the 1st day of September, 1939 but are satisfied that the sub-clause already clearly applies to this case

Clause 9—To provide for the exclusion from the profits of a principal company of profits of a subsidiary company which operates outside British India and is not liable to income tax we have inserted in sub-clause (2) the words 'subject to the provisions of section 5' in order to emphasise that this section has not the effect of enlarging in any way the liability imposed by clause 5. The omission made in sub-clause (5) is merely a drafting amendment

Clause 10—A minor drafting amendment has been made

Clause 11—We have inserted an additional sub-clause—new sub-clause (2)—on the lines of section 49 D of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922 to provide for the giving of relief in cases where no corresponding relief exists in other countries. We desire to record our view that should an excess profits tax be imposed in any Indian State Government should make every effort to establish reciprocity in regard to relief with that State

Clause 12—The amendments made are minor drafting amendments only

Clause 13—We have extended the time allowed by the clause and provided that the period allowed shall run from the date of the service of the notice

Clause 14—We have inserted in sub-clause (1) a provision requiring the Excess Profits Tax Officer to supply to the person assessed a copy of the assessment order containing details of the manner in which the assessment has been calculated. In sub-clause (4) we have substituted the more usual expression 'legal representative' for 'personal representative'

We consider that the tax payer should be permitted to pay his tax by instalments. We are informed that instructions to this effect will be issued as has already been done in connection with income tax and that such instructions will be published by the Central Board of Revenue

Clause 15—The word 'hitherto' has been omitted as being superfluous

Clause 16—The first change made is a minor drafting correction. We have inserted a new sub-clause on the lines of section 28 (4) of the Indian Income tax Act 1922

Clause 17—We have inserted a specific provision allowing appeals against orders made under clause 8. We consider that any person whose assessment is enhanced or whose penalty is increased should be given an opportunity of being heard and have amended sub-clause (4) to secure this. We have extended the period allowed for the presentation of an appeal from thirty to forty five days

Clause 18 (new clause)—We have made provision on the lines of section 32 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922 for appeals to the Commissioner against certain orders made by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner. The provision will cease to be necessary when the Appellate Tribunal provided for by clause 18 (now 19) comes into operation

Clause 19 (formerly 18)—We desire to record our view that every effort should be made to accelerate the setting up of the Appellate Tribunal constituted under the Indian Income tax Act 1922 and that it should if possible be brought into existence by the 1st day of October 1940

Clause 20 (formerly 19)—We have amended the clause so as to require that the Commissioner must correct a mistake apparent from the record whether detected by himself or brought to his notice by an assessee and so as to give him power to correct a mistake subsequently discovered in evidence recorded in assessment or appellate proceedings

Clause 26 (formerly 25)—The alterations made in sub-clause (1) bring the provisions of the clause as drafted into accord with clause 6 as now amended, and empower the Central

Board of Revenue to exceed the amount of relief if any granted by the Board of Referees under sub clause (3) of clause 6 or to grant relief in cases to which sub clause (3) of clause 6 does not apply. We have inserted two additional sub-clauses, the first of which specifies two sets of circumstances which the Central Board of Revenue is required to take into consideration in making a direction under sub clause (1) with reference to the determination of standard profits and the second of which empowers the Central Board of Revenue in certain specified circumstances to grant allowances in computing the profits of a business during a chargeable accounting period.

Clause 27 (formerly 26) —In connection with the amendment which we have made in clause 20 it is necessary that there should be power to provide for the procedure to be followed in making applications for rectification of mistakes. The amendment made in clause (a) of sub clause (2) provides for this. We have inserted a new clause (c) to give power to provide for the grant of relief to investment companies a part of whose investments are in British India and have already been subjected to excess profits tax.

Schedule I Rule 2 (new rule) —This new provision is intended to secure that the computation of profits in any standard period should be made on the same basis as the computation of profits in the chargeable accounting period and in particular that depreciation should be calculated on the written down value basis instead of on the cost basis and that income assessable on the arising basis in the chargeable accounting period but on the remittance basis in the standard period for income tax purposes should be computed on the arising basis for excess profits tax purposes.

Rule 3 (formerly 2) —The intention of the rule was to make explicit provision to prevent the carrying forward of losses under section 24 (2) of the Indian Income tax Act 1922 although that section is not one of the sections of the Income tax Act which are applied by clause 20 (now 21) of the Bill. We have revised the drafting of the rule to exclude the possibility that by a wider interpretation of the rule than was intended expenses charged in the accounting period might be disallowed on the ground that the loss though appropriate to the accounting period was not actually made in that period.

Rule 4 (formerly 3) —A new sub rule (3) has been inserted to secure that where under clause 9 of the Bill profits of a subsidiary company are included in the excess profits tax assessment of the principal company dividends from the subsidiary company out of such profits should not also be included in such assessment.

Rule 5 (new) —This rule has been inserted to provide relief in cases where a business has been expanded with capital borrowed from a bank or on debentures by securing that the interest paid on the loan should be allowed and the loan itself should not be deducted from the total capital. The effect will be to substitute as a charge in computing the profits liable to excess profits tax the statutory percentage for the interest actually paid on the loan.

Rule 7 (formerly rule 5) —The addition made in sub rule (2) secures that a company shall be able to have the remuneration paid to a managing agent allowed as an expense where that remuneration is itself subject to excess profits tax in the hands of the managing agent.

Rule 8 (new) —In consequence of the change made in rule 6 (2) by which remuneration paid to managing agents has been excluded from directors remuneration in certain cases we have inserted this provision to disallow for the purposes of the excess profits tax computation the payment to managing agents of remuneration at a higher rate than the rate in force in the standard period.

Rule 9 (formerly rule 6) —We have added a proviso providing for the adjustment of the profits of a completed contract when finally ascertained.

Rule 10 (new) —We have provided for special treatment of buildings erected during the period of war which might on the cessation of war conditions become almost valueless. The case of new machinery and plant which may have to be scrapped at the end of the war is provided for by the obsolescence provisions of section 10 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922.

Schedule II Rule 1 —The omission of the words 'as defined in section 2 of this Act' is a drafting improvement only' (Gazette of India Part V, dated 9th March 1940 pages 115 122.)

THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ACT (XV OF 1940).

[6th April, 1940.]

An Act to impose a tax on excess profits arising out of certain businesses.

WHEREAS it is expedient to impose a tax on excess profits arising out of certain businesses in the conditions prevailing during the present hostilities;

It is hereby enacted as follows.—

Short title, extent and commencement 1. (1) This Act may be called THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ACT, 1940.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint.

Definitions. 2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "accounting period" in relation to any business means—

(a) where the accounts of the business are made up for successive periods of twelve months, each of such periods;

(b) in any other case, such period as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may determine;

Provided that in determining any accounting period under sub-clause (b) the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall have regard to the period, if any, which is, or has been, determined as the previous year for that business for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(2) "Appellate Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3;

(3) "Average amount of capital" means the average amount of capital employed in any business as computed in accordance with the Second Schedule;

(4) "Board of Referees" means a Board of Referees appointed under section 3;

(5) "Business" includes any trade, commerce or manufacture or any adventure in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture or any profession or vocation, but does not include a profession carried on by an individual or by individuals in partnership if the profits of the profession depend wholly or mainly on his or their personal qualifications unless such profession consists wholly or mainly in the making of contracts on behalf of other persons or the giving to other persons of advice of a commercial nature in connection with the making of contracts:

Provided that where the functions of a company or of a society incorporated by or under any enactment consist wholly or mainly in the holding of investments or other property, the holding of the investments or property shall be deemed for the purpose of this definition to be a business carried on by such company or society:

Provided further that all businesses to which this Act applies carried on by the same person shall be treated as one business for the purposes of this Act;

(6) "chargeable accounting period" means—

(a) any accounting period falling wholly within the term beginning on the 1st day of September, 1939, and ending on the ¹[31st day of March, 1942]; and

(b) where any accounting period falls partly within and partly without the said term, such part of that accounting period as falls within the said term;

(7) "Commissioner" means a person appointed to be a Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3;

(8) "company" means a company as defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent, or of an Act of the Legislature of a British possession or of a law of an Indian State, and includes any foreign association whether incorporated or not which the Central Board of Revenue may, by general or special order, declare to be a company for the purposes of this Act;

(9) "deficiency of profits" means—

(i) where profits have been made in any chargeable accounting period, the amount by which such profits fall short of the standard profits;

(ii) where a loss has been made in any chargeable accounting period, the amount of the loss added to the amount of the standard profits;

(10) "director" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called and also includes any person who—

(i) is a manager of the company or concerned in the management of the business; and

(ii) is remunerated out of the funds of the business; and

(iii) is the beneficial owner of not less than twenty per cent. of the ordinary share capital of the company;

(11) "dividend" has the meaning assigned to the expression in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(12) "Excess Profits Tax Officer" means a person appointed to be an Excess Profits Tax Officer under section 3;

(13) "income" has the meaning assigned to the expression in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(14) "fixed rate" in relation to dividends on share capital, other than ordinary share capital, includes a rate fluctuating in accordance with the maximum rate of income-tax;

(15) "Inspecting Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3;

(16) "loss" means a loss computed in the same manner as, for the purposes of this Act, profits are to be computed;

²[(16-A) "ordinary share capital" has the meaning assigned to that expression in sub-section (8) of section 9;]

(17) "person" includes a Hindu undivided family,

(18) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act,

(19) "profits" means profits as determined in accordance with the First Schedule,

(20) "standard profits" means standard profits as computed in accordance with the provisions of section 6,

(21) "statutory percentage" means—

(a) in relation to a business carried on by a body corporate (other than a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein), eight per cent. per annum,

¹[(b) in relation to a business carried on by a partnership of which one or more of the partners is a body corporate (other than a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein), such a rate per cent. as is equivalent to—

(i) eight per cent. per annum on so much of the average amount of the capital employed in the business during the chargeable accounting period as represents the share of any such body corporate, and

(ii) ten per cent. per annum on the remainder of that amount,

(c) in relation to a business to which neither sub-clause (a) nor sub-clause (b) applies, ten per cent. per annum]

Provided that in relation to any decrease of capital the statutory percentage shall be in all cases six per cent.

Provided further that where the business was commenced on or after the 1st day of July, 1938, the foregoing percentages shall be increased from eight, ten and six per cent. to ten, twelve and eight per cent., respectively,

(22) "written down value" has the meaning assigned to that expression in sub section (5) of section 10 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922.

Excess profits tax authorities

3 (1) There shall be the following classes of excess profits tax authorities for the purposes of this Act, namely —

(a) the Central Board of Revenue,

(b) Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax,

(c) Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, who may be either Appellate Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax or Inspecting Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax,

(d) Excess Profits Tax Officers,

(e) Boards of Referees

(2) Every Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax and Excess Profits Tax Officer shall be a person who is exercising the functions of Commissioner of Income-tax, Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Income tax, Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax and Income-tax Officer, respectively, under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922

(3) The Central Board of Revenue shall, subject to the provisions of sub section (2), appoint such persons as Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, Appellate Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, Inspecting Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax and Excess Profits Tax Officers as it thinks fit and such persons shall perform their functions in respect of such cases as the Central Board of Revenue may assign to them

Provided that such directions shall be made entirely at the discretion of the Central Board of Revenue, and, in particular, it shall be competent for that Board to assign a case or class of cases to an officer who is not exercising in respect of that case or class of cases the corresponding functions in relation to the charge of income tax under the Indian Income tax Act, 1922

(4) All officers and persons employed in the execution of this Act shall observe and follow the orders, instructions and directions of the Central Board of Revenue

Provided that nothing in this sub section applies to a Board of Referees

Provided further that no such orders instructions or directions shall be given so as to interfere with the discretion of the Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate functions

(5) A Board of Referees shall consist of not less than three and not more than five persons, of whom not less than one half shall be non-officials having business experience, and one shall be a judicial officer who has exercised the powers of a District Judge or who possesses such qualifications as are normally required for appointment to the post of District Judge, and who has held judicial office for a period of not less than ten years

(6) Subject to the provisions of sub section (5), the Central Government may make rules regulating the formation composition and procedure of Boards of Referees

Provided that any profits which are, under the provisions of sub section (3) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 exempt from income tax and all profits from any business of life insurance shall be totally exempt from excess profits tax under this Act ²

¹[(2) Where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply as if so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls before and so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March were each a separate chargeable accounting period, ³[and as if the excess of profits of that

⁴['and as if the excess of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the excess of profits arising in the whole period determined in accordance with the provisions of section 7 A]]

LEG REF

¹ Section 4 has been re numbered as sub S (1) and to the section as so re numbered sub S (2) has been added by Act XI of 1941

² N B — The excess profits tax imposed by S 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act 1940 shall, in respect of any chargeable ac counting period beginning after the 31st day of March 1941 be an amount equal to sixty six and two thirds per cent of the amount by which the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits [Finance Act VII of 1941 S 8 cl (2)]

³ Substituted by Act XXIV of 1941,

5 This Act shall apply to every business of which any part of the profits made during the chargeable accounting period is chargeable to income tax by virtue of the provisions of sub-clause (i) or sub-clause (ii) of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922, or of clause (c) of that sub-section

Application of Act
Provided that this Act shall not apply to any business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise without British India where such business is carried on by or on behalf of a person who is resident but not ordinarily resident in British India unless the business is controlled in India

Provided further that where the profits of a part only of a business carried on by a person who is not resident in British India or not ordinarily so resident accrue or arise in British India or are deemed under the Indian Income tax Act, 1922, so to accrue or arise, then, except where the business being the business of a person who is resident but not ordinarily resident in British India is controlled in India, this Act shall apply only to such part of the business, and such part shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a separate business

¹[Provided further that this Act shall not apply to any business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise in an Indian State, and where the profits of a part of a business accrue or arise in an Indian State, such part shall, for the purposes of this provision, be deemed to be a separate business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise in an Indian State, and the other part of the business shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a separate business]

6 (1) For the purposes of this Act the standard profits of a business in relation to any chargeable accounting period shall, subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4), be an amount bearing to the profits of the business during the standard period, if in respect of that business a standard period is available, the same proportion as the chargeable accounting period bears to the standard period

Standard profits
Provided that if the average amount of capital employed in the business during such chargeable accounting period is greater or less than the average amount of capital employed during the standard period such amount shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by an amount calculated by applying the statutory percentage to the amount of such increase or decrease

Provided further that in the case of a business which was commenced on or after the 31st day of March, 1936, the standard profits shall at the option of the person carrying on the business, be an amount calculated by applying the statutory percentage to the average amount of capital employed in the business during such chargeable accounting period

(2) For the purposes of this section the standard period shall, at the option of the person carrying on the business, be—

(a) the 'previous year' as determined under section 2 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922, for the purpose of the income tax assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1937, or the previous year as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1938, or

(b) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1937, and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939, or

(c) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1938, and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939, or

(d) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939 and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1940

Provided that in no case shall any period of less than nine months be taken as a standard period

(3) If, within the period specified in the notice issued under sub section (1) of section 13, ¹[or within the extended period allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to that sub section] the person carrying on the business makes an application to the Excess Profits Tax Officer in this behalf the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall refer the application to the Board of Referees and if the Board is satisfied that during the standard period the profits of the business were less than might at the beginning of that period have been reasonably expected it may direct that the standard profits shall be computed as if the profits during the standard period were such greater amount as it thinks just

Provided that such amount shall not exceed the statutory percentage of the average amount of the capital employed in the business unless the Board is satisfied that owing to some specific cause peculiar to the business it is just that a greater amount should be allowed

(a) shall have effect with respect to all subsequent chargeable accounting periods,

(b) shall exclude any further application under this sub section]

(4) The standard profits shall be taken to be rupees thirty six thousand in any case in which the standard profits computed in accordance with sub section (1) are less than this sum

Provided that if the chargeable accounting period is greater or less than one year the sum of rupees thirty six thousand shall for the purpose of this sub-section be increased or decreased proportionately

(5) Where the standard period includes any period prior to the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act 1935 during which Burma was part of British India there shall in computing the standard profits of a business under this section be excluded from the profits of the business during the standard period so much of such profits as arose or accrued or were received in Burma unless such profits are also included in the profits of the business during the chargeable accounting period

7 Where a deficiency of profits occurs in any chargeable accounting period

Relief on occurrence of deficiency of profits	in any business the profits of the business chargeable with excess profits tax shall be deemed to be reduced and relief shall be granted in accordance with the following provisions —

(a) the aggregate amount of the profits so chargeable for the previous chargeable accounting periods shall be deemed to be reduced by the amount of the deficiency of profits and the amount of excess profits tax payable in respect thereof shall be deemed to be reduced accordingly and the relief necessary to give effect to the reduction shall be given by repayment or otherwise

(b) where the amount of the deficiency of profits exceeds the aggregate amount of the profits so chargeable for the previous chargeable accounting periods, or where there is no previous chargeable accounting period, the balance of the deficiency of profits or the whole of the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be applied in reducing any profits so chargeable for the next subsequent chargeable accounting period, and if and so far as it exceeds the amount of those profits, any profits so chargeable for the next subsequent chargeable accounting period and so on.

¹[Provided that a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the 1st day of April, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, and a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period ending on or before the 31st day of March, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period ending on or before the said 31st day of March, and where owing to an insufficiency of profits for chargeable accounting periods ending on or before the said 31st day of March, or, as the case may be, beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, the whole or any part of the deficiency is applied otherwise than as aforesaid,—

(a) the application shall be treated as provisional only, and

(b) if it thereafter appears that there is no longer such an insufficiency as aforesaid, such adjustment shall be made as the Central Board of Revenue may by written order direct

Provided further that where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the provisions of the preceding proviso shall apply as if so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls before, and so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March, were each a separate chargeable accounting period, and as if the deficiency of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the deficiency of profits occurring in the whole period, and any apportionment required to be made by this proviso shall be made by reference to the number of months or fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole chargeable accounting period }

Special provision for chargeable accounting period falling partly before and partly after the end of March 1941

(a) references to the whole period, the first part of the period, and the second part of the period shall be construed, respectively, as references to the whole of the chargeable accounting period deemed to be divided, so much thereof as falls before the end of March, 1941, and so much thereof as falls after the said end of March,

(b) "excess profits" means the amount by which the profits for any period exceed the standard profits for that period

(2) The profits or loss of, and the standard profits for, the whole period shall be computed first on the basis that rule 5-A of the First Schedule and rule

2-A of the Second Schedule do not apply to the period, and secondly on the basis that the said rules do apply to the period, and it shall then be ascertained, on each basis, whether there are excess profits or a deficiency of profits for the whole period, and, if so, what is the amount thereof

(3) There shall be deemed to be for the first part of the period excess profits or a deficiency of profits, as the case may be, equal to an apportioned part of the excess profits or deficiency of profits ascertained under sub section (2) on the first basis mentioned therein, and there shall be deemed to be for the second part of the period excess profits or a deficiency of profits, as the case may be, equal to an apportioned part of the excess profits or deficiency of profits ascertained under sub section (2) on the second basis mentioned therein, and, for the purpose of giving relief for deficiencies of profits under section 7, the first part of the period and the second part of the period shall each be treated as if it were a separate chargeable accounting period

(4) Any apportionment required to be made by sub section (3) shall be made by reference to the number of months and fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole period]

8 (1) As from the date of any change in the persons carrying on a business, the business shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be deemed for all the purposes of this Act except for the purposes of determining the amount of the statutory percentage to have been discontinued, and a new business to have been commenced

(2) Where the change took place before the 1st day of September, 1939, and consisted in the death or retirement of a partner, or the taking in of a partner, the persons carrying on the business after the change may, by notice given in writing before the prescribed date to the Excess Profits Tax Officer, elect that, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits, the business shall not be deemed to have been discontinued.

(3) A business shall not, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits, be deemed to be discontinued by reason of any change occurring on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, in the persons carrying it on, and the standard profits of the business in relation to any chargeable accounting period shall be computed accordingly, and, in particular, in computing the capital employed in the business after the change, [and in considering, for the purposes of computing the profits of, and the capital employed during, any chargeable accounting period, whether any and, if so, what deductions are to be made in respect of depreciation of buildings, plant and machinery], no regard shall be had to any consideration given in respect of the transfer of the business or any of the assets thereof on the occasion of the change

(4) Where, on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, two or more businesses are amalgamated, the resulting business shall be treated for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits as if—

(a) it had been in existence throughout the period during which there were in existence any of the former businesses,

(b) any profits made or losses incurred or capital employed in any of those former businesses had been made, incurred or employed in the resulting business, and

(c) any assets of any of those former businesses had become assets of the resulting business when they became assets of the former business, and in particular in computing the capital employed in the resulting business [and in considering for the purposes of computing the profits of and the capital employed during any chargeable accounting period whether any and if so what deductions are to be made in respect of depreciation of buildings plant and machinery]¹ no regard shall be had to any consideration given in respect of the transfer of any of those former businesses or any of the assets thereof on the occasion of the amalgamation

(5) Where on or after the 1st day of September, 1939 part of a business is transferred as a going concern by the person theretofore carrying it on to another person the part transferred and the part not transferred shall each be deemed for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits to be a continuation of the original business and the said provisions including the provisions of this section relating to amalgamations shall apply accordingly,

Provided that for the purposes aforesaid such apportionments shall be made of the profits made and losses incurred and the capital employed in the original business and of any assets of the original business as may appear to the Excess Profits Tax Officer or on appeal in the prescribed time and manner to the Board of Referees to that Board to be just

(6) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section where a business was carried on immediately before the 1st day of April 1936 and that business or the main part of that business was transferred after the said day and before the 1st day of September 1939 by the person carrying it on to another person the Excess Profits Tax Officer if he is satisfied that the business carried on after the transference was not substantially different from the business or part transferred shall on the application of the person carrying on the business after the transference treat that person for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits as if he had carried on the transferred business or part of the business as from the date of the commencement of that business * * *

(7) Where on or after the 1st day of September 1939 a partner in a firm carrying on a business to which this Act applies dies then notwithstanding anything contained in sub section (1) any deficiency of profits in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending on or before the date of his death shall if it has not been fully applied in reducing the profits of any chargeable accounting period under section 7 be carried forward and applied in reducing any profits from the same business carried on by the surviving partner or partners in the first chargeable accounting period after the death of the partner and if and so far as it exceeds the amount of those profits in reducing any profits from such business in the next subsequent chargeable accounting period and so on

(a) a business is by virtue of sub section (2) or sub section (3) deemed not to have been discontinued or

(b) a business is by virtue of sub section (4) to be treated as if it had been in existence throughout the period during which there was in existence any other business or

(c) a business is, by virtue of sub-section (5), to be treated as a continuation of another business, or

(d) any person who is carrying on a business after a transfer is treated, by virtue of sub section (6), as having carried on the business as from a date before the transfer,

the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of profits and capital for the purposes of excess profits tax shall, both as respects the standard period and any chargeable accounting period, have effect subject to such modifications if any, as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may think just, and the Excess Profits Tax Officer may make such alterations in the periods which would otherwise be the chargeable accounting periods of the business as he thinks proper

Provided that if the Excess Profits Tax Officer makes any such modifications and the person carrying on the business is dissatisfied with the modifications so made or if the person carrying on the business is dissatisfied with the refusal of the Excess Profits Tax Officer to make any such modifications, he may, at any time before the expiry of forty five days from the date on which the order of the Excess Profits Tax Officer is communicated to him, appeal to the Board of Referees through the Excess Profits Tax Officer]

9 (1) Where any interest annuity or other annual payment, or any royalty or rent, is paid by one company to another company, and one of those companies is a subsidiary of the other, or both are subsidiaries of a third company, the capital, profits and losses of both companies shall be computed for the purposes of this Act as if—

(a) the interest, annuity, annual payment, royalty or rent were not payable

(b) any debt in respect of which any such interest is payable did not exist, and

(c) any asset in respect of which any such royalty or rent is payable were the property of the company paying the royalty or the rent

(a) any debt is owing to any company by another company, and

(b) one of those companies is a subsidiary of the other, or both are subsidiaries of a third company, and

(c) no interest is payable in respect of the debt, but the circumstances in which the debt came into existence or is allowed to continue to exist are such that the debt represents in substance capital employed in the business of the debtor company, the capital of both companies shall be computed as if the debt did not exist]

(2) Where—

(a) a company (hereinafter referred to as "the principal company") is resident in British India and is not a subsidiary of any other company resident in British India and

(b) during the whole or any part of any chargeable accounting period of the principal company another company, whether or not resident or carrying on business within British India (hereinafter referred to as "the subsidiary company") is a subsidiary of the principal company, the following provisions of this section shall subject to the provisions of section 5 have effect in relation to that chargeable accounting period

(3) If the subsidiary company is a subsidiary of the principal company throughout the chargeable accounting period such capital employed in and profits or losses arising from the business of the subsidiary company as is employed or arise in—

(i) the chargeable accounting period, or

(ii) any year constituting or comprised in the standard period of the principal company

shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as if it or they were capital employed in or as the case may be profits or losses arising from the business of the principal company

(4) If the subsidiary company is a subsidiary of the principal company during part only of the chargeable accounting period the excess or deficiency of profits of the subsidiary company for that part of that period shall be treated as increasing or as the case may be decreasing the excess or deficiency of profits of the principal company for the whole period and shall not be deemed to be an excess or deficiency of profits of the subsidiary company

In this sub section the expressions excess and deficiency mean in relation to profits an excess or deficiency in relation to the standard profits of the subsidiary company or as the case may be the principal company

(5) In any case to which sub section (3) or sub section (4) applies such alteration if any of the periods which would otherwise be the chargeable accounting periods of the subsidiary company shall be made as the Central Board of Revenue may direct

(6) For the purposes of this section a company shall be deemed to be a subsidiary of another company if and so long as not less than nine tenths of its ordinary share capital is owned by that other company whether directly or through another company or other companies or partly directly and partly through another company or other companies

(7) The amount of ordinary share capital of one company owned by a second company through another company or other companies or partly directly and partly through another company or other companies shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Third Schedule

(8) In this section and the Third Schedule references to ownership shall be construed as references to beneficial ownership and the expression 'ordinary share capital in relation to a company means all the issued share capital (by whatever name called) of the company other than capital the holders whereof have a right to a dividend at a fixed rate but have no other right to share in the profits of the company

(9) The principal company shall be entitled to allocate to its subsidiary company or companies the respective proportionate shares of the excess profits tax payable by the whole group

(10) The excess profits tax payable by virtue of this section by the principal company in respect of the profits of any subsidiary company shall for the purposes of section 12 be deemed to have been paid by the subsidiary company and not by the principal company

¹[10 (1) In computing profits for the purposes of this Act no deduction shall be made in respect of any transaction or operation of any nature if and so far as it appears that the transaction or operation has artificially reduced or would artificially reduce the profits.

(2) If the Excess Profits Tax Officer is satisfied that any person has entered into or carried out any transaction or operation by which the profits have been or would be artificially reduced, he may, with the previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner, direct that such person shall pay, in addition to any excess profits tax for which he is or, but for such transaction or operation, would be liable, a penalty not exceeding the tax evaded or sought to be evaded.]

¹[10-A. (1) Where the Excess Profits Tax Officer is of opinion that the main purpose for which any transaction or transactions was or were effected [whether before or after the passing of the Excess Profits Tax (Second Amendment) Act, 1941] was the avoidance or reduction of liability to excess profits tax, he may, with the previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner, make such adjustments as respects liability to excess profits tax as he considers appropriate so as to counteract the avoidance or reduction of liability to excess profits tax which would otherwise be effected by the transaction or transactions.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by sub-section (1), the powers conferred thereby extend—

(a) to the charging with excess profits tax of persons who but for the adjustments would not be chargeable with any tax or would not be chargeable to the same extent;

(b) to the charging of a greater amount of tax than would be chargeable but for the adjustments.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a decision of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under this section may appeal in the prescribed time and manner to the Appellate Tribunal]

11. (1) The Central Government may by notification in the official Gazette make provision for the granting of relief in cases where both excess profits tax under this Act and excess profits tax under any law in force in the United Kingdom, in any Indian State, or in any other part of His Majesty's Dominions have been paid upon the profits of any business if it appears to the Central Government that the laws of the United Kingdom or of that Indian State or of that other part of His Majesty's Dominions provide for corresponding relief in respect of excess profits tax charged on profits both in the United Kingdom or in that State or in that part and in British India:

Provided that where under section 19 of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1939, national defence contribution has been paid in the United Kingdom in lieu of excess profits tax, that portion of the national defence contribution so paid which is equal to the excess profits tax which would otherwise have been payable shall, for the purposes of this sub-section, be deemed to be excess profits tax paid in the United Kingdom

(2) If any person, who has paid excess profits tax under this Act for any chargeable accounting period in respect of profits arising outside India in a country the laws of which do not provide for any relief in respect of excess profits tax charged in British India, proves that he has paid excess profits tax under the laws of the said country in respect of the same profits, he shall be entitled to the deduction from the excess profits tax payable in British India of a sum equal to one-half thereof or to one half of the excess profits tax payable in the said country, whichever is the less

12. (1) The amount of the excess profits tax payable in respect of a business for any chargeable accounting period diminished by any amount allowable by way of relief under the provisions of section 11 shall in computing for the purposes of income tax or super tax the profits and gains of that business be allowed to be deducted as an expense incurred in that period

(2) There shall also be so deducted the amount of any excess profits tax payable under any law in force in a country outside British India on the profits of the business in respect of any chargeable accounting period¹ [to the extent to which such profits are liable to excess profits tax under this Act] after diminishing such amount by any amount which is allowable by way of relief by repayment set-off or otherwise under any law in the country where the tax is payable providing for the granting of relief in that country where excess profits tax has also been charged in British India

Provided that where under the provisions of this Act relating to deficiencies of profits or under any corresponding law in force in the said country without British India relief is given by way of repayment from excess profits tax chargeable for any chargeable accounting period previous to that in which the deficiency occurs the amount of the deduction allowed under sub section (1) or sub section (2) shall not be altered but the amount repayable shall be taken into account in computing the profits and gains of the business for the purposes of income tax as if it were a profit of the business accruing in the² [previous year (as determined for that business for the purposes of the Indian Income tax Act 1922)] in which the deficiency of profits occurs

13. (1) The Excess Profits Tax Officer may for the purposes of this Act require any person whom he believes to be engaged in any business to which this Act applies or to have been so engaged during any chargeable accounting period or to be otherwise liable to pay excess profits tax to furnish within such period not being less than sixty days from the date of the service of the notice as may be specified in the notice a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner setting forth (along with such other particulars as may be provided for in the notice) with respect to any chargeable accounting period specified in the notice the profits of the business and the standard profits of the business as computed in accordance with the provisions of section 6 or the amount of deficiency available for relief under section 7

Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer may in his discretion extend the date for the delivery of the return

(2) The Excess Profits Tax Officer may serve on any person upon whom a notice has been served under sub section (1) a notice requiring him on a date to be therein specified to produce or cause to be produced such accounts or documents as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may require and may from time to time serve further notices in like manner requiring the production of such further accounts or documents or other evidence as he may require

Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall not require the production of any accounts relating to a period prior to the 'previous year' as determined under section 2 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922, for the purpose of the income-tax assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1937

14 (1) The Excess Profits Tax Officer shall by an order in writing after considering such evidence if any as he has required under section 13 assess to the best of his judgment the profits liable to excess profits tax and the amount of excess profits tax payable on the basis of such assessment or if there is a deficiency of profits the amount of that deficiency and the amount of excess profits tax if any repayable and shall furnish a copy of such order to the person on whom the assessment has been made

(2) Excess profits tax payable in respect of any chargeable accounting period shall be payable by the person carrying on the business in that period

(3) Where two or more persons were carrying on the business jointly in the chargeable accounting period the assessment shall be made upon them jointly and in the case of a partnership may be made in the partnership name

(4) Where by virtue of the foregoing provisions an assessment could but for his death have been made on any person either solely or jointly with any other person or persons the assessment may be made on his legal representative either solely or jointly with that other person or persons as the case may be

15 If in consequence of definite information which has come into his possession the Excess Profits Tax Officer discovers that profits of any chargeable accounting period chargeable to excess profits tax have escaped assessment or have been underassessed or have been the subject of excessive relief he may at any time within five years of the end of the chargeable accounting period in question serve on the person liable to such tax a notice containing all or any of the requirements which may be included in a notice under section 13 and may proceed to assess or re-assess the amount of such profits liable to excess profits tax and the provisions of this Act shall so far as may be apply as if the notice were a notice issued under that section

16 If the Excess Profits Tax Officer the Appellate Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioner in the course of any proceedings under this Act is satisfied that any person has without reasonable cause failed to furnish the return required under sub section (1) of section 13 or to produce or cause to be produced the accounts or documents or other evidence required by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under sub section (2) of that section or has concealed particulars of the profits made by or capital employed in the business or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such profits or capital he may direct that such person shall pay by way of penalty in addition to the amount of any excess profits tax payable a sum not exceeding—

(a) where the person has failed to furnish the return required under sub section (1) of section 13 the amount of the excess profits tax payable and

(b) in any other case the amount of excess profits tax which would have been avoided if the return made had been accepted as correct

Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall not impose any penalty under this section without the previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner

17 (1) Any person aggrieved by a decision made in pursuance of section 8 or objecting to the amount of excess profits tax for which he is liable as assessed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer or denying his liability to be assessed under this Act or objecting to any penalty imposed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer or to the amount of any deficiency of profits as assessed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer, or to the amount allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer by way of relief under any provision of this Act or to any refusal by the Excess Profits Tax Officer to grant relief may appeal to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner.

Provided that no appeal shall lie against a determination of the amount of the profits of any standard period where those profits have been determined in accordance with the ¹[second proviso] to rule 1 of the First Schedule except in respect of adjustments made under the provisions of that Schedule.

²[Provided further that no appeal shall lie under this section against any apportionment made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to subsection (5) of section 8 against any ³[refusal to make modifications or against any modifications] made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under subsection (8) of section 8 against any decision of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under rule 11 of the First Schedule, or against any decision of the Board of Referees or the Central Board of Revenue]

(2) An appeal shall ordinarily be presented within forty five days of receipt of the notice of demand relating to the assessment or penalty objected to or in the case of an appeal against the assessment of a deficiency of profits, within forty five days of the receipt of the copy of the order determining the deficiency or in the case of an appeal against the amount of a relief granted or a refusal to grant relief, within forty five days of the receipt of the intimation of the order granting or refusing to grant the relief but the Appellate Assistant Commissioner may admit an appeal after the expiration of that period if he is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period.

(3) An appeal shall be in the prescribed form and shall be verified in the prescribed manner.

(4) The Appellate Assistant Commissioner shall hear and determine the appeal and, subject to the provisions of this Act shall pass such orders as he thinks fit, and such orders may include an order enhancing the assessment or a penalty.

Provided that an order enhancing an assessment or penalty shall not be made unless the person affected thereby has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against such enhancement.

(5) The procedure to be adopted in the hearing and determination of appeals shall be in accordance with the rules made in this behalf by the Central Board of Revenue.

18 (1) Any person objecting to an order passed by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner imposing on him a penalty under section 16 or enhancing his assessment or enhancing a penalty under section 17 may appeal to the Commissioner within thirty days of the date on which he was served with notice of such order.

(2) In disposing of the appeal the Commissioner may, after giving the appellant an opportunity of being heard pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit.

(3) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, this section shall cease to have effect.

19 (1) The Commissioner may of his own motion call for the record of any proceeding under this Act which has been taken by any Excess Profits Tax Officer or Appellate Assistant Commissioner subordinate to him, and on receipt of the record may make such enquiry, or cause such enquiry to be made, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, may pass such orders thereon (including an order enhancing an assessment) as he thinks fit:

Provided that he shall not pass any order prejudicial to a person to whose business this Act applies without bearing him, or giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, sub-section (1) shall cease to have effect, but thereafter any Excess Profits Tax Officer or any person in respect of whose business an order under section 14 has been passed who objects to an order passed by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner under section 16 or section 17 may, within the prescribed time and in the prescribed manner, appeal against such order to the Appellate Tribunal constituted under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and that Tribunal shall have all such powers in disposing of the appeal as it has in respect of appeals preferred to it under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922

20. The Commissioner may, at any time within four years from the date of any order passed whether by himself or by any Appellate Assistant Commissioner or Excess Profits Tax Officer under this Act, rectify any mistake in any evidence recorded during assessment or appellate proceedings, or any mistake apparent from the record and shall within the like period rectify any mistake apparent from the record which has been brought to his notice by a person to whose business this Act applies:

Provided that no such rectification shall be made having the effect of enhancing the liability of any person unless that person has been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard

21. The provisions of sections 4-A, 4-B, 10, 13, 24-B, 29, 36 to 44-C (inclusive), 45 to 48 (inclusive), 49-E, 49-F, 50, 54, 61 to 63 (inclusive), 65 to 67-A (inclusive) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall apply with such modifications if any, as may be prescribed as if the said provisions were provisions of this Act and referred to excess profits tax instead of to income-tax, and every officer exercising powers under the said provisions in regard to income-tax may exercise the like powers under this Act in regard to excess profits tax in respect of cases assigned to him under sub-section (3) of section 3 as he exercises in relation to income-tax under the said Act:

Provided that references in the said provisions to the assessee shall be construed as references to a person to whose business this act applies

22 (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, all information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of that Act may be used for the purposes of this Act.

(2) All information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of this Act or obtained or collected for the purposes of this Act may be used for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

23 If any person fails without reasonable cause or excuse to furnish in due time any return or statement, or to produce, or cause to be produced any accounts or documents required to be produced under section 13 he shall on conviction by a Magistrate be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees and with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

24 If a person makes in any return required under section 13 any statement which is false and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, he shall be punishable on conviction by a Magistrate with simple imprisonment which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees or with both

and composition of offences.

(2) No prosecution for an offence punishable under section 23 or section 24 or under the Indian Penal Code shall be instituted in respect of the same facts as those in respect of which a penalty has been imposed under this Act

(3) The Inspecting Assistant Commissioner may either before or after the institution of proceedings compound any offence punishable under section 23 or section 24.

26 (1) If ¹[on an application made to it through the Excess Profits Tax officer] the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied in the case of any business that special circumstances exist which render it inequitable that the standard profits of the business in relation to any chargeable accounting period should be computed in accordance with the provisions of sub section (1) of section 6 and that no relief or insufficient relief has been granted under the provisions of sub section (3) of that section the Central Board of Revenue may direct that the standard profits of the business shall be computed to be such greater amount as the Central Board of Revenue thinks just

Provided that such amount shall not exceed the statutory percentage of the average amount of the capital employed in the business unless the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied that owing to some specific cause peculiar to the business it is just that a greater amount should be allowed and that the relief, if any afforded by the Board of Referees under sub section (3) of section 6 is inadequate

(a) shall have effect with respect to all subsequent chargeable accounting periods.

(b) shall exclude any further application under this sub-section]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of sub section (1) the Central Board of Revenue shall in considering the making of a direction under that sub-section have regard to the following circumstances namely —

(a) that the capital employed in a business commenced on or after the 1st day of July, 1938 is so small in relation to the volume of the activities of

(3) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, this section shall cease to have effect.

19 (1) The Commissioner may of his own motion call for the record of any proceeding under this Act which has been taken by any Excess Profits Tax Officer or Appellate Assistant Commissioner subordinate to him, and on receipt of the record may make such enquiry, or cause such enquiry to be made, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, may pass such orders thereon (including an order enhancing an assessment) as he thinks fit:

Power of revision
Provided that he shall not pass any order prejudicial to a person to whose business this Act applies without hearing him, or giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, sub-section (1) shall cease to have effect, but thereafter any Excess Profits Tax Officer or any person in respect of whose business an order under section 14 has been passed who objects to an order passed by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner under section 16 or section 17 may, within the prescribed time and in the prescribed manner, appeal against such order to the Appellate Tribunal constituted under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and that Tribunal shall have all such powers in disposing of the appeal as it has in respect of appeals preferred to it under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922

20. The Commissioner may, at any time within four years from the date of any order passed whether by himself or by any Appellate Assistant Commissioner or Excess Profits Tax Officer under this Act, rectify any mistake in any evidence recorded during assessment or appellate proceedings, or any mistake apparent from the record and shall within the like period rectify any mistake apparent from the record which has been brought to his notice by a person to whose business this Act applies:

Rectification of mistakes
Provided that no such rectification shall be made having the effect of enhancing the liability of any person unless that person has been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard

21 The provisions of sections 4-A, 4-B, 10, 15, 24-B, 29, 36 to 44-C (inclusive), 45 to 48 (inclusive), 49-E, 49-F, 50, 54, 61 to 63 (inclusive), 65 to 67-A (inclusive) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 shall apply with such modifications if any, as may be prescribed as if the said provisions were provisions of this Act and referred to excess profits tax instead of to income-tax, and every officer exercising powers under the said provisions in regard to income-tax may exercise the like powers under this Act in regard to excess profits tax in respect of cases assigned to him under sub-section (3) of section 3 as he exercises in relation to income-tax under the said Act:

Application of provisions of Act XI of 1922
Provided that references in the said provisions to the assessee shall be construed as references to a person to whose business this act applies

22. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, all information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of that Act or obtained or collected for the purposes of that Act may be used for the purposes of this Act.

(2) All information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of this Act or obtained or collected for the purposes of this Act may be used for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

date on which the order of the Board of Referees disposing of the application under sub section (3) of section 6 is communicated to the person who has made that application]

27 (f) The Central Board of Revenue may, subject to the control of the Central Government, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) prescribe the procedure to be followed on appeals applications for rectification of mistakes, and applications for refunds,

(b) provide for the adaptation to excess profits tax of any of the provisions of the Indian Income tax Act 1922 which are made applicable to excess profits tax by section 21; or of any rules made under any such provision,

(c) provide in regard to companies whose business consists wholly or mainly in the dealing in or holding of investment for the granting of exemption or relief from liability to excess profits tax of profits derived from investments in other companies the profits of which have been subjected to excess profits tax in British India,

(d) provide for any matter which by or under this Act is to be prescribed

(3) The power to make rules conferred by this section shall be exercised in like manner as the power to make rules under section 59 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922

SCHEDULE I

[See section 2 (19)]

Rules for the computation of profits for purposes of Excess Profits Tax

1 The profits of a business during the standard period or during any chargeable accounting period shall be separately computed and shall subject to the provisions of this Schedule be computed on the principles on which the profits of a business are computed for the purposes of income tax under section 10 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922

1[Provided that any sums 2[(other than any interest paid by a firm to a partner of the firm)] excluded under the proviso to clause (iii) of sub section (2) or clause (a) of sub section (4) of that section from the allowances made in computing the profits of the business for the purposes of income tax shall if paid be included in those allowances when computing the profits of the business for the purposes of excess profits tax]

Provided 3[further] that where the profits during any standard period have already been determined for the purpose of an assessment under the Indian Income tax Act, 1922 such profits as so determined shall subject to the adjustments required by this Schedule be taken as the profits during that period for the purpose of excess profits tax

Provided further that where a standard period or chargeable accounting period is not an accounting period the profits or losses of the business during any accounting periods wholly or partly included within the standard period or chargeable accounting period shall be so computed as aforesaid and such division and apportionment to specific periods of those profits or losses and such aggregation of those profits and losses or any apportioned part thereof shall be made as appears necessary to arrive at the profit during the standard period or chargeable accounting period and any such apportionment shall be made in proportion to the number of months or fractions of months in the respective periods unless the Excess Profits Tax Officer having regard to any special circumstances otherwise directs

2 The profits of a business during the standard period shall be computed on the same basis and in the same manner as the profits of that business are under the Indian Income tax Act 1922 as amended by the Indian Income tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, computed for the chargeable accounting period notwithstanding that the Indian Income tax (Amendment) Act, 1939 may not have been in force in the standard period

3 (1) The principle of adding the allowance for depreciation for any one period to the allowance for depreciation for any subsequent period and deeming it to be part of the allowance for such subsequent period shall not be followed

(2) No allowance shall be made for any loss other than a loss sustained in a business to which this Act applies

(3) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as permitting the application in computing profits for the purposes of the excess profits tax, of the provisions of sub section (2) of section 24 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922

4 (1) Income received from investments shall be included in the profits in the cases and to the extent provided in sub rules (2) ¹[2 A] and (4) of this rule and not otherwise

(2) In the case of the business of a building society, or of a money lending business banking business insurance business or business consisting wholly or mainly in the dealing in or holding of investments, the profits shall include all income received from investments whether or not such income is included in the profits charged under section 10 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922 or is charged under any other section of that Act, or has been subjected to deduction of tax at source or is free of or exempt from income tax

¹[(2 A) In the case of a business part of which consists in banking, insurance or dealing in investments not being a business to which sub rule (2) of this rule applies, the profits shall include all income received from investments held for the purposes of that part of the business, being income to which the persons carrying on the business are beneficially entitled]

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub rule (2) ¹[or 2 A] where the profits of a subsidiary company are under the provisions of section 9 to be included in the profits of the principal company for the purposes of assessment to excess profits tax, dividends from the subsidiary company out of such profits shall not also be included in the profits of the principal company

(4) In the case of a business which consists wholly or partly in the letting out of property on hire, the income from the property shall be included in the profits of the business whether or not it has been charged to income tax under section 9 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922, or under any other section of that Act

5 If at any time after the close of the standard period any increase in the capital ments the income from which is by virtue of the provisions of this rule not to be taken into account in computing the profits of the business and a deduction would apart from the provisions of this rule, fall to be made in respect of interest on borrowed money the deduction (if any) to be made in respect of that interest shall be computed as if the principal of the borrowed money were reduced by the value of those investments

Provided that where the person carrying on the business is not a company, no such reduction shall be deemed to be made in the principal of any borrowed money in respect of any investments unless the investments are mortgaged charged or pledged as security for the repayment of that money and interest thereon

5 If at any time after the close of the standard period any increase in the capital employed in a business has been effected by means of a loan from a bank carrying on a bona fide banking business or by means of a public issue of debentures secured on the property of the company the interest on so much of the loan or debentures as has been utilised in effecting the increase in the capital shall not be deducted in computing the profits for the purposes of excess profits tax and notwithstanding the provisions of rule 2 of Schedule II that amount of such loan or debentures shall not be deducted in arriving at the amount of the capital employed in the business

Provided that, as respects any such chargeable accounting period which commences before the said end of March, the application of this rule shall be subject to the provisions of section 7 A of this Act

Provided further that this rule shall not apply to the computation of profits of any business for any chargeable accounting period the standard profits for which are ascertained by reference to the minimum amount specified in sub section (4) of section 6 of this Act

Provided further that where a direction has been given by a Board of Referees under sub-section (3) of section 6 or by the Central Board of Revenue under sub section (1) of section 26 of this Act, that the standard profits shall be computed as if the profits during the standard period were such greater amount as it thinks just, such amount shall be increased by the amount of the interest on or other consideration for the borrowed money during the standard period.

(2) In this rule and in rule 2 A of the Second Schedule "borrowed money" means borrowed money which, apart from the provisions of the said rule 2-A, would have been deductible in computing capital.]

6. No deduction shall be made on account of liability to pay, or payment of, income-tax, super-tax, or excess profits tax.

7. ¹[(1) In the case of a business carried on, in any accounting period which constitutes or includes a chargeable accounting period, by a company the directors whereof have throughout that accounting period a controlling interest therein—

(a) in computing the profits for that accounting period, and

(b) if the standard profits of the business are computed by reference to the profits of a standard period, also in computing, in relation to any such chargeable accounting period, the profits for the standard period, no deduction shall be made in respect of directors' remuneration.]

(2) ¹[In sub rule (1) of this rule] the expression "directors' remuneration" does not include—

(a) the remuneration of any director who is required to devote substantially the whole of his time to the service of the company in a managerial or technical capacity and is not the beneficial owner of, or able, either directly or through the medium of other companies or by any other indirect means, to control, more than five per cent. of the ordinary share capital of the company, or

(b) the remuneration of any managing agent where such remuneration is included in the profits of the managing agent's business for the purposes of excess profits tax.

(a) have during any part of that accounting period, or

(b) had during the whole or any part of any previous accounting period which includes the whole or any part of any chargeable accounting period or the whole or any part of the standard period (if any),

a controlling interest therein, and the case is not one to which sub rule (1) of this rule applies, then, except in so far as the Central Board of Revenue otherwise directs, no deduction shall be made in respect of directors' remuneration either in computing the profits for the first mentioned accounting period or in computing in relation to any chargeable accounting period wholly or partly included in that accounting period, the profits of the standard period (if any).]

8. In the case of a business carried on by a company, if the standard profits of the company are computed by reference to the profits during a standard period, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of remuneration paid to a managing agent in excess of the amount which would have been payable to that managing agent if the agreement in force in the standard period had been in force in the chargeable accounting period, except where such remuneration is subjected to excess profits tax in the hands of the managing agent.

9. Where the performance of a contract extends beyond the accounting period, there shall (unless the Excess Profits Tax Officer, owing to any special circumstances, otherwise directs) be attributed to the accounting period such proportion of the entire profits or loss which has resulted, or which it is estimated will result, from the complete performance of the contract as is properly attributable to the accounting period, having regard to the extent to which the contract was performed therein.

Provided that when any such contract has been completed and the profits have been finally ascertained, if the aggregate of the amounts attributed to previous accounting periods exceeds the profit, as finally ascertained, from the complete performance of the contract, an adjustment shall be made to reduce the amounts so attributed to the various chargeable accounting periods to the amount of the profits as finally ascertained.

10. In respect of any building erected on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, which during any chargeable accounting period has ceased to be required for the purposes of the business or has been sold, any amount by which the value of the building at the date when it ceased to be required for the purposes of the business or the price obtained for the building, as the case may be, falls short of the written down value of the building shall be allowed as a deduction in arriving at the profits of that chargeable accounting period.

²[(11. Where in respect of any accounting period a deduction would, apart from the provisions of this rule, be allowable in computing profits, and, in the opinion of the Excess Profits Tax Officer, the deduction does not represent a sum reasonably and properly attributable to that accounting period, only such part of the deduction shall be allowable as a deduction for that period as appears to the Excess Profits Tax Officer to be reasonably and properly attributable to that period, and any balance of the deduction shall be treated as attributable to such other accounting period or periods (whether or not they include, or fall wholly or partly within the standard period, if any, or any chargeable accounting period) as the Excess Profits Tax Officer thinks proper

Any person who is dissatisfied with a determination of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under this rule may, at any time before the expiry of forty five days from the date on which such determination is communicated to him appeal to the Board of Referees through the Excess Profits Tax Officer]

¹[12 (1) In computing the profits of any chargeable accounting period no deduction shall be allowed in respect of expenses in excess of the amount which the Excess Profits Tax Officer considers reasonable and necessary having regard to the requirements of the business and in the case of directors fees or other payments for services to the actual services rendered by the person concerned

Provided that no disallowance under this rule shall be made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer unless he has obtained the prior authority of the Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax

(2) Any person who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under this rule may appeal in the prescribed time and manner to the Appellate Tribunal]

SCHEDULE II

[See section 2 (3)]

Rules for computing the average amount of capital

1 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Schedule, the average amount of the capital employed in a business (so far as it does not consist of money) shall be taken to be—

(a) so far as it consists of assets acquired by purchase on or after the commencement of the business the price at which those assets were acquired subject to the deductions hereafter specified,

(b) so far as it consists of assets being debts due to the person carrying on the business the nominal amount of those debts subject to the said deductions,

(c) so far as it consists of any other assets which have been acquired otherwise than by purchase as aforesaid the value of the assets when they became assets of the business subject to the said deductions

(2) The price or value of any assets other than a debt shall be subject to such deductions for depreciation as are necessary to reduce the asset to its written down value ²[and to such other deductions in respect of reduced values of assets as are allowable in computing profits for the purposes of income tax], and in the case of a debt the nominal amount of the debt shall be subject to any deduction which has been allowed in respect thereof for income tax purposes

(3) Where the price of any asset has been satisfied otherwise than in cash the then value of the consideration actually given for the asset shall be treated as the price at which the asset was acquired

2 (1) Any borrowed money and debts shall be deducted and in particular any debt for income tax or super tax or for excess profits tax in respect of the business shall be deducted

Provided that any such debt for income tax or super tax or excess profits tax shall for the purposes of this Schedule be deemed to have become due—

(a) in the case of income tax and super tax on the last day of the period of time within which the tax is payable under section 45 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922

(b) in the case of excess profits tax on the first day after the end of the chargeable accounting period in respect of which the tax is assessable notwithstanding that the excess profits tax may not have been assessed until after that date

²[The debts to be deducted under this sub rule shall include any such sums in respect of accruing liabilities as are allowable as a deduction in computing profits for the purposes of excess profits tax or would have been so allowable if the period for which the amount of capital is being computed had been a chargeable accounting period and the said sums shall be deducted notwithstanding that they have not become payable]

(2) Where any debt for the excess profits tax assessable in respect of any period is to be deducted under this rule the amount thereof shall not be reduced as the result of any relief to be given in respect of a deficiency of profits occurring in any subsequent period and the amount of any such relief shall be treated as having become an asset of the business on the first day after the end of the chargeable accounting period in which the deficiency occurred

Provided that, as respects any such chargeable accounting period which commences before the said end of March the application of this rule shall be subject to the provisions of section 7 A of this Act

Provided further that the same deduction shall be made in respect of accruing liabilities for interest as would have been made if this rule had not been enacted]

3 Any investments the income from which is by virtue of the provisions of the First Schedule not to be taken into account in computing the profits of the business and any moneys not required for the purposes of the business shall be left out of account but where any investments in the beneficial ownership of the person carrying on the business are so left out of account the sum (if any) to be deducted under the last preceding rule in respect of borrowed money shall be computed as if the principal of the borrowed money were reduced by the value of those investments

Provided that where the person carrying on the business is not a company no reduction shall be deemed to be made in the principal of any borrowed money in respect of any investments unless the investments are mortgaged charged or pledged as security for the repayment of that money and the interest thereon

4 Notwithstanding anything contained in rule 3 in the case of the business of shipping to which this Act applies the sale proceeds of any tonnage sold or the amount of compensation in respect of loss of ships or the amount of accumulation of reserves whether invested or not, shall be taken into account in computing the average amount of capital employed in such business

Provided that any income received from investment of such funds shall be included in computing profits for purposes of the excess profits tax

5 For the purpose of ascertaining the average amount of capital employed in a business during any period the profits or losses made in that period shall except so far as the contrary is shown, be deemed—

(a) to have accrued at an even rate throughout the period and

(b) to have resulted as they accrued in a corresponding increase or decrease as the case may be in the capital employed in the business
